

Narrator: Mid-year Progress Test

Clare: Hi! I'm Clare. I've got two brothers and one sister, and the four of us live with our parents.

Mark is seventeen, and he hates school, so he gets up late and then Mum gets angry. He doesn't do his homework, and he's always playing computer games. Then there's Sarah. She's fifteen, and she loves school. She's really clever and always does her homework. She studies every evening and reads loads of books. We never see her after supper when we watch TV together because she goes to her room.

Finally, there's David. He's only eleven. He's a really good tennis player, so he practises every day at a tennis class after school. He loves it! He likes Rafa Nadal and wants to be a champion one day. And he quite likes playing chess, too! And of course, there's me! I'm thirteen, and I really love languages – and History! But the class I like more than those is Maths. I'm good at it, too. Maybe I can be a teacher one day!
