Spanish Speaking Country & Capital Cards

Flashcards are a versatile way to engage your students! Print cards on sticky labels and stick on notecards or print double sided on cardstock and cut apart. If you laminate your cards, they will be a great resource for many years to come!

Ten Suggestions for Use:

1. Print the cards ONE sided to use as memory game. (Print on different colored card stock or use different colors of notecards. Students will need to flip over one card of each color to have a chance at a match). A valid match is a correct country and capital combination.
2. Print one sided. Have students keep cards face up to practice matching the countries and capitals.
3. Put students in small groups and have them practice learning the countries and capitals. Double sided cards work great for this activity.
4. Have teams race to match countries and capitals. The fastest (and most accurate team) wins!

5. Print the cards front and back and you will have a deck of flashcards. I recommend printing on cardstock. These are great for independent or small group studying.
6. Use for bell ringers, closure, or quick quizzes by putting cards under the document camera.
7. Put students in groups of 3. One student flips over the cards and the other 2 say the country or capital. The fastest responder earns the card, the person with the most cards win. (Easy way to differentiate and ability group).
8. Use with an "old school" board game. Students must say the country or capital before they get their turn.
9. Turn your white board or wall into Jeopardy – the vocabulary cards make GREAT questions. You can even tape the laminated cards up for an instant game!
10. Do teacher lead races. Hold the deck of cards and have your students line up in 2 lines. Have them compete against one another to say the country or capital. The fastest correct answer earns a point for their team.
