1.2

Events management

Lesson outcome

Learners can make simple comparisons.

Lead-in 1 Work in pairs. Which of these events have you been to?

an anniversary celebration a conference a graduation party the grand opening of a new business the launch of a new product a special meal with colleagues from work a wedding

2A Which of the skills and personal qualities below are useful for planning events? Why?

You need to be: organised / able to cook food for a lot of people / good at telling jokes / able to pay attention to details / good with budgets.

B Would you enjoy planning a big event, for example a company's tenth anniversary celebration? Why? / Why not?

Listening 3 You are going to listen to an interview with an Events Manager. Think of one or two things she will talk about for each category.

- The types of events she plans
- Important things to think about
- Important skills for an Events Manager

4 1.01 Listen to the interview. Did Alicia talk about any of your ideas from Exercise 3? Did you hear any other ideas?

★ 5 Listen again and decide if these sentences are true (T) or false (F). Correct the incorrect sentences.

- 1 She helps people plan weddings.
- 2 Most of her clients are businesses.
- 3 In the first meeting, she never talks to clients about money.
- 4 She says that planning a big event is like planning a circus.
- 5 She believes that getting details right is very important.
- 6 She says her job is to make her clients happy.

6 Would you enjoy being an Events Manager? Why? / Why not?

T Teacher's resources:
extra activities

Grammar Comparatives and superlatives

★ 7A Look at the sentences from the interview. Which sentences are comparatives? Which are superlatives?

- 1 Weddings are harder than business lunches.
- 2 I try to find the best location for each event.
- 3 I can't choose the most expensive hotel in town for an event for someone with a small budget.
- 4 For a cheap event, we choose the least expensive venue possible.
- 5 And for you, are some venues better than others?
- 6 Planning an event outdoors is always the biggest challenge.
- 7 Was the circus event more difficult than your usual events?
- 8 And for you, are any of the skills more important – or less important?

B Complete the sentences with comparative, superlative or irregular.

- To form the _____ of most adjectives, we use the before the adjective and -est or most/least.
- To form the _____ of most adjectives, we use -er or more/less and than.
- Some common adjectives are _____. e.g. good – better than – the best.

→ page 119 See Grammar reference: Comparatives and superlatives

8 Choose the correct option in italics to complete the sentences.

- The steak is the most / more expensive meal on the menu.
- Organising a lunch is difficult less / less difficult than organising a trip.
- Planning a party for 200 people is the hardest / harder than planning a party for 20.
- Some people think that this is the worst / worse hotel in town.

Speaking and writing

10A Work in pairs. Look at the information about event venues. Make sentences comparing the venues.

Barbecue in the park	Lakeside restaurant	Hotel ballroom
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • food (€€): meat on the grill • entertainment: country band • up to 200 guests • staff: 12 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • food (€€€): fish • entertainment: singer with guitar • up to 150 guests • staff: 15 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • food (€€€€): a choice of meat, fish or vegetable pie • entertainment: jazz band • up to 300 guests • staff: 20

The barbecue is cheaper than the restaurant.

The restaurant is the smallest.

The ballroom is probably more formal than the other rooms.

B Which location would be the best choice for a party with your English class? Why?

11 Think of three possible event venues in your town, or imagine them. Write three comparative sentences and three superlative sentences about them.

COMMUNICATION SKILLS Small talk

Lesson outcome

Learners can make small talk using a simple model.

'Small talk' is an unimportant conversation about unimportant things, usually with people you don't know very well.

Lead-in 1A Work in pairs. Read the comment on the left about small talk and discuss whether you agree or disagree.

B Discuss the questions.

- 1 In which situations and places can small talk take place? Make a list.
- 2 Why do people make small talk?
- 3 What do you usually talk about when you meet someone for the first time?

C In small groups, discuss where on the line you would put these small talk topics. Explain your choice.

← I definitely would talk about this. I definitely wouldn't talk about this. → family health home town music personal finances the place you are in politics religion sports travel the weather

VIDEO 1.3.1 Watch the video as Jasmine arrives at The Gallagher Consultancy dinner and answer the questions.

- 1 What is Jasmine's new job?
- 2 What does The Gallagher Consultancy (TGC) do?
- 3 Who are the people in the restaurant? Why are they meeting?
- 4 Why is Jasmine late?

Video A 1.3.2 Watch Video A.

- 1 Which topics in Exercise 1C do Orla and Azra talk about?
- 2 Where is Azra from originally? Where does she live now?
- 3 What do we learn about:
 - a Shaun's typical journey home?
 - b Shaun's trips to Los Angeles and Bangkok?

B In pairs, decide which sentence best describes how Shaun speaks.

- a He asks Jasmine a number of questions and listens carefully to her answers.
- b He doesn't really listen to Jasmine, but prefers to talk about himself.

Video B 1.3.3 Watch Video B. What do you learn about:

- 1 Jasmine? 2 Thiago? 3 Azra? 4 Alex?

B Watch Video B again and tick (✓) the things the speakers do as they make small talk.

	Thiago	Jasmine	Alex	Azra
Ask a question
Answer the question
Add new information
Show interest (lean forward, use eye contact, smile)

5 Watch the Conclusions section of the video. What is the AAA model?

Reflection 6 Think about how good you are at making small talk. In pairs, discuss how you could improve your skills.

Functional language Making small talk

7A Match the questions (1–8) with the answers (a–h).

- | | |
|--|--|
| ★ 1 Where do you come from? | a It's very nice. |
| 2 What do you think about this restaurant? | b Not much. |
| 3 How long was your trip? | c Yes, I met her at the interview. |
| 4 What do you know about working at TGC? | d About an hour. |
| 5 Do you know Turkey? | e I'm starting a new job on Monday. |
| 6 Which do you prefer , London or Istanbul? | f A little. I went there on holiday about three years ago. |
| 7 Do you know Orla? | g I'm from Turkey. |
| 8 What are you doing in Dublin? | h I love them both. |

B Match words from the box with the expressions in bold in Exercise 7A to make more small talk questions. There may be more than one possible answer.

Angelina's Pizzeria the company David fashion flight the food in Boston live Prague or Barcelona the project the town

1 Where do you live?

C Write eight more small talk questions using the phrases in bold from Exercise 7A.

★ 8A Complete the extract from the video using the phrases in the box.

I'd like to that's right to university you from you know it

Thiago: Shaun says you're American. Where are ¹ _____?

Jasmine: ² _____, I'm from Boston. I went ³ _____ there. Do ⁴ _____?

Thiago: No, I've never been, but ⁵ _____.

B Look at Jasmine's response in Exercise 8A.

- Does she use the AAA (answer, add, ask) model? Explain your answer.
- Could Thiago also use the AAA model and continue the conversation? What could he say?

C Watch Video B again and find two more examples of the AAA model.

9 Work in pairs. Use the AAA model and the question forms in Exercise 7A to practise making small talk.

Where do you come from?

Answer: Italy. Add: I live in Trieste. Ask: Do you know it?

1.4

BUSINESS SKILLS Dealing with problems

Lesson outcome

Learners can use a range of expressions to explain and solve problems with IT.

Lead-in 1A Look at the photo. How did you feel on your first day at a new college or job?

B Work in pairs. Note down 3–4 pieces of advice for someone's first day in a new job.
Take notes during the day. Arrive at your new workplace 10 minutes early.

Listening 2 1.02 It's Jakob's first day in a new job. Laura, the HR Manager, is explaining the schedule. Listen and number Jakob's tasks in the correct order (1–4).

- Set up his email account
- Do the health and safety training
- Go to the induction briefing
- Meet the team

3A 1.03 Jakob is speaking to Sue, the IT Technician. Listen and tick (✓) the things Jakob is having problems with.

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 his password <input type="checkbox"/> | 4 the company phone number <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 2 his user name <input type="checkbox"/> | 5 connecting to the company intranet <input type="checkbox"/> |

Tip

Explain a problem using I'm having problems/trouble (with) + the -ing form of a verb, OR with + a noun. I'm having problems connecting to the intranet / with the intranet.

Solve a problem using You can try / Try + the -ing form of a verb, OR You need to + the infinitive form of a verb. Try logging on again. / You need to log on again.

5A Match the IT problems (1–4) with the solutions (a–d). There may be more than one possible answer.

Problems

- 1 connecting to the network printer
- 2 finding Dan's extension number
- 3 logging onto the intranet
- 4 can't access the internet

Solutions

- a search for his surname in the online phonebook
- b check your wi-fi settings
- c restart your computer
- d go to the printer settings and select printer 004AC

B Work in pairs. Use the expressions in Exercise 4A to practise explaining and solving the problems in Exercise 5A.

A: What's the problem?

B: I'm having trouble finding Dan's extension number.

A: You need to search for his surname in the online phonebook.

B: OK, thanks.

6A Work in pairs. You are going to take turns to explain and solve an IT problem.

Student A: Read the information below. Student B: Look at page 127.

You are working on an important document but are experiencing some IT problems. Choose three problems from the list below or think of your own problem and call Student B for help.

You have incorrect login details.
Your password has expired.
You can't connect to the network printer.
You can't connect to the internet/intranet.
You are locked out of your computer.
Your computer screen freezes every few minutes.

B Take a few minutes to prepare, then roleplay the situation. Swap roles.

C When you have finished, discuss how easy or difficult it was to explain and/or solve an IT problem in English. Share your experience with the class.

Dovetailed in Cambridge

Lesson outcome

Learners can use vocabulary related to places of work and business locations.

Lead-in 1 Discuss these questions.

- 1 What is good or bad about the location where you live, work or study? Use some of the expressions in the box to help you.

I (don't) really like (my town) because It's (not) a very (interesting, nice, etc.) place.
It's full of (parks, etc.). There are lots of good (shops, etc.).
I think it's very (quiet, noisy, etc.). It's near (the station, etc.).

- 2 Which factors are most important to you when choosing a place to live, work or study?

VIDEO

- 2 2.1.1 Watch the video interview with Dr Vaiva Kalnikaitė about her company, Dovetailed. Tick (✓) the five reasons she says Cambridge is a good location for her business.

- | | |
|--|---|
| <input type="checkbox"/> cheap location | <input type="checkbox"/> can work with the university |
| <input type="checkbox"/> international city | <input type="checkbox"/> salaries lower than other places |
| <input type="checkbox"/> can work with other companies | <input type="checkbox"/> nice place to live |
| <input type="checkbox"/> good public services (schools, hospitals, etc.) | <input type="checkbox"/> easy to travel to London |

- 3 Watch the video again and answer the questions.

- 1 When did Dr Kalnikaitė start her company?
- 2 Which company did she work for as an intern in Cambridge?
- 3 What help does she get from her business contacts? funding / products / advice
- 4 What help does she get from Judge Business School? funding / products / advice
- 5 How long does it take Dr Kalnikaitė to get to work?
- 6 How long does it take to get to London by train? And by car?

- 4 Based on what you saw in the video, would you like to live and work in a city like Cambridge? What would you like most? What would you like least?

NIKKEI
ASIAN REVIEW

JUSTINA LEE, Nikkei staff writer

Singapore is creating an eco-tourism hub* with five wildlife parks in Mandai, in the northern part of the country. Mandai is already home to the Singapore Zoo, the Night Safari and the River Safari, which opened in 2014. The famous Jurong Bird Park in the southwestern side of the country is now 'too small'. It will soon relocate to a site in Mandai, which is 'big enough' for the 5,000 birds that come from 400 species. In addition the new Rainforest Park will open in a few years. Within the hub, there will also be conservation projects for endangered species.

Singapore is a stopover for visitors going to other parts of Asia or travelling from Europe to Australia. Most holidaymakers feel three or four days is 'enough time' to see the country. The government wants to attract tourists to less visited parts of the city and get them to stay longer. It hopes the Mandai project will receive more than 10 million visitors each year.

Luxury resort operator Banyan Tree will open its eco-resort with around 400 rooms in Mandai by 2023. Apart from the standard and family rooms, visitors will also be able to stay in treehouses and cabins that will provide a unique experience.

Visitors can also go on nature walks. The government wants Singapore to offer more than the usual shopping and dining experiences to attract tourists. Today there is 'too much competition' from online shopping and bigger destinations in Asia.

Seshan Ramaswami, associate professor of marketing education at Singapore Management University, said the Mandai project and Banyan Tree resort will appeal to travellers who want 'to experience nature in a sophisticated urban environment.'

Grammar enough and too

- ★ 4 Look at the underlined phrases (1–4) in the article. Match them with the meanings (a–d).

- a it is as big as it needs to be c it is not as big as it needs to be b it is more than needed or wanted d it is a good amount of time to do what is needed or wanted

1 Great theme park with enough attractions for all ages!

- ★ 5 Look at these comments on a review site about a theme park. Which visitors were satisfied? Which visitors were not? Why?

2 There are too many people in summer! It's too hot to queue for hours.

3 A day isn't long enough to do and see everything. Fantastic!

4 Too many shops and not enough rides!

5 My children weren't tall enough to go on the best rides.

- 6 Look at the underlined phrases in the article and the sentences in Exercise 5. Choose the correct options.

- 1 (not) adjective / noun + enough 4 too many + countable / uncountable noun
2 (not) enough + adjective / noun 5 too much + countable / uncountable noun
3 too + adjective / noun

→ page 119 See Grammar reference: enough and too

- 7 Put the words in the correct order to complete the sentences.

- 1 This office _____ for six people. 4 There _____ to finish the presentation.
enough / big / isn't time / wasn't / enough
2 The station _____ to walk. 5 There are _____ waiting.
too / is / far customers / many / too
3 Are there _____ everyone? 6 It's _____ for one person.
attractions / for / enough too / work / much

- 8A Complete the dialogue with (not) enough, too, too many and too much.

- A: Is there ¹ _____ space in this room for the meeting?
B: Yes, but I think there are ² _____ chairs.
A: You're right! I'll move some next door.
B: And it's ³ _____ hot in here, isn't it? Let's open the windows.
A: Oh no! There's ⁴ _____ noise from outside. I'll put the air conditioning on.
B: OK! I see there are ⁵ _____ glasses. I'll get some more from the kitchen.
A: Is there ⁶ _____ time to make some photocopies?
B: Yes! We have lots of time. It's still ⁷ _____ early for people to arrive.

- B 2.01 Listen and check your answers to Exercise 8A.

Speaking and writing

- 9 Work in pairs or small groups. What would you say in these situations? Use too and (not) enough.

1 You went to bed at 2 a.m. last night and got up at 7 a.m. this morning. You are having difficulties concentrating on your work/studies now.

2 You arrived late for lunch in the canteen. There was one person serving a long queue of customers. The only dessert option was apples. All the tables were occupied or had dirty plates on them.

- 10 Choose one of these options. Write 80–100 words and use too and (not) enough.
1) Write an email complaining to the canteen manager at work. Explain some recent problems with the canteen. 2) Write a short online review for a tourist attraction (e.g. a park or museum), hotel or restaurant.

BUSINESS SKILLS Starting a meeting

Lesson outcome

Learners are able to use a variety of expressions to open meetings.

Lead-in 1A In pairs, discuss the questions.

- 1 What kind of meetings do you attend at your place of work or study?
 - 2 What topics do you usually discuss during meetings in your place of work or study?
 - 3 Are your meetings always successful? Why? / Why not?
- B Look at the list of reasons why meetings are sometimes unsuccessful. Discuss whether you agree or disagree, and why. Add two or three more reasons.
- 1 The meeting doesn't have a clear purpose.
 - 2 Some people are not invited to the meeting.
 - 3 The chairperson has no control over who speaks, or for how long.
 - 4 People are not prepared for the meeting.

C Discuss your ideas in Exercise 1B with another pair. What can make meetings more successful?

Listening 2A Josh and Samia are discussing the next staff meeting. Before you listen, match the words and phrases (1–6) with the correct definitions (a–f).

WRITING

Short communications

Lesson outcome

Learners can communicate by text message, write short emails and use abbreviations and shortened forms appropriately.

Lead-in

1A Read the messages between an estate agent and his secretary and answer the questions.

- What is the problem?
- Why does Jeff, the estate agent, want to contact his client, Dana, urgently?

Hi Jeff. Where are you?

Waiting outside Duke St offices for Dana Matthews.

FYI Dana sent email last night to cancel. She's in Rome. Didn't you see it?

No. She needs to see offices ASAP. Other companies interested, appointment times TBC. Emailing her now.

Are you coming back now?

Yes. With you in 20.

B Read the email reply to Jeff from Dana. What does she want to do?

Hi Jeff,

Thanks for your email and sorry I had to cancel our meeting today. I'm working in Rome at the moment. Back tomorrow, ETA 1800 hrs, so can we rearrange the appointment for Thurs? About 4 p.m.? I'm WFH that day and Duke Street is very close to my apartment.

I hope this is OK for you.

COMMUNICATION SKILLS Solving workflow problems

Lesson outcome

Learners are aware of different decision-making styles and can use a range of expressions to facilitate a decision-making meeting.

Lead-in 1A In pairs, discuss which of the following people create the biggest problems for others at work.

- 1 People who don't answer their email.
- 2 People who don't return phone calls.
- 3 People who don't meet deadlines.
- 4 People who don't work well in teams.

workflow (noun) – the steps people in a work-group need to take to complete a task successfully and on schedule

B Read the definition of workflow. In pairs, discuss what kind of workflow problems the people in Exercise 1A can cause. The following phrases may help you.

miss deadlines waste time fall behind schedule hold things/people up

VIDEO 2A 3.3.1 Watch Thiago explaining a problem he's having to Azra and answer the questions.

- 1 What is Thiago worried about? Why?
- 2 What does Azra suggest Thiago should do? Does it seem like good advice?
- 3 How did Shaun react the last time Thiago had a similar problem?

B Why might it not be a good idea for Thiago to avoid Shaun?

Video A 3.3.2 3A Watch Shaun and Thiago discussing the problem. Answer the questions.

- 1 Who asks for the meeting – Thiago or Shaun? How does this give him an advantage in the conversation?
- 2 Thiago tries to explain why his report is late. Does Shaun a) reject his explanations as excuses or b) listen and try to think of ways to help?
- 3 Does Shaun blame Thiago for creating a workflow problem?
- 4 How do Shaun and Thiago suggest the report can be finished? Do they agree on how to do this?
- 5 Who is happier with the final outcome of the meeting?

B What could Thiago and Shaun do differently to get a better outcome?

Video B 3.3.3

C Watch a different version of the conversation and answer the same questions you answered in Exercise 3A.

4A Think about the two versions of the meeting you just watched. When someone, like Thiago, is causing workflow problems for others in their team, which of the following questions is the most important to ask?

- 1 What's going wrong?
- 2 Whose fault is it?
- 3 How can we fix it?

B Can the other questions in Exercise 4A sometimes be useful, too? If so, when?

5 3.3.4 Watch the Conclusions section of the video and compare the advice with your answers in Exercise 4.

Reflection

6 Do you focus more on problems or solutions when you make decisions in life and at work? Would you like to change your approach? What steps could you take to do this?

Functional language Solving problems

a Get the person's attention.

b Check he/she is free to talk.

c Ask about progress.

7 The diagram on the left shows three steps for asking someone about their progress with a task. Match 1–6 below with the correct step (a–c).

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 1 Have you got a moment? | 4 Do you have a minute? |
| 2 How are you doing with that report? | 5 Any progress with that report? |
| 3 Just the person I was looking for! | 6 Ah, there you are! |

8A Use phrases from the box to complete the sentences.

How about I'll see Let me What else What if Why don't I

- _____ deal with Accounts.
- _____ if I can get [someone] to share some of your workload.
- _____ can we do to get this report finished?
- _____ I bring in [someone] to help you out?
- _____ asking [someone] to help you with some of the figures?
- _____ just write an executive summary of the main points?

B Use the same phrases from Exercise 8A to make two more sentences.

- | | | |
|---------|----------------------------------|---|
| 1 _____ | a see what I can do. | b try and get you some IT support. |
| 2 _____ | a if we can increase the budget. | b if there's any flexibility in the budget. |
| 3 _____ | a can I do to help? | b do we need to do? |
| 4 _____ | a we make the deadline later? | b I give you an extension? |
| 5 _____ | a rethinking the schedule? | b adding more people to the project team? |
| 6 _____ | a get you some help? | b give you an assistant? |

C Match the responses with the correct suggestions in Exercises 8A and 8B. Some match more than one suggestion.

- Thanks, I'm not great with numbers!
- Someone to assist with the paperwork would be a big help.
- Having a couple more people on the team would really speed things up.
- Good, I'm having problems with some of the software.

TASK

9 Work in pairs. Read the information and decide which of you is Speaker 1 (S1) and Speaker 2 (S2) in each situation. Roleplay the situations.

Situation 1 S1 is giving an important conference presentation in Montreal six days from now. Ten days ago S1 asked S2 to prepare some slides for the presentation. The deadline for getting the slides ready is tomorrow, to give S1 time to practise the presentation. Unfortunately, S2 is having problems, so he/she needs to find a solution as quickly as possible.
For details, S1 look at page 133 and S2 look at page 139.

Situation 2 S2 has to complete a sales report six days from now. Ten days ago S2 asked S1 to produce performance charts for each of the company's sales units. The deadline for doing this is tomorrow to give S2 time to add the charts to the report. Unfortunately, S1 is having problems, so he/she needs to find a solution as quickly as possible.

10 When you have finished, discuss how the meetings went. How effectively did you:

- avoid blaming anyone? • avoid making excuses? • develop a plan of action? • find out what the basic problems are?
- remain calm? • suggest possible solutions?

BUSINESS SKILLS Presenting results

Lesson outcome

Learners are aware of the importance of structuring a presentation and can use a range of phrases to present results in an organised way.

Lead-in 1 Work in pairs. Read the advice to business presenters and discuss the questions.

Giving a presentation is like taking your audience on a journey. To successfully reach your destination, you need to make sure nobody gets lost on the way! So provide them with a clear map of your talk at the start and always tell them where you're going as you speak – moving on, going back, changing direction. Think of it as GPS for presenters!

- 1 How is a presentation like a journey?
- 2 What do you need to do at the start of your presentation?

- 2 Who is going to talk about the following: Carl or Inés?
 - a customer satisfaction ratings
 - b in-store interviews
 - c focus group results
- 3 When can the audience ask questions: during or after the talk?
- 4 Where did the data for the customer satisfaction ratings come from?

C In pairs, discuss how clear Carl's overview of the presentation was, and why.

3A 3.06 Listen to the next part of the presentation and answer the questions.

- 1 Why was it necessary to do in-store interviews?
- 2 A happy customer recommends the store to how many people?
- 3 How many unhappy customers leave feedback? How many don't?

B Listen again and raise your hand every time the presenter pauses for more than a couple of seconds. Why are these pauses helpful?

7A Work in groups of four. Two of you should read the information on Presentation A below. The other two should look at Presentation B on page 127.

B Read your information and decide who will be Presenter 1 and Presenter 2. Take a few minutes to prepare your presentation. Make some simple slides if you like.

PRESENTATION A

Presenter 1

Introduction and overview

- 1 Introduce yourself and Presenter 2.
- 2 Introduce the subject of your talk: 'A comparison of customer satisfaction ratings before and after providing our sales team with people skills training in Q2.'
- 3 Say who will talk about Parts 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Part 1: Satisfaction ratings for Q1

😊 61% 😐 25% 😞 14% (not great!)

Estimated no. of customers not leaving feedback: 47% (we needed more data on this)

Part 2: Customer research in Q1

- 1 72% of customers who didn't leave feedback were neutral 😐 or dissatisfied 😞
- 2 91% just wanted simple, friendly advice about the products – not too technical!

Close and hand over to Presenter 2.

Presenter 2 Thank Presenter 1 and move on.

Part 3: People skills training in Q2

Three four-hour face-to-face training sessions:

- 1 How to explain things in simple English
 - 2 Dealing with difficult customers
 - 3 Building a relationship with the customer
- Plus 6 weeks of M-learning using mobile phones – very popular with our sales team!

Part 4: Satisfaction ratings for Qs 3–4

😊 79% 😐 15% 😞 6% (very good news!)

Estimated no. of customers not leaving feedback: 16% (significantly better)

Summary and conclusion

- 1 Training programme was extremely successful.
 - 2 Customer satisfaction was up by almost a third.
 - 3 Satisfaction ratings are now more accurate.
- Close and thank audience.

C Take turns to give your presentation to the other pair.

D When you have finished, discuss how the presentations went. How effectively did you:

- introduce yourself and your co-presenter? • introduce the subject of your talk? • move on from one point to the next?
- give the audience an overview of your talk? • use pauses for effect? • hand over to your partner?
- sum up? • end your talk?

B Work in pairs. Talk about the work patterns of some of your family and friends. Use words from Exercises 4A, 5 and 6 and the models in Exercise 7A to help you.

PROJECT: Researching work patterns

8A Work in pairs. Research some of the work patterns in your country. Follow these steps.

- Choose two or three different companies in which you can interview staff.
- Find out about the typical working patterns in the companies. Choose ideas from the box to help you and use your own ideas.

flexible hours / fixed schedule full-time/part-time jobs interns permanent employees / temporary workers shifts working day

- Which company has the best/worst work patterns? Why?

B When you finish your research, work in groups with students from other pairs. Exchange information about your research. Which companies and industries have the best/worst work patterns?

Executives at work

Lesson outcome

Learners can use the Present Perfect Simple to refer to personal experiences in the past.

Lead-in 1A Which of these things do you do on an average day? What else do you usually do at work or at university and in your free time? Make a list.

'escape' at lunchtime get to work/class early give presentations have meetings listen to music read a book sit in heavy traffic talk to colleagues use public transport

B Work in pairs. Compare your lists and ask each other some questions.

A: What time do you get to work? B: About 8 o'clock.

Reading 2 Work in pairs. Read an interview with a businesswoman and follow the steps below.

Student A: Read the article and complete exercises 2 and 3 on page 132.

Student B: Read the interview with Anne Kiem on this page and put the questions in the correct place. Two questions are not used.

- | | |
|--|--|
| a What is your favourite book? | d What is the best advice you have ever received? |
| b What is an average day at work like? | e What is the worst job you have ever had? |
| c What is the biggest lesson you have learnt? | |

3 Student B: read your article again and answer the questions.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1 What was Kiem's first profession after university? | 4 How does she relax during the working day? |
| 2 Why does she get to work early? | 5 What question does she say is important to ask? |
| 3 What does an 'open-door' policy mean? | 6 What was difficult about her worst job? |

4A Tell your partner in your own words about the businesswoman you read about. What similarities and differences between Anne Kiem and Kathryn Bishop can you find? Use the ideas in the box or your own ideas.

Women in Business: Anne Kiem

Anne Kiem is Chief Executive of the Association of Business Schools in London. Ms Kiem grew up in Australia and then studied to become a teacher and taught maths in London before moving into finance. She has worked at Barclays Bank and the Institute of Financial Services. In her free time, Ms Kiem enjoys listening to live music.

- ¹ _____
I like to be at my desk by 8 a.m., partly because the tube is less busy at that time, but also because it gives me some quiet time to prepare for the day ahead. I have an open-door policy and anyone can come and speak to me about anything. I want to know what is going on. It means that anything might happen, but I like it like that. I also go and talk to people to see what is going on. I escape the building at lunchtime when I can. I think it is important to try to take some time out during the day to help me not get too stressed by what is going on.

- ² _____
Perhaps the biggest is to never be afraid to ask the question 'Why?' Some of the most intelligent and successful people I know don't mind asking that question over and over again. So many things are as they are because that is the way they have always been.

- ³ _____
Delivering newspapers – I was nineteen, studying at university in Australia. We had to do it at 3 a.m. before the traffic became too heavy. It wasn't difficult work, but to then go off to university and study maths was a bit strange, and I admit I sometimes found it difficult to stay awake in lectures.

6 Look at these extracts from the interviews. Answer the questions.

- a Anne Kiem has worked at Barclays Bank.
 b What is the biggest lesson you have learnt?
 c What is the worst job you have ever had?
 d It has taught me to look at a problem in many different ways.
 e ... a book that has helped me work in boardrooms ...
 f What is the best advice you have ever received?
 1 Do we know exactly when Anne Kiem worked at Barclay's Bank?
 2 How are the verbs learnt, had and taught different from worked, helped and received?
 3 In extracts c and f, which word can we use in questions to mean 'at any time'?

COMMUNICATION SKILLS Making group decisions

Lesson outcome

Learners are aware of different decision-making approaches and can use a range of expressions to facilitate a decision-making meeting.

Lead-in

1A The diagram on the left shows four approaches to decision-making from the most hands-on (I, the boss, decide) to the most hands-off (I leave it to you, my team, to decide). In pairs, discuss which approach is best when:

- 1 I just need your input before going ahead with my decision.
- 2 there's nothing much to discuss.
- 3 I trust you to make the decision without any input from me.
- 4 I want to share full responsibility for the decision with you.
- 5 I've decided, but I don't want to leave you out of the process completely.
- 6 I am the only one with all the relevant information.

B In small groups, discuss some of the pros and cons of each style.

VIDEO

2A 4.3.1 Watch the conversation between Shaun and Orla and answer the questions.

- 1 How was Shaun's meeting with Léana?
- 2 How does Shaun describe 'reverse coaching'?
- 3 What does Orla think of the idea?
- 4 What do the junior staff think about the idea?

B How do you think the meeting will go? What could go wrong?

Video A 4.3.2

3A Watch Shaun briefing the junior staff and answer the questions.

- 1 Which approach to decision-making from Exercise 1A does Shaun take?
- 2 How does Shaun 'sell' his idea to the group? Are they persuaded?
- 3 Who makes the following points? Write in the names Ethan (E), Jasmine (J) and Thiago (T).
 - a We're too busy for this. _____
 - b We're not trained coaches. _____
 - c Can we go away and think about it? _____
 - d Will we get paid extra? _____
- 4 How does the meeting end? Is it a satisfactory conclusion?

B What do you think is the main thing Shaun did wrong?

Video B 4.3.3

4 Watch Shaun taking a different approach and answer the questions.

- 1 Which approach to decision-making from Exercise 1A does Shaun take?
- 2 How does he respond to the group's concerns?
- 3 How can Shaun deal with the concerns that Thiago and Jasmine have?
- 4 What two new ideas come out of the meeting?

5 Compare Shaun's approach and the group's response in Videos A and B. In what way is the end of the meeting in each version a) the same b) different?

6 4.3.4 Watch the Conclusions section of the video and compare the advice with your answers in Exercises 3B and 5.

Reflection

7 Think about how you make decisions that affect others. Which approach(es) to decision-making are you most comfortable with? In pairs, discuss how you could develop your skills.

Functional language Facilitating a decision-making meeting

8A Look at the expressions for encouraging people to take part in a meeting. Put the words in brackets into the correct order to complete the sentences.

- 1 I'd like _____ before we finalise anything. (input / to / your / get)
- 2 So, _____ think? (everybody / does / what)
- 3 Thiago, you're our tech guru, what _____ this? (on / are / thoughts / your)
- 4 Mike, _____ so far. (you / anything / said / haven't)
- 5 I'd like _____ think. (what / hear / to / you)
- 6 Jasmine, what _____ Mike's idea? (think / you / of / do)
- 7 Does anyone have anything else _____ before we move on? (like / they'd / add / to)
- 8 Right, well, _____, everybody. (input / thanks / your / for)

B Which expressions in Exercise 8A can you complete using the following phrases? You can use one of the phrases more than once.

to say do you think about to hear your views to know what you we haven't heard much from you

9 What word will complete all three expressions from the meeting? They all mean 'I'm not sure I agree with you, but you may be right'.

OK, it's a fair / Hmm, I take your / Mm, you may have a _____.

10 Match the beginnings (1–3) with the endings (a–c) to make three expressions to delay making a decision.

- | | |
|----------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 1 Let's not rush | a an immediate decision on this. |
| 2 Can we go away and think | b into anything. |
| 3 We don't have to take | c about it? |

11 Work in groups. Take turns to lead a short discussion about one of these ideas.

- 1 A chill-out room where employees can relax and reflect.
- 2 Free drink-and-snack machines for all employees.

12A Work in groups of three. You are going to take turns to lead a meeting to discuss one of the proposals below using the meeting plan and expressions from Exercises 8–10.

1 Fitness tracking

Proposal to monitor employees' fitness and stress levels. Look at page 133 for details.

2 Third-agers

Proposal to make better use of the experience of older managers. Look at page 136 for details.

3 The human cloud

Proposal to employ a network of remote workers. Look at page 137 for details.

TASK

MEETING PLAN

Outline the proposal.

Ask for input.

Discuss the pros and cons.

Make or delay a final decision.

B Take a few minutes to prepare. Then hold each meeting in turn.

C When you have finished, discuss how the meetings went. Did everyone get a chance to speak? What could you do better next time? Share your experience with the class.

BUSINESS SKILLS Phoning to change arrangements

Lesson outcome

Learners can use a range of expressions to make or change arrangements and give colleagues updates on the phone.

Lead-in

1A These days, a lot of business is done online. In pairs, look at the following situations and decide if it's better to phone or send an email.

- 1 You want to invite a group of people to a teleconference.
- 2 You need to reschedule an appointment at the last minute.
- 3 You need to ask a colleague about some figures.
- 4 You just missed a call from an important client.
- 5 You're stuck in traffic on your way to a job interview.

B Look at the situations in Exercise 1A where you decided to phone. Do they have anything in common? Compare ideas with the rest of the class.

Listening

2A 4.03 Listen to Lou calling her colleague, Ian, about an appointment she made with him last week.

- 1 What date did Lou and Ian have an arrangement to meet?
- 2 Why is that date now not possible?
- 3 Does Lou want to make the appointment sooner or later? Why?
- 4 Who's available on the following dates?
 - a Wed 10, morning: Lou / Ian
 - b Wed 10, afternoon: Lou / Ian
 - c Thu 11, afternoon: Lou / Ian
 - d Fri 12, afternoon: Lou / Ian
- 5 What does Ian offer to do to help?

B In their conversation, Lou apologises for changing the meeting time, while Ian tries to be helpful. Listen again and note down examples of what they say.

3A 4.04 Ian immediately calls his assistant, James. Listen and note down the changes they make to Ian's schedule.

Going cashless

Lesson outcome

Learners can use vocabulary related to the economy, money and personal finance.

Lead-in 1 Tick (✓) the methods of payment you've used in the past month.

bank transfer cash credit card debit card mobile phone payment online payment store card other payment method

2 Which type of payment do you use the most often? Which do you use the least often? Why?

VIDEO

3 You are going to watch a video about cashless payments in India. Before you watch, answer the questions.

- 1 Why do you think some governments want people to stop using cash?
 - a To save money – making notes and coins is expensive.
 - b Because it's difficult to steal electronic money – and it can't get lost.
 - c Almost everyone has a mobile phone – cashless payments are becoming easier for everyone.
 - d To get more money for the government – electronic payments are easier to track.
 - e Your own ideas.
- 2 Could you do these things in your country without cash? Why? / Why not?

buy street food buy vegetables lend money to a friend pay for a taxi pay in a restaurant

4 5.1.1 Watch the video. Which ideas from Exercise 3 does it mention?

5 Watch the video again. Choose the correct option in italics to complete the sentences.

- 1 The reporter is going shopping without money / cash.
- 2 Food sellers often pay for their goods at the time of delivery / on credit.
- 3 The reporter paid for his food by credit card / mobile phone payment.

5.2 Consumer spending

Lesson outcome

Learners can use the first conditional to talk about likely situations in the future.

Lead-in 1A Look at the pie chart. Is your own spending similar to this?

B Match the living expenses in the box with a category in the pie chart. Use one of the expenses twice.

bicycle bus ticket business suit cinema ticket mortgage payment meals at work paying a car loan paying interest on a credit card bill pension payment putting money in the bank for emergencies rent

2 What would you like to spend more on? What would you like to spend less on?

Listening 3A ▶ 5.01 Listen to It all adds up!, a podcast for consumers on the topic of money. Tick (✓) the topics they speak about.

- a How to borrow money for emergency expenses
- b Suggestions for reducing living expenses
- c Information about how most consumers save
- d What will happen to interest rates over the next few months
- e News about currency exchange rates
- f Tips for changing money when travelling abroad

B Read about the expression add up. Why is It all adds up! a good name for a money podcast?

To add up means calculate the total of several numbers. For example, $1 + 2 + 3 = 6$.

The expression It all adds up means that lots of small amounts make a large total. For example, if you save €5 per week, you have €260 after one year.

The expression It doesn't add up means that something doesn't make sense. For example, 'I don't understand how I spent so much money! It doesn't add up!'

4 Listen again. Choose the correct option in italics to complete the advice and information from the podcast.

- 1 It's a good idea to walk / take your lunch to work.
- 2 Don't buy things with your credit card / that you don't need.
- 3 Buy a used car / cinema tickets online.
- 4 In the next few months, interest rates / borrowing will go down.
- 5 Mortgages / Holidays will become more expensive.
- 6 Now is a good time to visit China / buy Chinese electronics.

Grammar First conditional

6A Read the sentences from the podcast and answer the questions.

Part a	Part b
If interest rates increase ,	borrowing will go down .
If you take your lunch to work,	you will save hundreds a year.

- Which part of the sentence (a or b) is a condition?
- Which part of the sentence (a or b) is a possible result in the future?

B Look at the structure and complete the rule with the underlined words in Exercise 6A.

We use the first conditional to talk about ¹ _____ because of ² _____.

C Look at the sentences below. Complete the two possible structures.

If interest rates increase, borrowing will go down. ¹ _____ + Present Simple, ² _____ + infinitiveBorrowing will go down if interest rates increase. will + ³ _____ if + ⁴ _____

7 Complete the first conditional sentences with the correct form of the verbs in brackets.

- We _____ (save) more money if I don't have to spend much on transport.
- If you _____ (not start) saving for a deposit, you'll never buy a house.
- They'll pay less for their mortgage if interest rates _____ (go down).
- If I _____ (sell) my car, I'll buy a really nice bicycle.
- He'll save a lot of money on food if he _____ (stop) eating in restaurants every lunchtime.
- If she continues using her credit card, she _____ (have) a lot to pay back next month.

| 1 If I want to earn more money at work, | a if the weather is fine. |
| 2 I'll walk to work or class tomorrow | b if I need to spend less money. |
| 3 If I have more money in the future, | c I'll need to improve my English. |
| 4 I'll stop using my credit card | d I won't buy a new one, I'll buy a second-hand one. |
| 5 I won't have any more debt | e I'll move to a bigger house or flat. |
| 6 If I buy a car, | f if I pay off my credit card. |

B Work in pairs. Are the sentences in Exercise 8A true for you?

C Make first conditional sentences about yourself.

I'll save money if ...If I need to borrow money, ...If I want to go out tonight and not spend too much money, ...If I get a new job, ...I'll buy a new car if ...If I need some financial advice, ...

COMMUNICATION SKILLS Negotiating team roles

Lesson outcome

Learners can negotiate their roles in a project team and use a range of expressions to state their preferences.

Lead-in 1A The chart below shows three different zones of ability. Which zone are you in for each of the skills below? Write the numbers in the chart.

- 1 planning projects
- 2 working with figures
- 3 personal communication
- 4 leading teams
- 5 using technology
- 6 public speaking
- 7 doing research
- 8 managing your time
- 9 making decisions

B Good teams need people with different skills in them. Compare your chart with other people in your class. Would you make a good team?

VIDEO 2A 5.3.1 Watch Orla and Shaun discussing a project meeting and answer the questions.

client pitch (noun) – a presentation you give to make a customer (or potential customer) want to buy your product or service

- 1 How often has Orla's team worked together before?
- 2 What is the purpose of today's meeting?
- 3 What is Orla trying to decide?
- 4 What advice does Shaun give her?

B What do you think of Shaun's advice? Can you see problems with it?

Video A 5.3.2

3A Watch the meeting and answer the questions.

- 1 Does Orla take Shaun's advice? Are the responses from the team:
☐ mostly positive? ☐ mostly negative? ☐ mixed (both positive and negative)?
- 2 Who gets the following team roles, Alex (Al), Azra (Az), Jasmine (J) or Thiago (T)?
pitch leader ____ tech support ____ lead presenter ____ learning designer ____
- 3 Why does Orla decide on the roles in question 2?
- 4 What are the problems with the roles for each team member?

B What went wrong in the meeting? How could it be improved?

Video B 5.3.3

4A Watch a more positive version of the meeting and answer the questions.

- 1 Why does Orla think the team members can decide their own roles?
- 2 Why doesn't Azra think the pitch is a good opportunity to develop her presentation skills?
- 3 Why does Orla think Jasmine can manage the learning design role?
- 4 Why might Thiago be a good presenter?
- 5 What team role changes are made by the end of the meeting?

B How was the team response in this meeting different from the previous version? What did the team do differently? Think about:
• politeness. • suggestions not instructions. • ways of saying 'no'.

5 5.3.4 Watch the Conclusions section of the video. Compare the advice with your answers in Exercises 3B and 4B.

| 1 Is that OK | a and I could swap roles. |
| 2 I was thinking you | b don't mind. |
| 3 How would you feel | c could head up the project. |
| 4 If you | d with everyone? |
| 5 Perhaps Azra | e then that's fine with me. |
| 6 If you're both happy to exchange roles, | f about that? |
| 7 I'd like you | g to be the learning designer. |
| 8 How would you like | h to do the PowerPoint for us again? |

B Put the expressions in Exercise 7A into the correct section in the table.

Checking agreement	Making suggestions

8A Use two or more phrases to say 'no' politely.

I don't mind, but I'd prefer not to do it again if I have a choice.

B When you're ready, politely ask your partner to do one of the tasks on the grid.

- If you ask your partner to do one of his/her comfort zone tasks, you get 2 points and he/she has to agree to do it.
- If you ask your partner to do one of his/her danger zone tasks, you lose 1 point and he/she has to say 'no' politely, explain why he/she's no good at this task, and suggest somebody else for the task (e.g. another class member).
- If you ask your partner to do one of his/her challenge zone tasks, for 2 extra points you must explain why it would be good for him/her to learn how to do it.
- The person with the most points after ten minutes is the winner.

C Discuss how well you both decided who should do each task. Play again if you like, but this time faster.

BUSINESS SKILLS Presenting facts and figures

Lesson outcome

Learners can use a range of expressions to talk about exact and approximate figures and present statistical information effectively.

Lead-in

1A Look at three different ways of presenting the same information. Which, for you, is the most effective? Why?

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 1 There are a lot of | } women business owners in the USA. |
| 2 There are 11.6 million | |
| 3 There are almost 12 million | |

B In pairs, look at the following statements. Are they more or less effective than the statements in Exercise 1A? Why?

- Approximately one out of every fourteen American women is the owner of a business.
- The number of women business owners in the USA is greater than the whole population of Sweden, Austria or Switzerland.

2A Match the exact figures (1–7) with the approximate figures (a–g).

- | | |
|----------|---|
| 1 0.95% | a roughly a quarter |
| 2 23.5% | b almost one in three |
| 3 52% | c around two out of (every) five |
| 4 39.4% | d nearly three quarters |
| 5 9.867% | e under one percent |
| 6 73.9% | f over half |
| 7 32.75% | g about ten percent |

B Label the expressions in bold in Exercise 2A according to their meaning using the following icons.

more than > less than < approximately ≈

C You can put the words 'just' and 'well' before 'over' and 'under'. Which means:

- a by a large amount? b by a small amount?

Listening

3A ▶ 5.02 Liz is a Marketing Consultant to the retail banking industry. Listen to the first part of her presentation to a group of clients and answer the questions.

PROJECT: Organising a team

10A Work in pairs or small groups. Read the email from the CEO of a software development company to all employees. Make a list of things that need to be organised for tomorrow's meeting.

Emergency – Surprise visit from XYQ Global

We've just learnt that Cécile Durant and her team from XYQ Global in Paris are going to be in Singapore tomorrow and they would like to visit us here at ProgramsPro from 11.30 to 1.30. We were not expecting this, but as you know, they are one of the most important clients for our accounting software, and they are unhappy with our product support. We hope to improve the relationship. This is also a great opportunity to give a formal presentation of our new products – we really need to explain these in great detail. We have about 20 hours to plan a two-hour meeting that will include lunch. I'll put together an emergency team to get everything ready. I'll contact everyone shortly!

B What will the ProgramsPro staff who attend the meeting with XYQ Global need to do? What skills should they have?

C Look at page 139 to see the people the CEO has chosen to take part in the planning of the meeting. Only two of them will actually attend the meeting with the CEO and XYQ Global. Decide who should attend and give planning jobs to the other three.

A: I don't think the Engineer should go to the meeting. She's afraid of public speaking.

B: OK. But she could explain the products to the Sales Manager before the meeting.

C: I agree.

D Make a schedule for the two-hour meeting. Decide what each part of the meeting will be about, how long it will last, and who will be responsible for that part of the meeting.

FT

Get fit or be fired trying: the rise of sport at work

Phil Smith, Chairman of Cisco UK and Ireland, started doing triathlons about 10 years ago. He wanted to do something to challenge himself and improve his health. 'It wasn't part of any sort of plan, but I did my first and really enjoyed it.'

5 So he signed up for more events. Then he began to think about how to inspire people from different parts of the organisation to work together to get fitter. In 2016, in partnership with other companies, Cisco set up its own
10 team triathlon.

A lot of companies have similar ideas. Björn Borg, the Swedish sportswear maker, closes its head office every Friday for an hour of exercise for everyone in the company. The sports events are also social, giving employees 15 somewhere to get together and chat. For Brian Carroll, a New Yorker who plays for his company's baseball team, sport is a chance to meet other people in the firm. 'We've become friends outside of work. I enjoy conversations about different challenges in the workplace.'

More companies are encouraging employees to take part in team sports. In a triathlon, racers swim, cycle and run.

20 However, the result isn't the same everywhere. When one team in an accounting firm went running a couple of times a week together to improve teamwork, it increased competition and reduced cooperation – which wasn't good for the team.

25 Does being good at sports make you good at business? Carl Cederström, associate professor of organisation studies at Stockholm Business School, says 'There's tonnes of evidence that suggests if you work out, you get healthier and more resilient*', which certainly helps people do their 30 jobs. But it doesn't always develop other qualities that someone in business needs. 'What does it mean to be a good executive? We don't really know.' Many great leaders are not good at sport.

COMMUNICATION SKILLS Supporting a colleague

Lesson outcome

Learners can support a colleague who has had a disappointment at work and use a range of expressions to encourage and motivate him/her.

Lead-in 1A How good are you at understanding and sharing the feelings of other people? Take the quiz below. Then check your score on page 129.

Answer 'Yes', 'No' or 'It depends' to the following questions:

- 1 Do you usually know when someone is not saying what they really think?
- 2 Do you generally avoid having emotional conversations?
- 3 Do people often tell you you're a good listener?
- 4 Do you find it hard to like someone who has very different views from you?
- 5 If you can see someone is unhappy, do you often want to help?

B Ask the person with the highest score in the class the question on page 131.

VIDEO 2A 6.3.1 Watch Jasmine sharing some news with Thiago and answer the questions.

- 1 What is Jasmine doing when Thiago brings her a coffee?
- 2 Who is the email from? Why is it so important to her?
- 3 What does the email say? How does Jasmine react?

B In pairs, discuss what Thiago a) should say, and b) should not say to Jasmine.

Video A 6.3.2

3A Watch both Thiago and Azra trying to say the right thing to Jasmine and answer the questions.

- 1 Number the things below in the order Thiago does them.
 - a He tries to see the positive side. ☐
 - b He pretends it isn't important. ☐
 - c He changes the subject. ☐
 - d He says he's sorry. ☐
 - e He says something positive about Jasmine. ☐
- 2 How successful is he? Which of the things in question 1 works best?
- 3 How is Azra's approach different from Thiago's? Is it more successful?

B In pairs, discuss what Thiago and Azra are doing wrong.

Video B 6.3.3

4A Watch Jasmine talking with Alex and answer the questions.

- 1 How does Alex start the conversation positively?
- 2 What does Alex say about the conference organisers' feedback? What effect does this have on Jasmine?
- 3 What personal information does Alex share? Why does he do this?
- 4 What positive things does Alex say about Jasmine? Is this a good idea?
- 5 What is Alex's main advice to Jasmine? How does she respond?
- 6 What's the good news at the end of their conversation?

B In pairs, discuss how Alex's approach is different from Thiago's and Azra's.

5 6.3.4 Watch the Conclusions section of the video. Compare the advice with your answers in Exercises 3B and 4B.

Reflection

6 Think about how you support people who have had a disappointment. In pairs, discuss the questions.

- 1 Whose style is closest to your own – Thiago's, Azra's or Alex's?
- 2 How could you become better at this skill? What do you need to learn?

Functional language Encouraging and motivating

7A Thiago and Azra used a lot of expressions to try to make Jasmine feel better. Choose the correct option to complete the sentences.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1 I know exactly how you feel / think! _____ | 4 You must be such / so disappointed! _____ |
| 2 Come on, it's no large / big deal! _____ | 5 That's too bad / terrible! _____ |
| 3 Look on the light / bright side. _____ | 6 Cheer off / up! _____ |

B In pairs, label each of the phrases and expressions in Exercise 7A according to their function.

I feel sorry for you. 😞 Don't worry, be happy. 😊

8 Complete some of the comments Alex made during his conversation with Jasmine using the pairs of words in the box. There is one extra pair.

| | | 9 The _____ to ask yourself is: What can I _____ from this? |
| | | 10 _____ at it this _____: now you'll be free to help me with the Ferguson pitch. |

9 In pairs, take turns to share disappointments with each other. Begin with each of the statements below and see how long you can keep the conversations going using some of the expressions in Exercises 7 and 8.

I just failed my driving test for the third time! I'm never going to pass!

I didn't get the scholarship to business school! How will I pay for it now?

My guests are arriving in half an hour and I just burnt the dinner!

My computer just died and I forgot to back up my files!

BUSINESS SKILLS
Being positive in meetings

Lesson outcome

Learners can contribute to meetings in a positive and constructive way and use a range of expressions to support and build on ideas.

Lead-in

1 In pairs, read the blog post and discuss the questions.

What makes a great team? The answer is surprisingly simple. It's the feeling among team members that it's safe to ask questions, share ideas and even make mistakes without the risk of getting negative reactions from the rest of the team. So, the message is clear. If you want to build a great team, first make it a safe place to be great in.

- 1 What makes a great team? Do you agree?
- 2 What's your best team experience? Why was it so positive?
- 3 What can a team leader do to make a team 'a safe place to be great in'?

Listening

2 6.01 Anatol is head of HR of a large insurance company. Listen to part of a meeting with his two senior recruiters and answer the questions.

- 1 What recruitment problem is the company currently having?
- 2 What has happened as a result?
- 3 What do the team think is causing the problem? Tick (✓) the correct boxes.

- | | | | |
|----------------------------|--------------------------|-------------------------|--------------------------|
| a the company's reputation | <input type="checkbox"/> | d insurance as a career | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| b the salaries | <input type="checkbox"/> | e employee benefits | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| c the size of the company | <input type="checkbox"/> | f the work culture | <input type="checkbox"/> |

3A 6.02 Listen to the end of the meeting and match the suggestions (1–5) with the responses (a–e).

- | | |
|-------------------------------|--|
| 1 Attend more careers fairs. | a No, there's no point. |
| 2 Give talks at universities. | b We don't have the budget for that! |
| 3 Produce a video promotion. | c Yeah, but we're already doing that. |
| 4 Offer training. | d No, that's a complete waste of time. |
| 5 Sponsor MBA studies. | e We tried that before and it didn't work. |

B What suggestion does Anatol make at the end of the meeting? Why?

1 When someone shares an idea, can we please say at least one positive thing about it before we say anything else?

2 Can we try to build on other people's ideas by considering the possibilities – what else can we do to make the idea even better?

3 If we can see a problem with an idea, let's not be negative. Let's ask how we could solve it.

4 Anatol decided to text his team with some 'rules' for their next meeting. Read his text on the left. Can you work out what the missing words are?

5A 6.03 Listen to part of the next meeting and number the suggestions in the correct order.

- | | | | |
|--|--------------------------|---------------------------------|--------------------------|
| a Introduce mobile advertising. | <input type="checkbox"/> | d Offer 12-month internships. | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| b Put trainees into smaller project teams. | <input type="checkbox"/> | e Provide personal coaching. | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| c Create more of a fun work culture. | <input type="checkbox"/> | f Make job offers a lot faster. | <input type="checkbox"/> |

B Compare the second meeting with the first. How have the 'rules' helped?

C Why is each suggestion in Exercise 5A a good idea? Listen again and take brief notes.

- | | |
|---------|---------|
| a _____ | d _____ |
| b _____ | e _____ |
| c _____ | f _____ |

D What two possible problems are raised in the meeting? What solutions are suggested?

7A Work in groups of 3–6. You all work in the creative department of an advertising agency in Los Angeles. Today you received the following email from your Creative Director. Read the email.

Hi team,

As you know, this year is the agency's 50th anniversary and we in the creative department are organising the celebrations. Now, we have a budget of around $150,000, but, no, we won't be spending it all on one big staff party! In fact, I see this as an opportunity to build stronger relationships throughout the year with our key clients, suppliers, possible clients and, of course, each other!

The company has grown so much in the last 50 years, so we want to do something really special. I'd like to hold a discussion meeting at 2 p.m. on Thursday 3rd. Bring your best ideas!

10A Work in pairs or small groups. Look at the three product ideas below. For each one, answer the questions.

- A water bottle with a small container on the side that can hold a key and a little money.
- A device that reads written text, such as letters or books, and 'speaks' them out loud or stores them as computer files.
- A game based on finance where users have to manage their money well.

- 1 What problem does the product solve?
- 2 What type of consumer would use the product? Think about age, men or women, location, interests, and so on.
- 3 When developing the product, how could the company test it? What type of information do you think they should try to get?
- 4 Where do you think the company could find people to test it?

B Choose one of the products above, or think of an idea of your own. Make a plan for developing, testing and launching the product. Explain:

- what the product will be used for.
- who will use it.

NIKKEI

REVIEW

At Tokyo's Henn na Hotel, robots run the show

A new hotel has opened in Tokyo's stylish Ginza district. The name – Henn na – means 'strange' in Japanese, and the hotel is indeed unique. It is run mostly by robots, and a few humans.

Here's how it works: ⁵First, guests have to give their names to a human receptionist. After that, they're asked to go to an automated kiosk where the robots say hello to them and help them to check in. Impressively, these robots speak four languages – Japanese, English, Mandarin Chinese and Korean. ¹⁰Guests don't have to say which language they speak. Cleverly, the robots decide which language to use from the guests' passports. ¹⁵Next, guests need to ²⁰ follow the robot's instructions to complete their check-in. Then they get their room key card and a receipt from the kiosk. Finally, they use the key card to open their room door.

²⁵ Guests at other Henn na Hotels can decide to use facial recognition. ³⁰ This means they don't need to use a key during their stay because they can enter their rooms by simply looking into a camera by the door.

The 98-room hotel has just seven human staff members. ³⁵ Most traditional hotels of the same size can't operate with fewer than about 30 workers. This allows the hotel to lower the price of the rooms, too.

In a competitive market, innovation is very important for attracting guests. 'Hotel operators are coming up with new types of facilities with unique characters and services to cater to the guests' lifestyle choices,' hotel industry expert Kiyoshi Tsuchiya said.

⁴⁵ There is no doubt that some people will really like this new technology and it will certainly help in a country in which the number of older people is growing fast, but a question remains: Will anyone miss the human touch in what is, after all, the hospitality industry? ⁵⁰

- 6 Gives the audience an opportunity to ask questions ☐

5 7.3.4 Watch the Conclusions section of the video and note the four points the speaker makes about giving explanations.

Reflection 6 Think about how good you are at giving explanations. In pairs, discuss how you could improve your skills.

Tip

When you give explanations, you can help the listener by speaking clearly, using sequencing words to provide structure, checking the listener has understood, giving a reason and examples, and giving the listeners opportunities to ask questions.

Functional language

Explaining a procedure clearly and effectively

7A Look at these expressions from the video. Match the beginnings (1–7) with the endings (a–g).

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------|
| 1 You start by clicking b | a enter the date. |
| 2 Then, you | b 'Create an expense report'. |
| 3 After that, | c take a photo of your receipt. |
| 4 The next step is to | d enter the expense item. |
| 5 Once you've done | e press 'Submit'. |
| 6 The last step is to | f choose the type of expense. |
| 7 When you've completed all the steps, | g that, choose your currency. |

B Put the expressions in bold from Exercise 7A in the correct place in the table.

Starting	Ordering	Finishing
	Then, you ...

C Add these expressions to the correct section of the table.

When you finish that, then ... The first thing you do is ... Next, ... Finally, ...
Once you've finished ... The last thing you do is ... To begin, (you should) ...

8A Match the underlined expressions with their function (1–4).

OK, so you start by clicking 'Create an expense report'. Do you see that? Then, you enter the expense item – like this: 'hotel bill'. After that, enter the date. Don't enter it manually, just select the 'calendar'; because it's the easiest thing to do ... Any questions so far?

BUSINESS SKILLS Dealing with technical problems

Lesson outcome

Learners can use a range of expressions to signal or deal with technical problems during online meetings.

Lead-in 1A In pairs, look at the picture and discuss the questions.

ground rules (noun) – basic rules for behaviour during a meeting that everyone agrees to at the start

- 1 Are ground rules necessary during meetings? Why? / Why not?
- 2 Who should make the ground rules? Why?
- 3 Do you use ground rules in your meetings or during your English class? Are they successful? Why? / Why not?

B Write two or three ground rules for online meetings.

Speak clearly.

Listening 2A Label the pictures with the words in the box.

blank (screen) cut out echo hang up mute button volume settings

1 _____

2 _____

4 _____

5 _____

6 _____

B 7.01 Sam's team are participating in a webinar. Before the Q&A (question and answer) session, Sam sets some ground rules. Listen and complete the rules. Compare them with your suggestions in Exercise 1B.

- 1 Give your _____ and division _____ you speak.
- 2 Keep your questions _____, so everyone has the chance to _____.
- 3 Help your colleagues by speaking _____ and _____.
- 4 Use the mute _____ to stop any background _____.

3A 7.02 Listen and match the participants (1-4) with the correct problem(s) (a-f).

Use one of the problems twice.

- | | |
|---------|---------------------------|
| 1 Donna | a background noise |
| 2 Paul | b bad internet connection |
| 3 Karl | c blank screen |
| 4 Lena | d cutting out |
| | e echo |
| | f low volume |

B In pairs, note down the solution to each problem in Exercise 3A. Listen again and check.

Functional language

Signalling and dealing with technical problems

4A Put the words in the correct order to make sentences or expressions from the audio.

- 1 your / switched on / webcam / have you / ?
Have you switched on your webcam?
- 2 is / your / blank / screen
- 3 you / out / cutting / keep
- 4 is / bad / the / connection
- 5 call you back / would you mind / hanging up / and I'll / ?
- 6 we can't / I'm afraid / very well / hear you / either
- 7 to the microphone / could you / move closer / ?
- 8 please / if you can / your volume settings / just check / ?
- 9 an echo / bit of / there's a
- 10 away from / your computer / mobile phone / can you move / your / ?
- 11 can hear / background noise / I / a lot of
- 12 the mute button / using / would you mind / ?

B Write S (signalling a problem) or D (dealing with a problem) next to each sentence in Exercise 4A.

Have you switched on your webcam? D Your screen is blank. S

C In pairs, practise signalling and dealing with technical problems. Use the expressions in Exercise 4A. There may be more than one possible combination.

A: I can hear a lot of background noise.

B: Can you move your mobile phone away from your computer?

5A Work in small groups. You are going to hold an online meeting where you will have to deal with some technical problems. Choose a topic for your meeting from the list, or use your own ideas.

- 1 Organising the next office party.
 - 2 Choosing a guest speaker for the next conference.
 - 3 Ideas for your company's next team-building activity.
- B Student A: Look at page 134; Student B: Look at page 130; Student C: Look at page 137. Read the information. Add any further information if necessary.
- C Take a few minutes to prepare, then hold your meeting. During the meeting, choose a new problem from the cards on page 138 every 60 seconds. Use expressions from Exercise 4 to signal and deal with the technical problem on the card.

TASK

- D Choose a different topic, change roles (A, B and C) and hold the meeting again.
- E When you have finished, discuss how easy or difficult it was to manage technical problems during an online meeting in English. Share your experience with another group.

Self-assessment

- How successfully have you achieved the lesson outcome? Give yourself a score from 0 (I need more practice) to 5 (I know this well).

Lead-in

1 Discuss the questions.

- What are some of the most beautiful natural places to visit in your country or region? Use the words in the box to help you.

beach cave cliffs forest lake mountain national park river ocean volcano waterfall

- Do these places get many visitors? What do people like to do at these places?

VIDEO

- 8.1.1 Punta de Lobos is a popular tourist destination in Chile. Watch the first part of a travel programme (0:00–0:49) without the sound. Tick (✓) the things you see.

- | | | |

| <input type="checkbox"/> beach | <input type="checkbox"/> cliffs | <input type="checkbox"/> surfers |
| <input type="checkbox"/> buildings | <input type="checkbox"/> fence | <input type="checkbox"/> traffic |
| <input type="checkbox"/> cacti | <input type="checkbox"/> rocks | <input type="checkbox"/> waves |

- Would you like to visit a place like this? What would you do there?

- Watch the complete video and number the information in the order it is mentioned.

- The work of the Punta de Lobos Foundation
- Why Punta de Lobos is important for Chile
- The opinion of one hotel owner
- The number of visitors to Punta de Lobos
- Plans for construction projects

- Watch the video again and decide if these sentences are true (T) or false (F).

- Five thousand visitors go to Punta de Lobos every day in summer.
- Construction plans include a small surf resort.
- The Punta de Lobos Foundation wants to stop these plans.
- It also wants to stop the public going to the cliffs.
- One problem was there was no road to Punta de Lobos.
- The Foundation built toilets and also a fence on the cliff.
- The hotel at Punta de Lobos beach has 40 rooms.
- Punta de Lobos is a good example for other projects in Chile.

- Work in pairs or small groups. Discuss the questions.

- What are some of the problems created by the popularity of Punta de Lobos?
- In what ways is the hotel on the beach special?
- What are the advantages and disadvantages of big building plans in popular tourist areas?

PROJECT: Protecting the environment

10A Work in three groups. You are going to prepare a questionnaire about habits to find out who is protecting the environment. Add two or three more questions to your card.

Group A:
Habits at home

- Do you switch off lights when you're not using them?
- Do you unplug TVs, computers, etc. when you're not using them?
- How do you conserve water?
- _____
- _____
- _____

Group B:
Habits where you work/study

- How do you usually get to where you work/study?
- Do you often use air conditioning and/or heating?
- Do you use recycled paper?
- _____
- _____
- _____

Group C:
Habits on holiday

- How many times a year do you take a plane?
- How much driving do you do on holiday?
- Do you use clean towels every day in your hotel?
- _____
- _____
- _____

B Regroup and work in groups of three with one student from each group, A, B and C. Interview each other about your habits.

C Report back to your original group. Who is doing the most to protect the environment a) at home, b) where they work/study, c) on holiday? Give reasons for your answers.

Self-assessment

- How successfully have you achieved the lesson outcome? Give yourself a score from 0 (I need more practice) to 5 (I know this well).
- Go to My Self-assessment in MyEnglishLab to reflect on what you have learnt.

8.2

Transport solutions

Lesson outcome

Learners can use should, shouldn't and could to give and ask for advice and suggestions.

Lead-in 1A Do you live in the countryside or a city or town? How happy are you with the local transport system?

B Check the meaning of the phrases in the box. Which of these do you have in the area where you live?

car-sharing scheme congestion charge cycle lanes electric buses public bike hire scheme traffic jams underground/metro trains

Listening 2 8.01 Listen to a radio interview with Kyra Sharma, an expert in public transport. Why has she written her book?

- 1 to present technological solutions to transport problems
- 2 to suggest why cities need good public transport systems
- 3 to say that governments should spend more on road building

3 Listen again and complete the information on the back cover of Kyra Sharma's book. Use one to three words in each gap.

Kyra Sharma is a university lecturer and ¹ _____ in public transport.

This book shows

- why the ² _____ is the worst way to travel in cities and the least efficient use of ³ _____
- how congestion on ⁴ _____ causes serious air pollution and ⁵ _____ problems.

In Travel Chaos, Sharma studies the transport solutions that ⁶ _____ could give but says that these better ways to travel and power our vehicles are ⁷ _____.

Dr Sharma wants governments to ⁸ _____ on public transport and gives examples from developed Asian countries such as Hong Kong, Korea and Singapore. The book also looks at ways European cities are using ⁹ _____ in public transport and promoting walking and cycling.

Dr Sharma believes our cities need solutions that offer a good ¹⁰ _____ to the people living and working in them.

2 What arguments would you use to say that cars in cities are useful?

Grammar should and could for advice and suggestions

★ 5A Match each extract (1–4) from the radio interview with the phrase (a–d) that has a similar meaning.

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------------|
| 1 ... people shouldn't drive in cities. | a I think this is a really good idea. |
| 2 ... other cities could use a similar method ... | b I think this is a really bad idea. |
| 3 ... they should simply spend more on public transport. | c I think this is a possible option. |
| 4 How should governments plan urban mobility? | d Please give me your ideas. |

B Underline the words in extracts 1–4 in Exercise 5A which give the meanings a–d. What verb form comes after all these words?

→ page 124 See Grammar reference: should and could for advice and suggestions

→ page 118 See Pronunciation bank: should and could

★ 6A Match the situations (1–5) with the advice and suggestions (a–e).

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1 I don't know what I want to study at university. | a You shouldn't arrive late for that. |
| 2 I'd like to get a summer job. | b I think you should talk to your teachers. |
| 3 It takes me a long time to get to work every day. | c You should walk to work. It's not far. |
| 4 I'm very busy and don't get enough exercise these days. | d You could move closer to where you work. |
| 5 I have an important job interview next week. | e You could call some hotels and campsites. |

B Complete the sentences using should, shouldn't and could. There may be more than one possible answer. Then match the sentences with the situations in Exercise 6A.

- You / take your CV to shops and restaurants in town.
- You / think about the job you want to do in the future.
- You / lie when they ask you questions.
- You / ask if you can work from home some days.
- You / work so hard. It's bad for your health.

C What other advice or suggestions would you give the person in each situation in Exercise 6A? Write one reply for each situation using should, shouldn't or could.

D Work in small groups. Compare your answers to Exercise 6C. What are the best ideas?

7A Work in pairs. Write three questions using should to ask for advice or suggestions about work, studies or travel.

I feel very nervous when I give presentations. What should I do?

B Exchange your questions with another pair. Write answers to the questions using should and could.

COMMUNICATION SKILLS Giving and receiving feedback

Lesson outcome

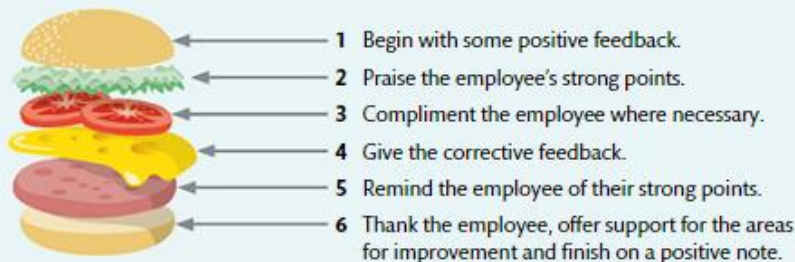

Learners can use a range of expressions to give and respond to feedback.

feedback (noun) – information about how well you are doing your job, and advice about how you could do it better

Lead-in 1A Read the definition and think about the questions.

- 1 How often do you receive feedback from your supervisor / English teacher?
- 2 How do you usually feel when you receive feedback?
- 3 What is most difficult for you when you give feedback to others?

B Work in pairs. Look at the diagram and discuss the questions.

- 1 What do you think 'corrective feedback' means?
- 2 Why are both types of feedback (positive and corrective) so important for a) employees and b) employers?
- 3 What do you think about this model for giving feedback?

VIDEO 2A 8.3.1 Thiago is thinking about his six-month review meeting with Orla.

★ Watch the video and answer the questions.

- 1 Why does Thiago seem nervous about his review meeting?
- 2 Why was Thiago annoyed with Della?
- 3 What was Della's reason for her actions?

B In pairs, discuss what feedback Thiago might receive, based on the three flashback scenes.

Video A 8.3.2 ★ 3A Watch Video A and answer the questions.

- 1 What does Thiago think about his performance during the first six months?
- 2 Note down three positive things that Orla says about Thiago.
- 3 Thiago is usually good with people. What example of this does Orla give?

B In pairs, discuss the questions.

- 1 What type of feedback does Orla start with?
- 2 What does Orla do at the beginning of the meeting?
- 3 Which parts of the diagram in Exercise 1B does Orla use to give the feedback?

Video B 8.3.3 ★ 4A Watch Video B. Tick (✓) the points Orla wants Thiago to improve.

- | | | | |

| 1 his admin skills | <input type="checkbox"/> | 4 his report-writing skills | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 2 his management skills | <input type="checkbox"/> | 5 his time-management skills | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 3 his relationship with colleagues | <input type="checkbox"/> | | |

B In pairs, discuss the questions.

- 1 After giving feedback about each point in Exercise 4A, what does Orla do?
- 2 After talking about Della, what does Orla ask Thiago to do?
- 3 Does Thiago respond positively or negatively to the corrective feedback?

★ 5 8.3.4 Watch the Conclusions section of the video and note the four points the speaker mentions about giving and receiving corrective feedback.

BUSINESS SKILLS Managing questions

Lesson outcome

Learners can use a variety of expressions to manage the question and answer session of a presentation.

Lead-in

1 In small groups, discuss these pieces of advice for managing a Q&A session. Which ones do you think are the most useful? Why?

- Breathe deeply.
- Wait a few seconds before you answer a question.
- Ask a colleague/friend to attend the presentation to give you support.
- Prepare to answer possible questions before the meeting.
- Ask a colleague to ask a question you prepared before the meeting.
- Repeat the question to check you have understood and make sure the audience have heard it.

Listening

2A Work in small groups. Brainstorm two or three advantages of working in an open-plan office and a closed office.

Open-plan offices encourage colleagues to work together. / It's easier to concentrate in a closed office.

B 8.02 Elena and Ted have just given a presentation to colleagues. The company they work for is moving to a new site. Listen to the first part of the Q&A session and match the names (1-3) with the topic(s) (a-d).

- | | |
|---------|---|
| 1 Steve | a travel to other sites |
| 2 Keira | b a place to hold meetings |
| 3 Ben | c the timing of the move |
| | d some staff moving to the temporary office |

C Listen again and decide if the statements are true (T) or false (F). In pairs, correct the false statements.

- 1 Staff will no longer have their own office.
- 2 There will be one meeting room on every second floor at the new site.
- 3 Most of the staff will move to the new site in May.
- 4 Staff will have to take a thirty-minute bus trip to reach the temporary site.
- 5 Ben will not be moving to the temporary site.

3A 8.03 Listen to the next part of the Q&A session and answer the questions.

- | | |

6A Work in groups of three. You are going to take part in a Q&A session following a presentation. Read the scenario and decide who will be the Presenter, Questioner 1 and Questioner 2.

TASK

Scenario

Your team is moving to a new building where they will have to work in an open-plan office. An informal presentation to explain the move has taken place and now it is time for the Q&A session. Not everyone agrees with the idea.

Here are the benefits of an open-plan office for the company. You may also think of some of your own.

improved communication and opportunities to work together, savings on equipment costs, reduced heating bills, better work processes, more creativity

Here are ideas the company have thought about. You may also think of some of your own.

closed meeting rooms, allowing staff to work from home when necessary, a system to reserve meeting rooms online, a plan for everyone to change desks once a year, a relaxation area with a TV, table tennis competitions and similar activities to encourage team-building

B Presenters: Look at page 136 and read your information. Work as a group to think about what questions Questioners 1 and 2 might ask, and prepare possible answers. Questioners 1 and 2: Look at page 137 and read the information for Q&A session 1. Work as a group to prepare some questions.

C Perform the Q&A session as a Presenter and the Questioners. Then change roles and repeat the activity with Q&A sessions 2 (page 141) and 3 (page 139). Make sure that a different person leads each session.

D When you have finished, discuss how easy or difficult it was to manage the Q&A session in English. Share your experience with another group.

Background

1 Read the background and answer the questions with a partner.

- 1 Which industry does JK Talent Spot work in?
- 2 Which country does Junko Kimura want to do business in?
- 3 Would JK's performers be popular in your country? Why? / Why not?

BACKGROUND

JK Talent Spot is a small talent management agency based in Osaka, Japan. The company's owner, Junko Kimura, manages six Japanese artists – four bands and two singer-songwriters. All six of the acts are popular in the Osaka area. However, instead of touring Japan to make her acts more popular, Junko wants to take them to Australia to discover audiences and create new fans there. Junko and her assistant, Itsuki Shibata, are researching the music market in Australia and looking for contacts there who can help them introduce their artists to the market. So far, they've discovered that J-pop – popular Japanese music – is well-known in Australia. They've also learnt that there are talent agencies and record companies in several Australian cities looking for new acts. Their next step is to choose someone to contact.

Making contacts 2A Read the website. Match each paragraph (1–6) with an OzMusicNow service (a–f).

OZMUSICNOW PROMOTIONS

1 OzMusicNow Promotions specialises in helping new international artists find audiences in Australia. We offer:

2 The best tour promotion and management in the country
We work with the best live music venues in Australia's biggest cities. We can get your acts on stage in front of thousands of fans and take care of every detail of tour planning. We promote every event with advertisements online, on the radio and on posters and billboards.

3 The highest quality live video production
Live tours are only the beginning. Our team of video producers create high-quality tour videos that you can upload to your online video channel to find even more fans. Today, Australia. Tomorrow, the world!

4 The most active social media management
Advertising is useful, but the best way to spread the word about new music is online. Our social media accounts are followed by industry experts who are specifically interested in new music – including top music journalists. And when they find something they like, people share it.

5 The most complete career guidance available
Creating great music and getting more fans is only the beginning. A big hit can be amazing. But what happens after that? Artists need to manage their time, money and image to develop and grow a career. We can help.

6 Don't wait! Come and see us and we'll build an Australian future together in music!
Musicians and managers – contact us now and we'll help you plan a visit Down Under* to get to know us better!

A business trip

3A BW 1.01 Junko is now planning a visit to Australia. Listen to her phone call with Sam from OzMusicNow. Complete Sam's notes for the phone call.

- 1 Arrival date? _____
- 2 How many hotel rooms? _____
- 3 After Sydney, visit Brisbane or Melbourne? _____
- 4 Hotel choice in second city? _____
- 5 Departure date? _____

B Read Sam's email to Junko. Correct the mistakes. Then listen again and check your answers.

Dear Junko,

Thanks for the call yesterday. I'm writing to confirm your travel arrangements for your Australia visit next month. Here's the itinerary:

June 1 Osaka-Sydney flight
 Hotel: Sydney Downtown (2 nights, 2 rooms)

June 2 Morning: Meet OzMusicNow in Sydney offices
 Afternoon-evening: Visit Sydney music venues

June 3 Morning: Sydney-Brisbane flight Afternoon-evening: Visit Brisbane music venues
 Hotel: Brisbane town centre hotel

June 4 Brisbane-Sydney-Osaka flight

Let me know if you have any questions or comments. We can help you arrange the bookings, if necessary.

Best regards,
Sam

- ★ 4 ▶ BW 1.02 As she flies to Australia, Junko is connected to the wi-fi on the plane, so she can send voice messages. Listen to her exchange with Sam and answer the questions.

- 1 What is the problem?
- 2 What caused it?
- 3 What is Sam going to do?

5A Work in pairs. Read the following information. Make a new travel plan for Junko.

JK Talent Spot is paying for the trip. The company isn't rich, and Junko tries to save money when she can. On the other hand, this is a business trip, so she wants to use her time well in Australia. Remember that her original plan was to have a meeting with Sam the morning of 3rd June. For each item (1–3) compare the two options, then choose one.

A: The airport bus is cheaper than a taxi.

B: Yes, but taking a taxi is easier and a lot faster.

- 1 Travel to Canberra accommodation
 - a Number 11 bus – waiting time up to 20 minutes, journey time 20 minutes – $4.90
 - b Taxi – waiting time about 2 minutes, journey time 12 minutes – $30
- 2 Hotel in Canberra
 - a Canberra Lodge Hotel – near city centre, very quiet – $150
 - b Canberra Luxury Suites – in city centre, near live music venues – $220
- 3 Morning travel from Canberra to Sydney
 - a Train (first class) – departs Canberra 7.00 a.m., arrives Sydney 11.10 a.m. – $80
 - b Coach – departs Canberra 10.00 a.m., arrives Sydney 1.30 p.m. – $45

TASK

Rearrange plans

B With your partner, write an email to Junko explaining the new travel plan.

Remember to:

- use the choices you made in Exercise 5A.
- use the email in Exercise 3B as a model.
- apologise for the situation, tell her not to worry, and explain what you're sending.
- list the details of the new itinerary, with dates (today is 2nd June).
- tell her you'll meet her at the coach or train station in Sydney.
- ask if she has any questions or needs more help.

- 1 Why do EM Animations need to leave London?
- 2 Why is Berlin a good place for the company to go?
- 3 What situation(s) would make you want to move to another country to live and work?

BACKGROUND

Ewa Kowalska and Mark Anderson started EM Animation Studios four years ago. They began their animation partnership at university, where Ewa studied business and Mark studied animation. After finishing university, they moved to London, where they have a small team of staff. They work on many animation projects including advertisements, software apps and video games. The company now needs more space but rents for bigger offices in the capital are too expensive for them.

Ewa, now CEO, is thinking about moving the company to Berlin. With a population of 3.5 million, Berlin is an exciting, international city in the heart of Europe which offers excellent value. EM Animation Studios will still be able to hire great people from all over the world. Also, with the money they save on rent and other costs, they can attract staff with better salaries and invest more in their business.

World's best places to locate your business

Estonia is a small country with a population of just 1.3 million. This country in northern Europe, which is becoming well-known for advances in technology, was the first in the world to introduce an e-residency scheme with a digital ID card. It allows an e-resident to access digital services without living in Estonia.

In business-friendly Estonia, most people speak more than one language and younger people in particular have a high level of English. About one in four residents come from countries close by, including Russia and Finland, as well as professionals from other EU countries and the USA. The capital, Tallinn, famous for its medieval old town, has one of the highest number of start-ups per person in the EU.

- 1 What type of area was Yaletown, Vancouver, in the past? What type of area is it now?
- 2 What is a pop-up store?
- 3 Who could benefit from opening a pop-up store?
- 4 What do you think are some good things about having a pop-up store?

BACKGROUND

Yaletown in the Downtown South area of Vancouver, Canada, was an old industrial part of the city. For many years the factories and warehouses were not used and empty. Today this popular area of the city has many new high-rise office buildings and apartments, and some older buildings from the industrial days still remain.

The owners of one redbrick factory building on Hamilton Street plan to change the ground floor into pop-up stores. This type of temporary store can open for a day or stay for several months.

Pop-up stores are a good option for people starting a new business, existing small businesses and online businesses looking for a cheap option to open a store. The most successful stores often become permanent. Today many large retailers are also opening pop-up stores to create more interest in their products.

Pop-up stories

2A Read the article about one famous retailer. How is the company experimenting with its stores? Why?

B Do you think pop-up stores are a good option for large retailers? Why? / Why not?

Ikea moves focus to city centre stores

Ikea Group is focusing on the city centre. The popularity of its out-of-town warehouses is falling and the world's largest furniture retailer is trying to meet the needs of urban and online shoppers.

- 5 Jesper Brodin, Ikea's new Chief Executive, told the Financial Times that the retailer will try different types of stores in the centre of cities such as Copenhagen in Denmark. Mr Brodin said, 'We are testing new formats. We have penetrated parts of the city centre but we are mostly outside so the opportunities are there.'

10 The Netherlands-based retailer is experimenting with different types of stores from its traditional large warehouses based on the edge of cities. It has opened city-centre pop-up stores and collection points, as well as smaller stores in some areas.

Mr Brodin said, 'We are basically creating structures in a way that we can test many aspects in many places. They are test laboratories to figure out the new world of Ikea.'

3A Work in groups of three. Find out about some other pop-up stores.

- 1 What does the article say about the person who has the pop-up store?
- 2 What does the pop-up store sell?
- 3 What advantages and opportunities does he/she talk about for his/her pop-up store?

Richard's Pop-up Chocolates

Richard Murphy left his office job to start his chocolate business three years ago. He makes his artisan chocolates at home and also sells online. 'A pop-up shop gives me the opportunity to sell my product in a retail store without paying all the costs of a permanent location.'

He says he can also plan his pop-up shops around major 'chocolate' holidays, such as the winter holidays and Mother's Day.

'In the past I tried to sell my products in farmers' markets, but it wasn't the right place for expensive handmade chocolates and sales weren't good. I learnt that location is very important when you want to open any shop.'

He says a pop-up shop gives him face-to-face time with customers. 'It's my opportunity to chat to people, and offer them samples to taste. If they like it, they'll buy and they'll become repeat customers. You can't have that relationship online.'

B Tell the other students in your group in your own words about the pop-up store you read about.

C Who would be possible customers for each store? Do you think Yaletown will be a good place for any of these pop-up stores?

One young person I interviewed said all some of the places to go in the evening were expensive. He said he and his co-workers liked to have dinner together after work.

One office worker I spoke to said she likes to buy natural health care products. The price of the products was more important to her than the quality.

Another shopper I interviewed told me she likes to go to shopping malls. She always wears the clothes and colours that are popular.

TASK

Design your own
pop-up store

5A Work in small groups. You want to open a pop-up store in the building on Hamilton Street in Yaletown. Discuss and decide what type of business it will be.

Remember to:

- choose from one of the pop-up stores you read about or think of an idea of your own.
- think of a (new) name for your business.
- decide what you are going to sell, e.g. different products for different times of the year.
- design your shop so it attracts customers.
- discuss where you will advertise the business – newspapers, flyers, social media, etc.
- decide what your opening hours will be.
- agree what job each of you will have in the business.
- think of a special offer that will attract customers to your new pop-up store.

- B Work in pairs with someone from another group. Present your ideas. Do you like the other group's special offer? Would it make you visit their pop-up?
- C Work with your group again. What did other students think about your special offer? Do you need to change or improve it?
- D Design a flyer, newspaper advertisement or online advertisement for your pop-up. Remember to include information about your products and the special offer.

Background

1 Read the background and answer the questions with a partner.

- 1 What is special about the location of Holsted's head office?
- 2 What does the company do?
- 3 Why is the Vice President in Madrid?
- 4 In what ways can cultural differences affect working life?

BACKGROUND

Holsted Pharmaceuticals is a Danish multinational company with headquarters near Copenhagen in Medicon Valley. This area of eastern Denmark and southern Sweden has a large number of pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies and research institutions. The company manufactures and markets pharmaceutical products and services. It has factories in seven countries, offices in over 70 countries and sells its products in 180 countries. It employs more than 30,000 people globally.

Holsted recently bought a Spanish pharmaceutical laboratory based in Madrid, Spain. Clara Olsen, the Vice President for Europe, has gone to Madrid to manage the company operations there. As part of her work, she plans to investigate the work culture in the Madrid laboratory to decide what changes she needs to make. She wants to introduce managers to the Holsted way.

The Holsted way 2A BW 4.01 Listen to Clara Olsen giving a presentation to the senior managers in Madrid about the company culture at Holsted. Find one difference between each point below and the presentation.

The Holsted company culture

- Employees work 40 ~~37~~ hours a week from Monday to Friday.
- They are often expected to work long hours.
- The working hours are fixed for most employees.
- The work culture is very strict but effective.
- Managers are responsible for how employees organise their time and projects.
- Senior staff in the company can tell us their ideas and opinions.
- It's important to arrive on time for work; it shows you are professional.

B Would you like to work for a company with this work culture? What would you like most/least?

Investigating work patterns

3A BW 4.02 Listen to part of a meeting between Clara Olsen, Vice President; Marina Beltran, Human Resources Manager; and Alvaro Martinez, Finance Manager; in Madrid. Look at Clara's list of questions. Which questions are they discussing?

MEETING ABOUT WORK PATTERNS

- 1 What types of contracts are there? (full-time, part-time?)
- 2 How much holiday do employees get?
- 3 What are the working hours – start time, finish time?
- 4 Does the company let employees work flexible hours?
- 5 How long is the lunch break?
- 6 Can employees work from home?

B Listen again and complete this extract from the meeting (0:00–0:36). Then complete the bar chart with the correct percentages and times.

As you can see from this bar graph, the working day is very long here in the Madrid office. On an average day only ¹ _____ of our employees leave work by ² _____ o'clock. At ³ _____ o'clock, ⁴ _____ percent of the staff are still here in the office and ⁵ _____ percent are still at their desks at ⁶ _____ in the evening.

C Work in pairs. What is a suitable title for the graph?

D Listen to the rest of the meeting again (0:37–2:24) and answer the questions.

- 1 What does Álvaro say about the lunch break?
- 2 What do Marina and Álvaro disagree about?
- 3 What does Marina say about staff working long days?
- 4 What risks does she say are possible?

E What do you think Clara and her team should do about the two issues they discuss? Use the phrases in the box to help you and your own ideas.

stop staff using work email at home see how long staff are working reduce the number of hours that staff can use the building make the lunch break shorter switch off office lights after a certain time stop people being able to use the computer at certain times

Marina Beltran, Human Resources Manager of Holsted Pharmaceuticals in Spain

Álvaro Martínez, Finance Manager of Holsted Pharmaceuticals in Spain

TASK
Negotiate changes

B Look at your information and the agenda for the meeting and prepare for the discussion.

Vice President: Look at page 135.

Human Resources Manager: Look at page 141.

Finance Manager: Look at page 134.

Points to negotiate:

- The working hours
- A schedule with flexible hours
- The lunch break
- Working from home

Background

1 Read the background and answer the questions with a partner.

- 1 People in the town want to make two things better. What are they?
- 2 What two opposite ideas are mentioned about cash?
- 3 Where are people looking for ideas?

BACKGROUND

Members of a community of about 8,000 people want to improve the local economy, and at the same time improve the quality of life for the people who live there. People are already discussing possible ideas. Many agree that just bringing more money to the area isn't enough. They want to make it easier for people to use local businesses, and encourage new ones. Some people also believe that cash-only businesses should be encouraged. However, others suggest trading goods and services and not using money is better in some situations. Some people are doing research into solutions that other towns and cities around the world have used. As a next step, the town council is planning an open meeting to share ideas and hear suggestions from local people.

Suggestions 2A BW 5.01 Read the town councillor's notes for the meeting. Then listen and complete them.

Topic: Practical ideas and real solutions

- 1 Advertise to attract _____
- 2 Create a local _____
- 3 Set up a _____ bank
- 4 Start an online goods _____ – on social media?
- 5 Start a Saturday _____ in the town centre

B Match the ideas (a–e) with the descriptions (1–5) in Exercise 2A. Listen again and check your answers.

- a Develop a type of money that's only for our town
- b Make it easy for people to trade things they don't need for things they need
- c Arrange a place in town for local people to sell things
- d Invite people from other places to visit our town – and spend money
- e Get people to share their skills by trading hours of work

3 BW 5.02 Now listen to the end of the meeting. Which ideas does the town vote to consider more seriously?

Looking more closely at options 4A Read the information from the town council on page 97. Each project has three advantages and one disadvantage. What are they? Use one of the advantages twice.

Advantages encourages people to make their own local products allows people to sell things they make all people's skills are the same value gives unemployed people a work opportunity helps small, cash-only businesses increases the exchange of goods and services keeps money in the local economy encourages people to get to know each other

Disadvantages some businesses might not like the idea might require expensive insurance some people may think it isn't fair

» Local currency

Local currencies increase economic activity. If people have a local currency, they often use it for goods and services that they wouldn't pay for with 'real' cash. Also, if small businesses accept credit cards, they have to pay a fee to the bank. If more people pay with a local currency, it's possible to run a cash-only business. This increases local economic activity. Local currency also keeps money in the local area, because it has no value in other places. However, sometimes, local businesses don't like the idea of a local currency. If businesses don't accept it, it won't work.

» Time bank

If people share their time instead of paying someone, everyone's time has the same value. An hour is an hour. This gives more value to people with fewer skills. In addition, local people get to know other local people. And spending time together can lead to more friendships, and also to people understanding those who are different from themselves. Another benefit is that people who are unemployed will have the opportunity to work, and also the opportunity to receive services from others in the community. However, it may be difficult to get people who have valuable skills to trade them with those who are less skilled.

» Saturday market

People who make food such as cakes and pies or who make clothes will have the chance to sell them, creating new economic activity in the community. And shoppers will have more opportunity to buy local products. If people see others selling local products, they'll get ideas of their own for things to make and sell. In addition, people going to the market will get to know the sellers and also the other shoppers better. However, the town would need to buy insurance for the market. This could be expensive – people who sell things would have to pay, and some sellers may not want to do this.

Background

1 Read the background and answer the questions with a partner.

- 1 Why did Natalya start The Amazing Chair Company?
- 2 What are the three jobs on the team?
- 3 Why do you think the team might be unhappy?

BACKGROUND

The Amazing Chair Company was started in New York City three years ago by Natalya Ivanova. Her interest in furniture began as a hobby – she took a furniture-making class and made a chair for her apartment. However, when her friends saw her work, they asked where they could buy one, and soon a successful business was born. Natalya hired furniture designer, Leila Mostafa, to help with new ideas. As the business grew, she realised that she needed to hire a part-time accountant and bookkeeper – João Sousa – to deal with the financial side of the business. The company is just successful enough to pay Natalya as Director, and her two employees, but not yet big enough to hire more staff. But can this team make the business a success?

7 Needs to talk to other people more
8 Doesn't enjoy full-time business management

B Look at Natalya's list opposite. Use the information in Exercise 6A to decide who in the company (Natalya, Leila or João) should do each job.

C What do you recommend for The Amazing Chair Company? Consider:

- João, who wants to be more creative and do more problem-solving in a full-time job.
- Leila, who needs someone to talk to.
- Natalya, who needs help managing the business.

D Read the information below about The Amazing Chair Company. Can you make any other suggestions for making teamwork better?

- Natalya, Leila and João each have a small, private office.
- In the office space, there is no area for eating or other shared social space.
- Natalya, Leila and João often don't feel they have time for informal conversation at work.

ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

- 2 Who are their customers?
- 3 What new business would they like to enter?
- 4 What is Due Scarpe's main business?
- 5 What are Sofia, Oscar and Mario deciding together?

BACKGROUND

Zapatos Trujillo S.A. is a shoe factory located in León, Mexico. For the past forty years, the company has successfully produced footwear for well-known global companies. However, CEO Oscar García believes that with the right designs, the company could be successful producing its own line of shoes for both the Mexican and international markets. To help plan the new product line, the company has hired an international shoe manufacturing consultancy – Due Scarpe. Sofia Rossi, Due Scarpe's Italy-based Consultant, is now in Mexico working with Oscar García and his new Head of Design, Mario Pardo. Together they are deciding on what type of footwear to produce, and the best production processes to use. Sofia writes reports every few days for her boss, shoe expert John McDermott.

| 1 increase automation | 4 hire more workers |
| 2 don't improve the factory | 5 create high-quality shoes that we can take to fashion shows |
| 3 our designs are good quality and completed by hand | 6 produce more shoes quickly |

B Listen again. What's going to happen next?

They're going to:

- a buy some machines to make a cheaper shoe.
- b find a way to produce high-quality shoes.
- c go to a trade show in Paris or Berlin to get ideas.

Progress report

Zapatos Trujillo S.A. has a production staff of fifty and can produce approximately 3,000 pairs of high-quality shoes in twelve weeks – that's 12,000 a year. The factory uses basic machines but has a highly skilled workforce. They would like to produce a shoe that should sell wholesale for about $100 a pair with a recommended retail price of $189. At that price, they'd need to produce 20,000 pairs per year for the business to make a profit, and that's possible only with automation. At the current rate of production, the wholesale price would need to be $130 a pair to make a profit, and I think that's too expensive. So, they need to cut down production time or possibly use cheaper materials. The other possibility would be to produce a shoe that's actually worth $130 a pair. That's possible, but probably the most difficult option and I don't recommend it.

B Read the report again. Which of these is not an option for Zapatos Trujillo S.A.?

- 1 to produce more shoes by adding automation
- 2 to produce 12,000 pairs per year and sell them wholesale for $100
- 3 to produce shoes using cheaper materials
- 4 to produce a very high-quality shoe that they can sell wholesale for $130

5 BW 7.03 Listen to the conversation between Sofia and her boss, John. What's worrying her the most about Zapatos Trujillo S.A.? What advice does he give her?

TASK

Manage production

6A Work in pairs or small groups. Read the three options for the design and production of Zapatos Trujillo S.A.'s new shoe. Discuss the questions.

Option 1

- Use Mario's design
- Produce 12,000 per year
- Don't hire any new workers
- Sell shoes wholesale for $130 as handmade
- Profit $525,000

Option 2

- Use a simpler design with cheaper materials
- Produce 15,000 per year
- Hire 10 new workers at a total cost of $50,000 per year
- Sell shoes wholesale for $105 as handmade
- Profit $535,000

Option 3

- Use a simpler design with cheaper materials
- Produce 20,000 per year
- Lay off 10 workers to save $50,000 per year
- Add automation
- Pay $100,000 for new machines
- Sell shoes wholesale for $90
- Profit $610,000

- 1 Which option definitely produces a high-quality shoe?
- 2 Which option is the least acceptable for CEO Oscar Garcia?
- 3 Which shoe would the company probably feel the most proud of?

B Work in groups of three to six. Imagine you are members of the board of Zapatos Trujillo S.A. Decide on roles A–C.

Role A: Decide why Option 1 is the best choice. Then think of two or three reasons why the other options aren't good.

Role B: Decide why Option 2 is the best choice. Then think of two or three reasons why the other options aren't good.

Role C: Decide why Option 3 is the best choice. Then think of two or three reasons why the other options aren't good.

C Discuss the three options with your group. Take turns trying to convince the group that your option is the best. At the end, vote to choose one option.

Remember to:

- say why you're writing.
- say which option was chosen.
- give the reasons.
- say you hope that the new line of shoes will be a big success.

Writing 7 Write an email of 75–100 words to Mario Pardo, Head of Design. Explain the board's decision.

Learners can understand information in a simple report about green offices and discuss what actions to take.

Background

1 Read the background and answer the questions with a partner.

- 1 What type of company is Walsh Ryan?
- 2 How is the new head office described?
- 3 What does the Facilities Department do?
- 4 What is the G.O project for?

BACKGROUND

Walsh Ryan employs over 400 staff in its head office in Dublin, Ireland. The company offers many different products, for example car, home, business, farm, travel and life insurance. Walsh Ryan has spent €35 million on its new office six kilometres from the city centre. The building has four floors and is designed to save energy. It has solar panels, LED lights and smart temperature controls.

The Facilities Department will be responsible for the day-to-day operations in the building, such as energy use, security, cleaning and maintenance. It is always trying to reduce costs. Senior management want the Facilities Department to lead a green office project called G.O. The project will reduce costs and help protect the environment. Walsh Ryan's new green offices will be good for business, good for the planet and good for the company's reputation.

The green office report

2A Read part of a report by the Facilities Manager. Put these headings into the correct section of the report. Three are not used.

MEASURING ENERGY USE AND WASTE IN WALSH RYAN

The Facilities Department's objective for the G.O project is to reduce costs by three to six percent. This reduction will be possible by moving into the new offices and by introducing low-cost changes there.

This report presents data on the energy use and waste production in our old building so that we can find opportunities for savings.

¹ Walsh Ryan currently spends nearly 29 percent of its day-to-day operations budget for the building on utilities. Most of this spending is on electricity and natural gas bills. Energy costs in our old office are over €60,000 per year.

This pie chart shows the different energy costs in our offices.

Lighting, heating, cooling and ventilation* represent almost two-thirds of energy costs. The move to the new office building with its solar panels, smart temperature controls and energy-efficient LED lights will help us to make savings in these areas. We can also make other low-cost savings.

² The company currently uses 10,000 sheets of copy paper per person every year. That's four boxes of paper per staff member at a cost of €10 per box. According to the Waste and Resource Action Programme (WRAP), a good office can use as few as 3,500 sheets per person per year. At Walsh Ryan we are using three times that amount of paper. Also, approximately 60 percent of this paper is waste.

³ The company creates two kilos of waste per staff member per day. This includes paper, plastic cups, food waste in the canteen and general office waste. WRAP's figures show that a good office produces less than half that amount of waste per person.

Dublin City Council is planning to raise the cost of waste disposal, and companies that produce more waste will pay more. So, if we can reduce waste, it will cut disposal costs as well. WRAP reports that by introducing a more efficient recycling scheme many offices can recycle between 60 and 70 percent of the waste.

B What do you think the Facilities Department can do to improve in each of the three areas?

Use real cups and glasses not plastic cups.

Don't sell bottled water in vending machines.

Introduction

Pronunciation is important. You can use the right words and the right grammar, but other people won't understand you if your pronunciation isn't clear. Learning about the important features of pronunciation will also help you to understand spoken English better.

Syllables, stress and intonation

Different words have different numbers of syllables:

1 syllable grow, growth 4 syllables in-ter-view-er, co-or-di-nate
 2 syllables prod-uct, re-port 5 syllables char-ac-ter-is-tic
 3 syllables in-ter-view, pro-duc-tion 6 syllables re-spon-si-bil-i-ty

In words with more than one syllable, one of the syllables is stressed, i.e. clearer, louder and longer than the other syllables, and it carries the main intonation, i.e. the movement of the voice up or down:

PRODuct INTerview INTerviewer rePORT proDUCTION coORDinate

In longer words and compound nouns there is often a second, less important stress, i.e. a less strong stress earlier in the word:

characterISTic responsiBILity mobile PHONE

Stress is important in making words easy to recognise. Stress and intonation are used to highlight important information:

A: Are you still using that same old comPUter? B: No, I've got a NEW one.
A: Did you get it as a PREsent? B: No, I BOUGHT it.

/ʒ/ means that many American speakers use a voiced sound like a quick /d/ for the /t/ in words like city, party, little.
 : shows a long vowel

Sounds and spelling

In English, the relationship between spoken and written language is particularly complicated.

The same sound can be spelt in different ways, e.g.

- /əʊ/ slow go loan toe although know
- /s/ sell science cent

The same letter can be pronounced in different ways, e.g.

- the letter u can be pronounced /ʌ/ as in cut, /ʊ/ as in full, /ɔ:/ as in sure in British English or /ɪ/ as in busy;
- the letter s can be pronounced /s/ as in sell, /z/ as in easy, /ʃ/ as in tension or /ʒ/ as in decision.

Using a dictionary

Try to learn the phonetic symbols in the table in The sounds of English section. When you recognise these you will be able to use a dictionary to find the pronunciation of any word. As well as the sounds in a word, dictionaries also show word stress. Look at this dictionary entry for controversial:

con-tro-ver-sial /kəntrə'vɜːʃəl/ adj causing a lot of disagreement, because many people have strong opinions about the subject being discussed

- The ' sign shows you that the syllable immediately after it is stressed.
- The , sign shows you that the syllable immediately after it has secondary stress.
- The : sign shows you that the vowel is long.

Simplifications

In normal everyday speech, however, words often do not have the same pronunciation as shown in dictionaries. This is important for listening. Vowels in stressed syllables are usually pronounced clearly, but sometimes speakers make various simplifications:

- Some sounds are missed out, e.g. facts can sound like 'facs', compete can sound like 'cmpete', characteristic can sound like 'charrtristic'.
- Some sounds are merged together, e.g. on Monday can sound like 'om Monday', ten groups can sound like 'teng groups', this show can sound like 'thishow'.

Varieties of English

English is spoken by some people as a first language, but it is also spoken by more people who learn it as an additional language and use it as a lingua franca for international communication.

There is a large amount of variation in how English is pronounced:

- Variation among traditional 'native' accents such as British, American and Australian. There are also big differences between the accents of different regions of the United Kingdom.
- Variation among accents of English as a lingua franca. Many of these differences are caused by the influence of speakers' first languages, e.g. Japanese speakers often do not distinguish between /l/ and /r/, and Spanish speakers often add an /e/ at the front of words beginning with /sp/, /sk/ and /st/.

Consonant sounds are generally similar in different varieties of English, but there is much more variation in vowel sounds. The number of vowel sounds speakers use and the exact quality of the sounds can be different.

In the course audio and video recordings – and in your everyday life and work – you will hear speakers from various English-speaking and non-English-speaking backgrounds communicating successfully with each other despite their differences in pronunciation. For example, many speakers do not use the /θ/ sound of 'think' and the /ð/ sound of 'then', but this does not generally affect their ability to make themselves understood. Particularly important things to concentrate on include:

- word stress,
- stress and intonation in phrases and sentences, for highlighting important information,
- consonant sounds,
- groups of consonants at the beginning of words – e.g. strong,
- the difference between long and short vowels.

Good pronunciation does not necessarily mean speaking like a 'native' speaker; it means being understood by others when communicating in English. Understanding pronunciation features and practising them will help you improve both your speaking and your listening comprehension.

Lesson 1.2 ►

The letter 'r'

Many speakers (e.g. most speakers of American, Irish and Scottish English) always pronounce the letter 'r'. Others (e.g. many speakers of British English) only pronounce 'r' before a vowel sound.

Listen and compare American English with British English:

► P1.01 Planning a party for 200 people is harder than planning a party for 20.

1 Underline all the letter 'r's in the sentences.

- 1 A party for 50 is cheaper than a party for 500.
- 2 The better option is a big tent in the park.
- 3 Some people think this is the worst hotel in town.
- 4 The barbecue is bigger than the restaurant.
- 5 A circus theme is more fun than just having a meal.
- 6 Are some venues better than others?

2A ► P1.02 Listen to two speakers saying the sentences in Exercise 1. Circle the letters 'r' that are pronounced.

B Which sentences in Exercise 2 were said by a British English speaker and which by an American English speaker?

3 Work in pairs. Take turns to say the sentences in Exercise 1. Try pronouncing all the 'r's and then pronouncing only the 'r's before vowel sounds. Which type of pronunciation is easier for you?

Lesson 1.3 ►

Showing interest in small talk

When you ask wh- questions to make small talk, show interest in the person you are talking to by using a strong downward movement starting from the main stress.

Listen and compare a less interested version with a more interested version of this question:

► P1.03 Where are you from?

1 ► P1.04 Listen to two versions of each question. Which version sounds more interested – a or b?

- 1 Where do you work?
- 2 What are you doing in Dublin?
- 3 How long was your trip?
- 4 What do you think about the food here?
- 5 What do you know about Dublin?

2 ► P1.05 Listen to the more interested versions again and repeat.

3 Work in pairs. Make small talk using the questions in Exercise 1. Use the AAA model from Exercise 8B on page 13.

Lesson 2.1 ►

Syllables and stress

In a word with more than one syllable, one of the syllables is stressed more strongly (the main stress). For example:

► P2.01 WAREhouse loCATE MOtorway

1 Work in pairs. Underline the syllable with the main stress in each word.

- | | | |
|--------------|--------------|-------------|
| 1 access | 3 facilities | 5 studio |
| 2 convenient | 4 hotel | 6 transport |

2 ► P2.02 Listen and check. Then listen again and repeat.

3 ► P2.03 Work in pairs. Take turns to say the sentences. Listen and check.

- 1 How are the transport links in your town?
- 2 The train station's very convenient.
- 3 What leisure facilities are there close to your home?
- 4 They want to locate their next hotel in the city centre.
- 5 It's a technology design studio.
- 6 It's important for the factory to have good access to motorways.

Lesson 2.2 ►

Stress in noun phrases

Compound nouns usually – but not always – have the main stress on the first word. For example:

► P2.04 THEME park LUXury resort city CENTRE

1 ► P2.05 Listen to the compound nouns. Which one has the main stress on the second word?

- | | |
|--------------|-----------------------|
| 1 ski resort | 4 wildlife park |
| 2 bird park | 5 shopping experience |
| 3 city zoo | |

2 Listen again and underline the main stressed word. If the stressed word has more than one syllable, underline the stressed syllable.

3 Listen again and repeat.

4 Work in pairs. Take turns to say one word of a compound noun in Exercise 1. Your partner says the complete compound.

A: Park ...

B: BIRD park. City ...

A: City ZOO. Ski ...

Lesson 3.2 >

Past Simple

The vowel sounds /aɪ/, /eɪ/, /i:/, /ɜ:/ and /ɔ:/ used in Past Simple forms are often spelt in different ways in different verbs.

For example, the vowel sound /aɪ/ can be spelt 'i' (e.g. 'liked') or 'ie' (e.g. 'tried'). Some words are pronounced differently from what the spelling suggests. For example, 'said' is pronounced /sed/.

▶ P3.01 liked tried said

- 1 ▶ P3.02 Do the verbs have the same vowel sound or different vowel sounds? Listen and check.

- | | |
|---------------------|------------------|
| 1 chose – taught | same / different |
| 2 paid – said | same / different |
| 3 heard – served | same / different |
| 4 chose – could | same / different |
| 5 saw – thought | same / different |
| 6 agreed – received | same / different |
| 7 came – played | same / different |
| 8 could – thought | same / different |
| 9 arrived – cried | same / different |
| 10 paid – tried | same / different |

- 2 Look at the pairs of words with the same vowel sounds in Exercise 1. What different spellings can you see?

- 3 Work in pairs. Take turns to say one of the verbs in Exercise 1; your partner says the infinitive of the verb.

Lesson 3.3 >

Stress in short sentences

Contrasting stressed and unstressed words is essential for natural spoken English and for expressing what you want to say. Short sentences often have two or three main stresses, usually on the 'content' words – these are the words that carry most meaning. Without stress, it is difficult to hear the important words in speech.

Listen and compare two versions of these sentences:

▶ P3.03 Sorry to bother you.

Just the person I was looking for!

- 1A Which two words do you think are stressed in these sentences?

- How's it going?
- You look a bit worried.
- I'm sure he'll understand.
- I'm still having problems.

- B Which three words do you think are stressed in these sentences?

- I'm going as fast as I can.
- How about asking someone to help?
- I'll see if I can get you some support.
- How are you doing with that report?

- 2 ▶ P3.04 Listen and check.

- 3 Work in pairs. Take turns to say one of the sentences in Exercise 1 and clap your hands on the two or three main stresses. Then repeat the sentence and both clap together.

Lesson 4.1 >

Vowel sounds: British English and American English

Some vowels are pronounced differently in British English and American English. Listen and compare British English with American English:

▶ P4.01 job clock app taxi

- 1 ▶ P4.02 You will hear each word twice. The first version is British. Is the second version British (B) or American (A)?

- | | |
|------------|-----------|
| 1 job | 5 app |
| 2 clock | 6 taxi |
| 3 project | 7 pattern |
| 4 possible | 8 aspect |

- 2 ▶ P4.03 You will hear each word twice. Which version is British and which is American? Write B–A (British → American) or A–B (American → British).

- | | |
|------------|---------------|
| 1 job | 7 app |
| 2 clock | 8 taxi |
| 3 project | 9 pattern |
| 4 possible | 10 aspect |
| 5 holiday | 11 management |
| 6 economy | |

- 3 ▶ P4.04 Now you will hear each word once. Is it British (B) or American (A)?

- | | |
|------------|---------------|
| 1 job | 7 app |
| 2 clock | 8 taxi |
| 3 project | 9 pattern |
| 4 possible | 10 aspect |
| 5 holiday | 11 management |
| 6 economy | |

- 4 Work in pairs. Practise saying the words in Exercises 1–3. Does your partner sound British or American?

Lesson 4.2 ►

Present Perfect Simple

In the Present Perfect Simple, have and has are usually pronounced as weak forms. For example:

► P4.05 It was the worst job I've /v/ ever had.
This job's /z/ helped me a lot.

We usually use /həv/ and /həz/ in questions, and /hæv/, /hævnt/, /hæz/ and /hæznt/ in short answers. For example:

► P4.06 A: Have /hæv/ you finished?
B: Yes, I have /hæv/. or: No, I haven't /hævnt/.

We also use /hæz/ and /hæv/ for stress. For example:

► P4.07 A: He hasn't /hæznt/ sent the contract.
B: He has /hæz/ sent it – look, it's here!

- 1 ► P4.08 Listen and complete the sentences. Use 've, have, 's or has.

- _____ never bought any good business books. But _____ read a few.
- _____ read a few, too. I read some when I was a student.
- _____ heard of Daniel Kahneman. I think _____ won a Nobel Prize.
- Yes, _____ written a lot about how we make decisions.
- _____ read this book? I started it once or twice, but _____ never finished it.
- _____ just finished it. I liked it.

- 2 Work in pairs and practise saying the sentences in Exercise 1.

Lesson 5.2 ►

Intonation in conditionals

When the if clause comes first in a conditional sentence, we often use a fall-rise in the if clause and a fall in the main clause. These intonation patterns start on the main stressed word in the clause. For example:

If interest rates increase, borrowing will go down.

- 1 ► P5.02 Listen and underline the main stressed word in each clause.

- If I want to earn more money, I'll need to improve my English.
- If you cycle to work, you'll save thousands.
- If she has more money in the future, she'll move to a bigger flat.
- If I sell my car, I'll buy a bicycle.
- If the weather's fine, I'll walk to work tomorrow.
- If you take your lunch to work, you'll save hundreds a year.

- If they don't spend so much on transport, they'll save money.
- If he doesn't start saving for a deposit, he'll never buy a house.

- 2 Work in pairs and practise saying the sentences in Exercise 1.

Lesson 5.4 ►

Numbers and figures

It is important to know how to say numbers and figures when we are presenting or discussing them with colleagues.

'%' is pronounced /pə'sent/.

► P5.03 10% 65% 100%

'-' is usually pronounced /tə/.

► P5.04 aged 17–20 the years 1955–1987 50–55%

'.' in numbers is pronounced /pɔɪnt/.

► P5.05 3.5 27.2 85.5%

Years are usually pronounced in two parts: 1814 'eighteen fourteen', 1945 'nineteen forty-five', 2019 'twenty nineteen'. But 2000 is 'two thousand' and 2001–2009 are 'two thousand and one', etc.

► P5.06 1814 1945 2019 BUT: 2000 2001

The number '0' is usually 'oh' in room numbers, years and telephone numbers, 'oh', 'nought' or 'zero' in decimal numbers, 'oh' in 24-clock times and 'zero' for a temperature of 0°.

► P5.07 room 305 the year 1802

305 063 (= phone number) 0.05 13.05 (= time) just above 0°

- 1 Look at the numbers and decide how they will be pronounced.

- | | |
|--------------------------------|-------------------------|
| 1 room 101 | 7 18.07% |
| 2 46.092 | 8 below 0° |
| 3 the years 1605–1615 | 9 12.45–14.05 (= times) |
| 4 0.5% | 10 rooms 405–409 |
| 5 072 460 705 (= phone number) | 11 0371 050 368 280 |
| 6 10–12-year-olds | 12 the years 2006–2018 |

- 2 ► P5.08 Listen and check.

- 3 Work in pairs and practise saying the numbers and figures in Exercise 1.

Lesson 6.1

Vowel sounds: /ɪ/, /i:/, /aɪ/ and /ɪə/

Listen to the examples of words with these four vowel sounds:

▶ P6.01 /ɪ/ give /i:/ feel /aɪ/ price /ɪə/ near

- 1 Work in pairs. Put the words in the box in the correct column according to the pronunciation of the letters in bold.

believe busy city clearly climbing complete experienced high hiker issue metres people reliable realise simple zero

/ɪ/ give	/i:/ feel	/aɪ/ price	/ɪə/ near

- 2 ▶ P6.02 Listen and check. Then listen again and repeat.
- 3 ▶ P6.03 Work in pairs. Listen and practise saying the sentences.
- 1 I feel really tired after that meeting.
 - 2 I don't think my manager realises how experienced I am.
 - 3 We're going to issue a new price list next week.
 - 4 The simple fact is that the company needs more reliable people.
 - 5 I can't believe how busy we've been this month.

Lesson 6.2

Linking between words

When one word ends with a consonant sound (e.g. 's' in 'companies') and the next word begins with a vowel sound (e.g. 'e' in 'encourage'), the consonant is usually linked with the vowel. For example:

▶ P6.04 companies_encourage their_employees get_fit_and know_each_other

Compare a linked and an unlinked sentence.

▶ P6.05 Many companies_encourage their_employees to get_fit_and to get to know_each_other.

- 1 ▶ P6.06 Listen and repeat these phrases.
- 1 you're_all
 - 2 have_everything
 - 3 looked_everywhere for_it
 - 4 just_ask_if
 - 5 report_and_a pen_or pencil
 - 6 print_out_an_extra

- 2 Work in pairs. Complete the sentences and questions with the phrases in Exercise 1.

- 1 Do you _____ you need?
- 2 _____ copy.
- 3 I've _____.
- 4 A copy of the _____.
- 5 I'm glad _____ here.
- 6 _____ you need help.

- 3 ▶ P6.07 Listen and check. Then listen again and repeat.

- 4 Take turns to say the sentences and questions in Exercise 2. Listen and check that your partner includes the consonant-vowel links.

Lesson 7.2

can and can't

Can is pronounced /kən/ (weak form) when unstressed (e.g. in positive sentences and questions), and /kæn/ (strong form) when stressed, e.g. in question tags and short answers.

Can't is pronounced /kɑːnt/, but often without a clear /t/ at the end.

▶ P7.01 You can /kən/ check in any time.

We can't /kɑːnt/ leave our suitcases here, can /kæn/ we?

A: Can /kən/ you check in after midnight?

B: Yes, you can /kæn/.

I can't /kɑːnt/ find my reservation number.

- 1 ▶ P7.02 Listen and complete the sentences with can or can't.

- 1 I _____ open my door with my key card.
- 2 You _____ use the check-in kiosk.
- 3 You _____ go directly to the gate.
- 4 _____ I check in without my ID?
- 5 This robot _____ talk, _____ it?
- 6 Yes, it _____!

- 2 ▶ P7.03 Listen again to the sentences in Exercise 1 with can. Decide if you hear the weak form (W) or the strong form (S).

- 3 Work in pairs. Take turns to say the sentences in Exercise 1. Tell your partner if you hear 'weak can', 'strong can' or 'can't'.

Lesson 7.3 ►

Phrasing and pausing when giving instructions

To give clear instructions, it is important not to speak too fast and to pause between phrases. For example:

► P7.04 First of all – you need to click on 'Register' – you can find it – at the bottom of the screen – then enter your surname – name – and email address.

- 1 ► P7.05 Listen to this set of instructions and mark the pauses.

The first step is to sign in to your account. To do this you'll need to enter your name and ID number. When you've done this, go to the drop-down menu in the top right-hand corner of the screen, and select 'Create new report'. Then you can type your report or paste it in.

- 2 Work in pairs. Take turns to practise the instructions in Exercise 1, and give feedback: Does your partner use enough pauses?

Lesson 8.1 ►

Vowel sounds: /ɜ:/, /ʊ/, /u:/ and /əʊ/

Listen to the examples of words with these four vowel sounds:

► P8.01 /ɜ:/ bird /ʊ/ foot /u:/ group /əʊ/ no

- 1 ► P8.02 Listen and underline the example of each sound in the sentences.

- 1 /ɜ:/ (bird) It's a popular surf and tourist destination.
- 2 /ʊ/ (foot) The foundation is looking for solutions.
- 3 /u:/ (group) The traffic has already improved a lot.
- 4 /əʊ/ (no) They want to stop construction on the coast.

- 2 Listen again and repeat.

- 3 Work in pairs. Say one of the key words in Exercise 1, e.g. 'bird'. Your partner says the sentence that has that sound.

Lesson 8.2 ►

should and could

Should and could are pronounced /ʃəd/ and /kəd/ (weak forms) when unstressed e.g. in positive sentences.

Should and could are pronounced /ʃʊd/ and /kʊd/ (strong forms) when stressed, e.g. in question tags and short answers, and for emphasis.

Shouldn't is pronounced /ʃʊdnt/, but often without a clear /t/ at the end.

► P8.03

A: You should /ʃəd/ do more exercise.

B: Yes, I think I should /ʃʊd/.

You shouldn't /ʃʊdnt/ eat so much.

A: We could /kəd/ meet in the hotel reception.

B: We could /kʊd/, but it's so noisy there.

- 1 ► P8.04 Listen and complete the sentences with should, shouldn't or could.

- 1 We _____ catch a bus or get a taxi.
- 2 We _____ wait here any longer.
- 3 Do you think I _____ walk more?
- 4 Yes, and you _____, easily.
- 5 They _____ spend more on public transport.
- 6 Yes, they definitely _____.

- 2 ► P8.05 Listen again to the sentences in Exercise 1 with should and could. Decide if you hear the weak form (W) or the strong form (S).

- 3 Work in pairs. Take turns to say the sentences in Exercise 1 with should or could. Tell your partner if you hear strong or weak forms.

1.2 Comparatives and superlatives

Comparatives

We use comparatives to say how two things are different.

Planning a business lunch is easier than planning a wedding.

An outdoor event is always more difficult than an indoor event, because of the weather.

For this event, the schedule is less important than the budget.

One syllable: add -er	hard → harder cheap → cheaper
Two syllables ending in -y: change y to i and add -er	easy → easier happy → happier
Two or more syllables: use more	expensive → more expensive
Irregular	good → better bad → worse fun → more fun
Adjectives ending consonant + vowel + consonant: double the final consonant and add -er	big → bigger

Note: We can use less with all adjectives, both short and long.

Superlatives

We use superlatives to say that one thing has more or less of a quality than any other thing in the same group.

The Green Room is the biggest dining room in the hotel.

This is the most expensive restaurant in town.

Small events are the least difficult.

One syllable: add -est	hard → hardest cheap → cheapest
Two syllables ending in -y: change y to i and add -est	easy → easiest happy → happiest
Two or more syllables: use most	expensive → most expensive
Irregular	good → best bad → worst fun → most fun
Adjectives ending consonant + vowel + consonant: double the final consonant and add -est	big → biggest

Note: We can use least with all adjectives, both short and long.

1.5 can and could to ask for information

We use can and could to ask people to do things.

- Can you ... ? is generally a little less formal than Could you ... ? but both are often used in semi-formal writing.

Can you confirm that you have rooms available?

Could you tell me what your best price is?

- We often use please with can and could. Please can go in three places in the question.

Please can you confirm how long it takes to walk to the centre?

Can you please confirm how long it takes to walk to the centre?

Can you confirm how long it takes to walk to the centre, please?

2.2 enough and too

enough

We use enough:

- in positive sentences to say that the size, number, etc. of something is what is needed or wanted.

The hotel rooms are large enough for three guests.

There is enough time to see the city.

- in negative sentences to say that the size, number, etc. of something is less than is needed or wanted.

He isn't tall enough to go on the ride.

There isn't enough money for a taxi.

- in questions to ask if the size, number, etc. of something is what is needed or wanted.

Is it close enough to walk?

Are there enough places to eat?

1 adjective + (not) enough

Positive and negative
subject	be	adjective	enough
He	isn't	tall	enough	to go on the ride.
The hotel rooms	are	large	enough	for three guests.

Questions
be	subject	adjective	enough	?
Is	the car	big	enough	for five people?
Are	the shops	close	enough	to walk to?

2 There + be + (not) enough + noun

Positive and negative
There	be	(not) enough	noun / noun phrase
There	is	enough	time	to visit the zoo.
There	are	enough	attractions	to spend a day at the park.
There	isn't	enough	money	for a holiday this year.
There	aren't	enough	places	to eat.

Questions
be	there	enough	noun / noun phrase	?
Is	there	enough	time	to go shopping?
Are	there	enough	places	to eat?

too

We use too:

- in positive sentences to say that something is more or less than is right, good or needed.

The Bird Park is too small for all the species.

There were too many people at the theme park.

It is too much money to spend on a holiday.

1 too + adjective

subject	verb	too	adjective
He	is	too	short	to go on the ride.
These prices	are	too	expensive	for me.
The hotel	was	too	far	from the centre of town.
They	were	too	tired	to concentrate.

2 too many + countable noun

subject	verb	too many	countable noun
There	are	too many	tall buildings	on the coast.
There	were	too many	people	at the theme park.
		Too many	holidaymakers	go there in summer.

3 too much + uncountable noun

subject	verb	too much	uncountable noun
It	is	too much	money	to spend on a holiday.
There	was	too much	noise	in the hotel.
		Too much	queuing	is not popular with visitors.

2.5 Present Continuous

We use the Present Continuous:

- to talk about what is happening now.

I'm waiting outside Duke St offices.

I'm phoning the office now.

He's waiting outside Duke St offices.

He isn't waiting at Chester St offices.

Positive
I	am/'m		working.
You/We/They	are/'re
He/She/It	is/'s

Negative
I	am not/'m not		working.
You/We/They	are not/aren't
He/She/It	is not/isn't

Yes/No questions
Am	I		working?
Are	you/we/they
Is	he/she/it

Short answers
Yes,	I	am.	No,	I	'm not.
	you/we/they	are.		you/we/they	aren't.
	he/she/it	is.		he/she/it	isn't.

Open questions

When	am	I	working?
	are	you/we/they
	is	he/she/it

Spelling

Most verbs: add -ing to the infinitive	wait → waiting work → working go → going
Verbs ending in -e: replace -e with -ing	phone → phoning make → making take → taking
Verbs ending consonant + vowel + consonant: double the final consonant and add -ing	plan → planning get → getting stop → stopping
Note: Do not double the final consonant: • if the verb has two syllables and the stress is on the first syllable. • if the verb ends in -w , -x or -y .	happen → happening enter → entering show → showing fix → fixing enjoy → enjoying

3.2 Past Simple and Past Continuous

Past Simple

We use the Past Simple to talk about:

- completed actions and events in the past
She had a conference in Istanbul last week.
I went to the new shopping mall yesterday.
- completed events and actions that happen one after another.
We spent the day visiting the city. Then we had dinner in the hotel.
The carpet seller served us tea and then we negotiated the price.

We can use when to connect two clauses in the past.

When we sat down, the carpet seller served us tea.*

The carpet seller served us tea when we sat down.

Positive
I/You/He/She/It/We/They		worked.

Negative
I/You/He/She/It/We/They	didn't	work.

Yes/No questions
Did	I/you/he/she/it/we/they	work?

Short answers
Yes,	I/you/he/she/it/we/they	did.
No,	I/you/he/she/it/we/they	didn't.

Open questions
When	did	I/you/he/she/it/we/they	work?

Note: be and can

We form the negative and question forms of be in the Past Simple without the auxiliary did.

He wasn't in the shop this morning.

A: Were you in Istanbul at the weekend?

B: Yes, I was.

A: Where was your hotel?

B: In the city centre.

We form the negative of can in the Past Simple without the auxiliary did.

She couldn't decide what to buy.

Spelling
Most verbs: add -ed to the infinitive	decide → decided walk → walked want → wanted
Verbs ending in -e: add -d	dance → danced like → liked smile → smiled
Verbs ending consonant + -y: change y to i and add -ed	carry → carried study → studied try on → tried on
Verbs ending consonant + vowel + consonant: double the final consonant and add -ed	plan → planned prefer → preferred stop → stopped
Note: Do not double the final consonant: • if the verb has two syllables and the stress is on the first syllable. • if the verb ends in -w, -x or -y.	happen → happened enter → entered show → showed fix → fixed enjoy → enjoyed

Note: Many frequently used verbs are irregular.

be → was/were (negatives wasn't/weren't), can → could (negative couldn't), come → came, get → got, go → went, have → had, make → made, say → said, see → saw, take → took

See page 126 for a list of common irregular verbs.

Past Continuous

We use the Past Continuous:

- to talk about actions and situations happening at a specific moment in the past.

A: What were you doing at 10 o'clock this morning?

B: I was waiting at the airport for the visitors to arrive.

- to give 'background' details, e.g. the weather, the location or extra details about someone's life at the time.

It was raining for hours last night.

Shanghai was holding several conferences that week.

She was living in Madrid at the time.

We can use when to connect a clause in the Past Simple with a clause in the Past Continuous.

We were browsing in the bazaar (= situation) when we saw a beautiful lamp (= main action).

She was living in Madrid at the time (= situation). One day she was shopping in the market (= situation) when she met an old school friend (= main action).

Shanghai was holding several conferences that week (= situation). When I arrived at the hotel (= main action), hundreds of guests were waiting in the reception (= situation).

Positive
I/He/She/It	was	working.
You/We/They	were

Negative
I/He/She/It	was not/wasn't	working.
You/We/They	were not / weren't

Yes/No questions
Was	I/he/she/it	working?
Were	you/we/they

Short answers
Yes,	I/he/she/it	was.
	you/we/they	were.
No,	I/he/she/it	wasn't.
	you/we/they	weren't.

Open questions
When	was	I/he/she/it	working?
	were	you/we/they

Note: The spelling rules for -ing forms in the Past Continuous are the same as for the Present Continuous. See page 120 for full details.

Note: Verbs which describe states or feelings do not take the continuous form.

I was liking the book. ✗

I liked the book. ✓

He wasn't agreeing with my opinion. ✗

He didn't agree with my opinion. ✓

Some verbs can be both a state or an action verb.

I thought the book was interesting. ✓ (= opinion)

I was thinking about writing a book. ✓ (= action)

3.5 Types of adverbs

Type of adverb	Example
manner (how we do something)	They served the food very slowly . The food didn't come very quickly .
frequency (how often we do something)	We often bring our clients to the Orchid. The staff are always friendly and helpful.
time (when we do something)	We'll go to the Orchid Restaurant again soon . We last ate there yesterday .
place (where we do something)	We eat here every week. I had coffee there last night.
direction (which way something goes)	Turn left just past the Orchid Restaurant. Go straight on and you'll see the café.

Note: Adverbs can be one word like yesterday, today, tomorrow and soon or a phrase like on Fridays, in the summer and at home.

We ate in the Orchid last Friday.

We visited you in the summer.

I had dinner at home last night.

4.2 Present Perfect Simple

We use the Present Perfect Simple to talk about our experiences when we do not say a specific time in the past.

I've been to Poland.

She's worked in several countries.

Positive
I/You/We/They	have		worked.
He/She/It	has
Negative
I/You/We/They	have not / haven't		worked.
He/She/It	has not / hasn't
Yes/No questions
Have	I/you/we/they		worked?
Has	he/she/it
Short answers
Yes,	I/you/we/they	have.
	he/she/it	has.
No,	I/you/we/they	haven't.
	he/she/it	hasn't.
Open questions
When	have	I/you/we/they	worked?
	has	he/she/it

Note: The spelling rules for -ed forms in the Present Perfect Simple are the same as for the Past Simple. See page 121 for full details.

Many frequently used verbs are irregular.

eat → eaten

have → had meet → met

read /ri:d/ → read /red/

see → seen

teach → taught

See page 126 for a list of common irregular verbs.

been and gone

- We use been to say we have visited a place at some time in our lives.

She's been to New York.

- We use gone to say that a person is in that place now.

She's gone to New York. She's not in the office this week.

ever and never

- We use ever in questions to ask about experiences that we may have had 'at any time'.

Have you ever worked in Poland?

- We use never in positive sentences to say this is not an experience we have had.

He's never worked abroad.

Time expressions

We can use expressions of frequency with the Present Perfect Simple.

I've been to Poland once / twice / three times, etc.

Note: When we give details about the exact time of a past experience, we use the Past Simple.

A: Have you ever been to Poland?

B: Yes, I have. I went there last spring.

4.5 Prepositions of time

Preposition	Example
Use on: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> with dates. with days. if the day name is before the part of the day. 	This is to confirm our meeting on 12th April. I am able to attend the meeting on Friday. I'll see you on Wednesday morning.
Use at: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> with times. with words like lunchtime, breakfast and the weekend. with night. 	The meeting is on Friday 12th April at 9 a.m. What did you do at the weekend? Some staff do not like working at night.
Use in: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> with parts of the day (except night). with months. with years. with expressions like in three days and in a year. 	I am flying to Germany in the afternoon. I look forward to seeing you in March. We first met in 2012. I very much look forward to meeting you in two weeks. (= two weeks after today)
Use from ... to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> to show the beginning and the end of something. 	The meetings last from 10 to 11.30 a.m.
Use until: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> to show when something stops or changes. 	The meeting will last until 12.30.
Use no preposition with this, next , last and every .	I look forward to meeting you next week.

5.2 > First conditional

We use first conditional sentences to talk about conditions with possible results in the future.

If you cycle to work, you'll save hundreds.

If banks raise the interest rate on savings, savers will earn more.

If can go in two places in the sentence.

condition (If + Present Simple)	result (will + infinitive)
If interest rates increase,	borrowing will go down.

result (will + infinitive)	condition (if + Present Simple)
Borrowing will go down	if interest rates increase.

The condition never uses the word will.

condition	result
If I will sell my car,	I will save a lot of money.
result	condition
I will be healthier	if I will cycle to work.

Both parts of a conditional sentence need to have a subject.

If you make your lunch at home, you will save money.

He'll save more money if he moves to a smaller flat.

If you begin a conditional sentence with if, put a comma in the middle. You do not need a comma if you start with the result.

If interest rates go up, savers will be happy.

Savers will be happy if interest rates go up.

5.5 > because, so, so that

We use because to introduce the reason for something. It joins two sentences together.

We need to increase our prices because raw material costs are higher.

We use because of with a noun phrase but not with a verb.

We need to increase our prices because of rising costs.

We can also put because at the beginning of the sentence.

If we begin a sentence with because, we put a comma after the because clause.

Because raw material costs are higher, we need to increase our prices.

Because of rising costs, we need to increase our prices.

We use so to introduce a result. It joins two sentences together.

The result clause with so always comes after the main clause.

Raw material costs have increased so we need to raise our prices.

Note: If we want to put the result clause first, we must use because.

We need to raise our prices because raw material costs are higher.

We use so that to introduce the purpose of the action.

We are keeping the rise small so that our prices still remain competitive.

We can also use to + infinitive to introduce the purpose of the action.

We increased prices to cover costs.

Note: We can only use to + infinitive if the subjects are the same in both parts of the sentence.

We increased prices to cover costs. (= We increased prices so that we could cover costs.)

We use so that when the subject is different in the two parts of the sentence.

We increased our prices so that they covered our costs. (they = the prices)

6.2 > Pronouns with some- and every-

We use pronouns with some- to talk about 'a thing', 'a person' and 'in a place'.

Have you lost something?

Someone/Somebody phoned while you were out.

I've left my keys somewhere.

We use pronouns with every- to talk about 'all things', 'all people' and 'in all places'.

Do you have everything you need for your trip?

Everyone/Everybody should do a little sport if they can.

I've looked everywhere, but I can't find my wallet.

	-thing	-one/-body	-where some-	something	someone somebody	somewhere
every-	everything	everyone everybody	everywhere

6.5 > Linking words for sequence

We use First, Then/Next, After that and Finally to introduce instructions in order.

First, I'd like Ana to meet him immediately.

Then/Next, if we like it, we'll book it.

After that, we can inform the catering company of the final numbers.

Finally, we'll need a press release.

We use First, Then, After that and In the end to introduce past events in order.

First, we had a meeting and made our decision.

Then we informed all our staff.

After that, we invited staff to another meeting.

In the end, everything was agreed.

7.2 > can, have to, need to

We use can to talk about what is possible.

You can leave your suitcases here.

We use can't to talk about what is not possible.

We can't check in to the hotel because the computer isn't working.

We use have to and need to to talk about what is necessary.

You have to fill out this form.

You need to sign it at the bottom.

We use don't have to and don't need to to talk about what is not necessary.

I don't have to take my passport because I'm not going abroad.

We don't need to make a reservation because we already have one.

Note: don't have to and don't need to talk about things that are not necessary but that we can do if we want.

You don't have to talk to a robot, there is a human receptionist, too.

You don't need to tell the robot which language you speak because it knows from your passport.

7.5 Wh- questions

The most common question words in English are Where? When? Which? How many? How? Why? Who? Whose? What?

When is this happening?

Why did we decide to make changes?

What is the schedule for this?

Which colour should we choose?

Wh-	be or auxiliary verb
Wh- + noun

We often use negative questions to:

- make suggestions.
Why don't we use recycled materials for the packaging?
- ask for more information.
A: I don't like that colour.
B: Which colour don't you like?
A: We can't keep the same packaging.
B: Why can't we keep the same packaging?
A: I don't understand.
B: What don't you understand?

8.2 should and could for advice and suggestions

We use should to offer advice. It shows that the speaker thinks something is a very good idea.

I think we should take the bus.

We use shouldn't to offer advice. It shows that the speaker thinks something is a very bad idea.

We shouldn't buy a diesel car.

We use should in questions to ask for advice.

Should we hire a car on holiday?*

What should we do about the problem?

We use could to make suggestions. It shows that the speaker thinks something is a possible option.

A: You could take the bus or the train to the airport.

B: Or you could take a taxi. It's quicker.

C: Thanks – I think a taxi is best!

Note: We use could to give possible ideas, suggestions and solutions. We use should to give a stronger opinion. Sometimes both could and should are possible, depending on what we want to say.

should

Positive
I/You/He/She/It/We/They	should		finish it.
Negative
I/You/He/She/It/We/They	shouldn't		finish it.

------	--------	-------------------------	------------

couldPositive

I/You/He/She/It/We/They	could	finish it.
-------------------------	-------	------------

Note: We do not use the negative form couldn't to make suggestions or could to ask for advice.

8.5 > Future formsgoing to

We use going to to talk about our future intentions or predictions.

We are going to move to a new location.

They are going to introduce a new manufacturing process.

Positive

I	am/'m	going to	finish.
You/We/They	are/'re
He/She/It	is/'s

Negative

I	am not / 'm not	going to	finish.
You/We/They	are not / aren't
He/She/It	is not / isn't

Yes/No questions

Are	you/we/they
Is	he/she/it

Short answers

Yes,	I	am.
	you/we/they	are.
	he/she/it	is.
No,	I	'm not.
	you/we/they	aren't.
	he/she/it	isn't.

Open questions

When	am	I	going to	finish?
	are	you/we/they
	is	he/she/it

Note: We often use time expressions like this evening, tonight, tomorrow, on Sunday, next week and next month with going to.

Present Continuous

We use the Present Continuous to talk about future arrangements.

The company is moving offices on Friday.

We are holding a meeting next week.

Note: See page 120 for the rules for forming the Present Continuous and the spelling rules for -ing forms.

will

We use will for decisions, promises and facts about the future.

Using electric vehicles will cut down pollution from petrol.

We will answer any questions then.

Lesson 2.5 ➤ 3A

Good morning, Suki.

How are you today?

Good news! Basixlife are going to rent the offices. Can you email them a copy of the contract by close of business?

By the way, thanks for the report. It's very helpful but I also need the sales figures by the end of the day.

John Welles promises to send payment, but to be confirmed when. He apologises for the delay. He had a problem with his bank.

Lesson 2.5 ➤ 3B

Text your colleague:

- greet him/her.
- confirm the meeting today at 2.30 in your office.
- ask him/her to prepare a short presentation on the new office location and explain why the company has decided to move there.
- remind him/her of an appointment tomorrow morning with the owner of the building. Say you are still waiting to confirm the time.
- invite him/her to contact you if he/she needs any more information before the meeting.

Email the building owner:

- greet him/her.
- confirm the appointment tomorrow morning and ask him/her to confirm the time.
- tell him/her that you are out of the office, so if he/she needs to speak to you, to call you on your mobile.
- ask him/her to send the contract details before close of business today.
- end the email by saying you expect to sign the contract tomorrow.

Presentation B

Presenter 1

Introduction and overview

- 1 Introduce yourself and Presenter 2.
- 2 Introduce the subject of your talk: 'A comparison of customer visits to our e-commerce website before and after technical improvements made in Q2.'
- 3 Say who will talk about Parts 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Part 1: No. of visits we were getting in Q1

Industry average: 35,000/day

Our target figure: 40,000/day

Actual figure: 23,000/day (why so low?)

Part 2: Technical problems with site

- 1 Slow access speed (customers getting bored and leaving site without a purchase)
- 2 Not user-friendly (too complicated?)
- 3 Website down in Feb (lost business!)

Close and hand over to Presenter 2.

Presenter 2

Thank Presenter 1 and move on.

Part 3: Technical improvements in Q2

- 1 Moved website to a new host (faster, more reliable)
- 2 Redesigned site (easier to use)
- 3 Installed a better website optimisation tool (made us easier to find online)

Part 4: No. of visits we got in Q3-4

Q3: 39,000/day (the good news)

Q4: 45,500/day (even better news!)

Summary and conclusion

- 1 Customer visits doubled from Q1 to Q4!
- 2 We beat our Q1 target by 13%
- 3 We're now ahead of all our main competitors in this market!

Close and thank audience.

Scenario 1: Eco-clean

Eco-clean is a well-established company in Cardiff in the UK. It produces eco-friendly cleaning products. You have asked TGC to hire an Accountant for a year. You would prefer someone with experience of small and medium-sized companies and some basic knowledge of the Welsh language.

The contract is for 12 months from 10 November. No travel is required. Benefits are free tea/coffee and lunch vouchers.

You only have time to interview 3–5 candidates and are available in the week beginning 19 October. You are worried about interviewing candidates for this role because you have very little knowledge of accountancy. Explain what you need to the person from TGC (Student B).

Waste reduction and recycling

Current situation:

- We produce too much waste and need to reduce disposal costs.
- We sometimes put e-waste (e.g. batteries, computers, printers, mobile phones) into normal waste bins and this is illegal.

Cost:

- With the new council prices, waste disposal will cost approximately €8,000 per year.

Savings:

- If we can reduce waste by 50 percent, we can save at least €4,000 per year.

A waste reduction and recycling scheme means:

- no bins by staff desks.
- four recycling bins in every department on every floor for paper and cardboard (blue container), glass (green), plastic and cans (yellow) and food waste (brown).
- e-waste and toner cartridges go to the Facilities Department for disposal.
- staff get information every month about how much waste is being produced, recycling and how to throw away e-waste correctly.

A waste reduction and recycling scheme has these advantages for Walsh Ryan:

- It reduces waste disposal costs by €4,000 a year.
- Less waste and more recycling is good for the company's reputation.
- We avoid possible council fines* for incorrect disposal of e-waste in future.

*fine: money that you have to pay as a punishment when you do something wrong

BUSINESS WORKSHOP 5 ➤ 6A

Student B

You are a local shopkeeper. You support the local currency project for the following reasons:

- It will encourage people to shop locally.
- It will make people feel proud of your town.
- It has been successful in many other towns.

You don't like the other projects for these reasons:

- Time bank: You're too busy to share your time.
- Saturday market: It will compete with your business.

Results

0-5 You sometimes find it difficult to understand how other people are feeling and are not very comfortable sharing their problems with them. This can sometimes be a good thing in a crisis – when everybody else is stressed, you stay calm. But most jobs these days involve working with other people in situations which are occasionally stressful, so perhaps you need to develop your people skills a bit more.

6-10 You can usually understand the feelings of others and will offer support if you think they really need it. Sometimes people just want to be left alone to manage their own problems and you respect this, but perhaps you could make sure they don't need any help or advice first.

11-15 You find it easy to understand the feelings of others and usually do your best to support them. You are a good friend and colleague and a useful person to have in a team – especially in high-stress situations. But be careful you don't share other people's problems too much and make yourself unhappy as well!

Share as many ideas as you can in the meeting and remember to comment on other people's ideas, too. Here are a few suggestions to get you started:

- Send specially designed 50th anniversary 'thank you' cards to our clients.
- Create a special e-magazine about the agency.
- Interviews with our clients and/or staff and post the interviews on our YouTube channel.

Situation 2, Student 1 (S1)

You're a little worried about meeting S2 because:

- 1 several sales units have still not sent you their sales figures and you can't complete the performance charts S2 needs until you have these.
- 2 the company internet wasn't working for 24 hours this week, which has put you another day behind schedule.
- 3 the software you're using to produce the charts keeps crashing.

In your meeting with S2 make sure you:

- 1 apologise for being behind schedule.
- 2 explain the problems you're having, but don't make excuses.
- 3 try to suggest some possible solutions.

Here are a few ideas for suggestions you could make.

- 1 While you're waiting for some of the sales units to send you their figures, you could start adding the figures you have to S2's report.
- 2 You urgently need some IT support or new chart-making software.
- 3 If you can have a three-day extension as well, you're sure you can finish the job.

S2 will start the conversation.

BUSINESS WORKSHOP 8 > 4A

Multifunctional printers (MFPs)

Current situation: Employees are using too much paper because the current printers are old, frequently break down and do not print very well.

MFPs:

- can scan, copy and print in a single machine.
- will reduce the amount of printing by being more efficient than the current printers.
- have lower maintenance costs than the current printers.
- allow each person to have a code to use them; this:
 - is good for security.
 - allows the Facilities Department to measure copies per person.
 - reduces unnecessary copying as people think before they print.

Cost:

- €10,800 per year to lease six machines including repair and maintenance service.

Savings:

- reducing printing by 50 percent means savings of more than €11,000 a year in electricity bills, toner and paper.

Exceptions:

- Not everyone can share printers.
 - Senior managers will want their own printers.
 - The Legal and Human Resources departments have documents that other people should not see, so they will need their own printers.

- any parking?
- swimming pool and gym

Helper

You are going to listen to the Speaker describing a disappointment to you. As he/she describes it, make sure you:

- 1 say how sorry you are.
- 2 show him/her that you understand how he/she feels.
- 3 encourage him/her to see the positive side.
- 4 encourage him/her to try again.
- 5 share a personal disappointment with him/her.
- 6 advise him/her to think of the future and learn from his/her experience.

Take a few minutes to look again at the expressions in Exercises 7 and 8. When the Speaker is ready, have your conversation.

Review form – Flamingo Palace Hotel We value your feedback. Please leave your comments about the hotel here.

How often do you stay here?	The rooms are a little small and sometimes they are not cleaned very well, so we think it is a little bit too expensive.
When did you last stay here?	Our clients are usually happy with the Flamingo. The location of the hotel is very convenient for our company. The food is always good in the restaurant and the price is reasonable.
What was the purpose of your last visit?	We recommend the Flamingo Palace for low-cost business trips in the area, but unfortunately, we cannot recommend it to everyone.
What do/did you like about the hotel?	Our company sometimes has conferences at the Flamingo Palace and has visitors staying there almost every week.
Is/Was there anything you aren't/weren't happy with?	They were visiting our new factory and attending meetings in our offices.
Would you recommend us?	Two of our clients stayed there a few days ago.

Situation 2, Student 2 (S2)

You're getting a little nervous about the report you have to write because:

- 1 it was late last sales quarter and the directors were not happy – that's why you brought in S1 to help you this time.
- 2 with only six days to complete the report for this sales quarter, it could be late again!
- 3 the sales unit performance charts are perhaps the most important part of the report.

In your meeting with S1 make sure you:

- 1 find out why he/she's having problems, but try not to blame him/her.
- 2 ask him/her to suggest some solutions.
- 3 suggest some solutions of your own.

Here are a few ideas for suggestions you could make.

- 1 You know the sales units are sometimes slow to send their sales figures through. If S1 is still waiting for them, offer to contact the units directly.
- 2 You're happy to give S1 any technical assistance he/she needs, e.g. IT support, an assistant for a couple of days.
- 3 You could also give S1 a one-day extension to finish the charts if you have to, but not more – when you have the charts, you need at least four days to complete the report.

You start: Ah, there you are! Have you got a moment? How are you doing with those performance charts?

You can't go to the strategy meeting with your partner on the 10th because the HR Director has just told you he's visiting on that day. This could be good news for you if the meeting is brought forward; you really want to have something to report about at your board meeting on the 9th. When your partner calls:

- 1 try to bring the meeting forward to the previous week if you can, but be flexible!
- 2 suggest that, because your partner is coming from Warsaw, it might be nice to meet in the afternoon, stay overnight in Paris and continue the following morning – the best days for you would be the 2nd to the 3rd, or the 4th to the 5th.
- 3 be flexible and offer to move some appointments if it helps you to bring the meeting further forward.
- 4 remember to confirm any arrangements you make before you finish your call.

Martine's Coffee Shop

Martine Burgess opened her pop-up coffee van last week. 'I'm delighted with the response. During the week lots of people come by here for their morning coffee on their way to work.' Martina was a barista in a large coffee chain before she started her own business. 'People want a top-quality coffee wherever they are today, and I saw an opportunity to be my own boss. With the van and a few tables I can move around the city. It's quick and easy to park and open for business.' She often makes many stops in a day at offices, sports events, concerts and conferences. 'Weekdays I can focus on the office workers and shoppers. Weekends I can park near big events. I'm learning a lot about the different neighbourhoods in the city and finding out the best places to be. I want to have a regular route. Customers like to see a familiar smiling face.'

Read the interview with Kathryn Bishop on this page and put the questions in the correct place. Two questions are not used.

- What is your favourite book?
- What is an average day at work like?
- What is the biggest lesson you have learnt?
- What is the best advice you have ever received?
- What is the worst job you have ever had?

Read your article again and answer the questions.

- What did Kathryn study at university?
- Which types of organisations has she worked for?
- When does she seem busiest – on her teaching or non-teaching days?
- How many jobs does she have now?
- In which parts of her life has Deborah Tannen's book helped her?
- How does she try to organise herself?

Women in Business: Kathryn Bishop

Kathryn Bishop works as a Consultant and is also an Associate Fellow at the University of Oxford's Saïd Business School. She has a degree in English and American literature from Wellesley College in the USA, and a Masters in English Studies from Oxford. She designs and teaches women's leadership development programmes. She has worked for financial services companies and has had a variety of roles in universities and government.

¹ When teaching at Saïd, I am busy from breakfast until after dinner each night: listening, presenting, holding discussions and learning from participants, as well as checking with the administrative staff if there are any practical problems that I need to respond to.

¹⁵ On non-teaching days I might meet with academic colleagues to discuss new ideas or parts of the programme, or talk to people in other departments, such as marketing and business development, who ²⁰ make the programme happen. I have three jobs and two voluntary roles and I enjoy the variety. I regularly learn something in one job that can be useful in the other.

² An Intimate History of Humanity by Theodore Zeldin. It has taught me to look at a problem in many different ways. I also recommend You Just Don't Understand: Women and Men in Conversation by Deborah Tannen, an American professor of linguistics – a book that has helped me work in boardrooms and also helped my marriage.

³⁰ ³ There is only so much time in a day and there is always more to do. The advice I have found most useful in dealing with this problem is, 'Only do what only you can do.' I used to manage my time carefully, but now I ³⁵ manage my energy.

1 Fitness tracking

Team leader – open the meeting by summarising the following information to the rest of your group.

As you may know, employers are becoming increasingly worried about the health of their employees. Fortunately, it's now really easy to use modern 'fitness tracking' technologies to check the diet, stress levels, sleep and exercise patterns of staff.

At this company, we feel we have a special responsibility to make sure our employees enjoy healthy, productive lifestyles. So the proposal is that we introduce fitness tracking here.

I'd like to get your input before we finalise anything. So, what does everybody think?

TEAM NOTES

Pros

- 1 Company performance (healthy employees perform better – a lot of work hours are lost every year because of illness and unhealthy lifestyles)
- 2 Incentives (staff who score highly on the health checks could be given incentives, e.g. they could pay less into their company health plan)
- 3 Public relations (fitness tracking would be good for the company's image as a caring employer)
- 4 Anything else?

Cons

- 1 Privacy (some employees may not like being 'spied on' in this way – they could lose confidence in us as an employer)
- 2 Stress (if people feel pressure to perform well on the health checks, they may become more anxious and unfit, not less)
- 3 Confidentiality (how can we make sure fitness tracker information remains private?)
- 4 Anything else?

Lesson 5.5 > 3A

Dear Sir/Madam,

- a We look forward to supplying you in the future and thank you for your business.
- b Yours faithfully,
- c We are sure you will agree that quality is very important.
- d Therefore, we must continue to use the best quality raw materials.
- e As you know, we have not increased our prices for three years now.
- f The increase is only small so that our prices still remain competitive.
- g Unfortunately, because of increasing costs, we now need to raise our prices by 5 percent from 1st November.
- h Enclosed with this letter is our new price list.

Situation 1, Student 1 (S1)

You're getting a little nervous about the presentation in Montreal because:

- 1 there will be a big audience of important people and Canada is a major market for you.
- 2 you will be using Apple Keynote software for the first time on your new MacBook Pro.
- 3 the presentation will be in English, but you're not sure if English will be everyone's first language. You've asked S2 to produce the slides in both English and French.

In your meeting with S2 make sure you:

- 1 find out why he/she's having problems, but try not to blame him/her.
- 2 ask him/her to suggest some solutions.
- 3 suggest some solutions of your own.

Here are a few ideas for suggestions you could make.

- 1 You didn't ask how well S2 knows Apple Keynote – he/she may need some IT support.
- 2 The situation is urgent, so you're prepared to pay S2 overtime to get the job done.
- 3 You could also give S2 a one-day extension to finish the slides if you have to, but not more – you fly to Montreal in three days' time!

You start: Ah, there you are! Have you got a moment? How are you doing with those slides for my presentation?

Lesson 6.4 > 7A

Student B

You're the note-taker at the meeting. Put all the ideas on a flipchart or a large piece of paper. You also have some ideas yourself:

- Create a special 50th anniversary company logo to put on our website and business cards.
- Organise a 'retro party' for our clients and staff – everyone wears clothes that were popular fifty years ago!
- Provide fifty $1,000 scholarships for students at the local art and design school.

Paul

You are married with two young children.

- You want to move to a smaller city like Tallinn.
- Your wife is from Finland, which is next to Estonia.
- You think Tallinn will be cheaper to live in than Berlin where rents are rising fast.

BUSINESS WORKSHOP 4 > 4B

Finance Manager

You are the Finance Manager. You want no major changes to work patterns if possible. The thing you want most is to keep the split working day.

- 1 The working hours – You want to keep a split working day from 8.30 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Monday to Thursday and everyone finishes by 3 p.m. on Friday. If employees want or need to work late, they should be allowed to.
- 2 Flexible hours – You don't think this is necessary. All staff can have one hour off a week for personal business if necessary.
- 3 The lunch break – A one-hour lunch break is very important in order to have a break from work and a good lunch. On days when you have business lunches this needs to be at least two hours.
- 4 Working from home – You don't think this is a good idea. It means people get less work done and increases costs.

Lesson 6.3 > 10A

Speaker

Choose one of the two situations below or a real situation you don't mind talking about. Take a few minutes to prepare. When you are ready, explain to the Helper what went wrong step by step. Let him/her make comments and offer support as you speak.

The nightmare presentation

I just gave my worst presentation ever!
It took me weeks to prepare it, but ...
... everything went wrong!
My PowerPoint didn't work properly!
My microphone caught all my breathing!
I was so nervous I forgot my introduction!
Nobody laughed at my jokes!
There were almost no questions in the Q&A!
The applause from the audience at the end was terrible!
Worst of all, my boss was in the audience!

The missed promotion

I didn't get the promotion!
I worked so hard for it, but ...
... my promotion interview was a disaster!
The boss said I always miss my deadlines!
He/She also said I have poor leadership skills!
Customer feedback was terrible – they hate me!
Even my assistant said I'm difficult to work for!
Profits have gone down since I joined the firm!
The atmosphere in the office has got worse, too!
Worst of all, I just heard my assistant got the job!

Cloud computing

Current situation: Employees' computers are connected to more powerful computers in Walsh Ryan's offices called servers.

Cloud computing:

- stores data and programs online so the company will not need servers.
- means files and information can be available through a web browser.

Advantages for Walsh Ryan:

- Hardware – Don't need to spend money buying new computers or security systems or keeping them working properly (Savings: approximately €12,000 a year)
- IT staff – Can spend less time making sure the servers work properly and more time on other projects (Savings: approximately €15,000 a year)
- Energy – Less electricity to run the computer servers and cooling and ventilation system for the server room (Savings are difficult to calculate: approximately €3,000 a year)

Cost:

- €90 per user per year, total €36,000 for 400 staff with the ability to store as much as needed

Note: The savings each year are approximately €30,000, which is lower than the cost of cloud computing at €36,000. Many companies find out that cloud computing actually costs them more, not less, than having servers in their offices. Don't say this in your presentation. Do your colleagues notice that this will not save money?

You heard from a colleague this morning that your partner may have to change your appointment. This is actually good news for you because you'd really like more time to complete your research before the strategy meeting. When your partner calls:

- 1 try to postpone your meeting until after the 10th if you can, but be flexible!
- 2 suggest that for such an important meeting you really need a whole day – the best days for you would be the 12th, 15th or 17th.
- 3 be flexible and offer to move some appointments if it helps you to postpone the meeting for longer.
- 4 remember to confirm any arrangements you make before you finish your call.

Vice President

You are the Vice President and lead the meeting. You want to introduce these work patterns if possible. The thing you want most is to make the lunch break shorter.

- 1 The working hours – You want to stop late-night working in the Madrid office.
- 2 Flexible hours – You want a system in which employees can start work any time between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. and finish anytime between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. They have to work 37 hours a week but can organise how they do that.
- 3 The lunch break – You want to make this shorter. In Denmark it's usual to have 30 minutes for lunch and bring a sandwich from home to eat in the company lunch room or canteen.
- 4 Working from home – You think office staff should have the option to work from home one day a week.

Lesson 4.3 > 12A

2 Third-agers

Team leader – open the meeting by summarising the following information to the rest of your group.

Did you know that, on average, people are living six years longer today than they did in 1990? And, as a result, they expect to work longer, too.

At this company we value the experience of our older employees. And we want our younger staff to be able to learn from that experience. So the proposal is to introduce 'The Silver Scheme' – our way of saying thank you to our retired staff by paying them to coach junior employees on a part-time basis.

I'd like to get your input before we finalise anything. So, what does everybody think?

TEAM NOTES

Pros

- 1 Intellectual capital (the Silver Scheme is a great way to make sure the combined knowledge of the company is not lost when staff members retire)
- 2 Economic success (economists predict that GDP will increase by 15 percent if people over 65 continue to work)
- 3 Innovation (there are a lot of innovative but high-risk projects we can't afford to give to our full-time staff, but ex-employees might enjoy the challenge of these)

Cons

- 1 Peer pressure (a lot of our employees look forward to retirement – they do not want to feel pressure to continue to work)
- 2 Exploitation (is this just a clever way of continuing to employ older members of staff on lower pay?)
- 3 Loss of opportunities (isn't keeping older employees on, even on a part-time basis, taking jobs away from younger people?)
- 4 Anything else?

Lesson 8.4 > 6B

Presenters

During the presentation, you realised that some of the team are against the idea of having an open-plan office. While you understand and have the same worries, you have to respond positively and in line with company policy.

Use strategies from Exercise 1 and expressions from Exercise 4 to manage the Q&A session. Remember to do some of the following to make sure the Q&A session runs smoothly:

- 1 Invite (more) questions from the audience.
- 2 Repeat the question so that everyone can hear.
- 3 Thank the participant for their question.
- 4 Ask for clarification if necessary.
- 5 Make sure you have answered the question or say you can't answer the question.

Lesson 5.4 > 9A

1 Did you know that, on average, female managers in the UK earn just over three-quarters of what men do?

2 To put that in context, it means that women work for well over one and a half hours a day for free!

3 Have a look at this diagram, which shows the average salaries of male and female managers.

£9,069

4 As you can see, women are earning about £9,000 a year less than men – roughly the price of a small family car.

5 To give you an idea of just how much that is, it means that during her career a woman will lose more than £400,000 in earnings!

6 To put it another way, women would have to work until their late 70s or early 80s to earn as much as men!

7 And, as you can see, the gender pay gap for managers in their mid-40s to early 60s

34% 45–60 yrs 35% 60+ yrs is even worse.

8 The key takeaway here is that UK employment laws for equal pay are clearly not working in practice.

9 Now, have a look at this. In the UK, women are approximately half the total workforce.

10 But currently only about three out of ten board directors in the UK are women.

11 Numerous studies show that companies with more women at senior levels enjoy both higher profits and share value. So, in terms of attracting the best talent, unequal pay is not only unfair. It's bad for business!

12 In summary, what we need is UK companies to be open about pay, so that they cannot hide differences in earnings for the same job, and equal pay becomes a reality. Let's work together to achieve this!

Lesson 8.4 > 6B

Q&A session 1

Questioner 1

You work in a creative role and need a lot of space. You often work with freelancers and need space to meet with them. You've worked in an open-plan office before and didn't like it.

Questioner 2

You deal with staff-related issues and need privacy from time to time. You are new to the company and like the idea of working in an open-plan office. However, as you have never worked in this way before, you still have some questions.

Choose 2–3 points from the box or think of your own. Make questions to ask the Presenter.

noisy, difficult to concentrate, not enough storage space, too hot / too cold, difficulty booking meeting rooms, desks are allocated to the people who arrive first, possible problems with private information, makes it easier for people to get sick, not much privacy, reduces the amount of work that gets done

Student B

Angelica's Fashion Jewellery

Angelica Wilson studied art and design at university. She creates her own jewellery and also makes personalised jewellery for customers who want something special. 'I sell my products online as well as in pop-ups in other people's stores, art galleries and temporary exhibitions. I didn't want fixed retail opening hours. I like the flexibility of pop-ups.' Angela promotes her pop-ups on social media to attract her customers to the events. 'This creates opportunities for me and for the other businesses where I have my pop-ups, so everyone wins. Regular customers come to my pop-up events to see me and my new designs.'

Angelica says retail habits are changing and retailers need less space today. 'People are shopping more online and younger consumers want more urban, boutique-style shopping experiences. There is a movement away from big stores and towards shopping small and shopping local. The pop-up store is part of this new retail experience.'

Lesson 7.4 > 5B

You have a lot of experience of online meetings. You understand how the technology works and aren't worried if there are technical problems. You don't have much patience with people who don't understand technology.

Lesson 4.3 > 12A

3 The human cloud

Team leader – open the meeting by summarising the following information to the rest of your group.

Has anyone heard of the 'human cloud'? It's a global network of freelance digital workers who can be employed by companies just when they need them. Employers go to a special website, where they invite freelancers to compete for projects. The pay is good, but companies save money on recruitment, holiday pay, sick pay and other costs.

The proposal is that we transfer some of the jobs here to the cloud and save some money.

I'd like to get your input before we finalise anything. So, what does everybody think?

TEAM NOTES

Pros

- 1 Cost savings (the money saved on employing freelancers could be used to create a better work environment for our employees)
- 2 Flexibility (some employees could decide to work from home)
- 3 Job security (having freelancers to work for us only when we need them will actually protect permanent staff)
- 4 Anything else?

Cons

- 1 Quality (how do we know the freelancers are good at their jobs?)
- 2 Wages (if the freelancers do a good job for less, wages for permanent staff may go down)
- 3 Job security (employees may even lose their jobs in the long term)
- 4 Anything else?

BUSINESS WORKSHOP 5 > 6A

Student C

You are an unemployed builder. You support the time bank project for the following reasons:

- It will give unemployed people something to do.
- It will give people with little or no money a way to get jobs done – building work, for example.
- There are no financial costs – no taxes, no fees.

You don't like the other projects for these reasons:

- Local currency: Money is money. If people don't have much, it doesn't matter if it's local currency or 'real' currency.
- Saturday market: People will sell things other people don't really need – art, for example.

Scenario 2: Bike-co

Bike-co, which is based in Dublin, organises cycling tours around Ireland.

You want to hire a Marketing Consultant to develop the business internationally and have hired TGC for their recruitment services. You want to do more business in Europe, so candidates must be willing to travel abroad at least once a month. They must be able to speak and write French or Spanish to a high level. Knowledge of html is also necessary.

This is an 18-month contract to begin with and you would prefer a recent graduate. The company is young and dynamic and you are looking for someone with a similar personality who loves cycling.

Interviews will take place 14–16 September in Dublin. You can interview up to 5 candidates. Benefits include lunch vouchers, cheaper Bike-co tours and a free travel card. Explain what you need to the person from TGC (Student A).

BUSINESS WORKSHOP 2 ➤ 6A

Ewa

You like the idea of living and working in Berlin.

- It's just a three-hour drive from your parents, who live in Poznań.
- It's an international and multicultural city.
- It's cheap to live near the centre and to get to work by bike.
- Estonia is a good, cheap alternative to Berlin.

Unfortunately, Marc can't attend the meeting, so you're the chair! But don't worry. All you have to do is:

1 Open the meeting:

'Good morning/afternoon, everyone. Thanks a lot for coming. Unfortunately, Marc can't be here, so I'm chairing the meeting today. As you know, we're here to discuss how we celebrate our 50th anniversary. So I'd like to hear all your ideas. This is a great publicity opportunity for us. Let's make the most of it.'

2 Explain the rules of the meeting:

Rules of the meeting

- Let's have lots of ideas – keep them coming!
- Please let everybody speak.
- Stay positive – don't be negative!
- If you make a negative comment, you'll have to put money in the negative comment box! 😊
- Try to build on other people's ideas.
- If you can see a problem with someone's idea, don't criticise it – ask a question.

3 You also have a few ideas yourself to share with the team:

- Set up a special 50th anniversary website linked to our home page.
- Organise some kind of creative event – perhaps a video exhibition of our best commercials.
- Give our clients personalised 'retro gifts' – gifts which were popular 50 years ago!

4 Close the meeting:

'OK, thanks a lot, everybody. Some great ideas there. Let's stop for today and meet again in a couple of weeks.'

Q&A session 3

Questioner 1

You are very organised, and everything in your office is always in the right place. You have never wanted to share an office in the past. You feel most people are not tidy or organised and you think this will make it hard for you to work.

Questioner 2

You are new and would prefer to share an office with a more experienced member of the team, such as Questioner 1. You like the social side of work. You have some questions about the open-plan office as this is a new idea for you.

Choose 2–3 points from the box or think of your own. Make questions to ask the Presenter.

noisy, difficult to concentrate, not enough storage space, too hot / too cold, difficulty booking meeting rooms, difficult to adjust temperature to individuals, possible problems with private information, makes it easier for people to get sick, not much privacy, reduces the amount of work that gets done

Lesson 6.1 > 10C

- A new Sales Manager – knows the industry well, is a great public speaker but doesn't know the company's products well

- An Engineer – knows the products very well, very shy, afraid of public speaking
- A Vice President – friendly, good at conflict management, great listener; must leave on a business trip at 12.30 tomorrow
- A Sales Representative – knows the products, friendly, loves talking, but sometimes talks too much and changes the topic of conversation
- A Project Manager – excellent at planning, cooperation, communication, talented public speaker

Before we do anything else, we have to let all our clients know about the move. ¹Alex and Miguel, you should do that?

The IT team are trying to make sure that the new files systems are ready and working on 22/05. ²You all contact them to transfer your files by Monday 15 at the latest.

Luis, I know you will check that the builders are following the new plan next week. ³Why don't you update me the next day?

⁴Go and send me a meeting invite.

Unfortunately, the painting company we booked cannot do the work now so we will have to find a new company. The deadline for the painting is 15/05. And finally, we need someone to be there for the furniture delivery on 22/05 and put it in the right place. ⁵I want anyone to help with these two tasks?

Yelena

You are young, free and single and love travelling.

- You're happy to stay in London or move to Berlin.
- Moving to Tallinn does not interest you.
- You're a digital nomad* so you don't really need a desk in an office.

digital nomad: person who uses computers and the Internet to work wherever he or she is, for example abroad, coffee shops, public libraries, etc.

Lesson 3.3 > 9

Situation 1, Student 2 (S2)

You're a little worried about meeting S1 because:

- 1 a colleague has been off work with illness, so you've been extra busy for the last two weeks. You've finished about three-quarters of the slides, but they won't be finished by tomorrow.
- 2 you've used Apple Keynote before, but you're much more familiar with PowerPoint, so it's taking longer than usual to prepare the slides.
- 3 S1 asked you to prepare slides in English and French for the Montreal audience, but your French is not perfect and this is holding things up.

In your meeting with S1 make sure you:

- 1 apologise for being behind schedule.
- 2 explain the problems you're having, but don't make excuses.
- 3 try to suggest some possible solutions.

Here are a few ideas for suggestions you could make.

- 1 PowerPoint works fine on Apple computers – you could convert your work on Apple Keynote into PowerPoint and finish the other slides a lot faster.
- 2 Because you're having difficulty translating the slides it may be quicker to email them to a colleague in the Paris office, who can check them.
- 3 If you can have a two-day extension, you're sure you can finish the job.

S1 will start the conversation.

Lesson 7.5 > 3A

Firstly, I'm going to talk about last quarter's sales figures and then explain the new way of organising our sales teams. I'll also look at the reasons for the falling sales in our mobility products and why our health food sales are increasing.

TARGETING NEW MARKETS

Why? – Asian markets, mainly India and Malaysia, are interested in buying our products. We've had a lot of enquiries from there.

- What? – doing market research there multinational focus group come up with new design

When? – Market research will finish in 2 months, the focus group is going to have a meeting next month, designers are going to work on a new design after that.

Lesson 6.4 > 7A

Student E

Share as many ideas as you can in the meeting and remember to comment on other people's ideas, too. Here are a few suggestions to get you started:

- Create a wall display in the office telling the story of the agency in words and pictures.
- Ask our design department to create a comic book with staff members as characters in the story.
- Give money to a charity that helps young people interested in the arts.

BUSINESS WORKSHOP 5 > 6A

Student A

You are leading the meeting to decide which project the local government should work on. Guide the meeting through this agenda:

- 1 Welcome everyone to the meeting and explain its purpose.
- 2 a Ask: Who supports the local currency project? Allow that person to explain why.
b Ask for arguments against the local currency project.
- 3 a Ask: Who supports the time bank project? Allow that person to explain why.
b Ask for arguments against the time bank project.
- 4 a Ask: Who supports the Saturday market project? Allow that person to explain why.
b Ask for arguments against the Saturday market project.
- 5 Take a vote, including your own. One project needs at least three votes to win. Keep discussing the three projects until one project has at least three votes.

Lesson 8.5 > 3A

Proposal for improving sales

As you know, we're trying to improve company sales. We have done research and are now ready to propose ideas.

Firstly, we are going to sell more green products. This is because many customers tell us that they like our products, but they want to be sure that they are not bad for the environment. Secondly, we also plan to change our supplier so that we have eco-friendly materials. Finally, we are planning to launch the new product range next June.

Also, we are going to help some local environmental projects. We are therefore holding a meeting next week to discuss ideas for these projects. We will also answer any questions you may have.

Lesson 8.5 > 3B

Your manager has asked you to write an update about company changes which will happen next month. Organise the update into three paragraphs.

Here are the most important points:

- moving to smaller offices outside city centre – more eco-friendly
- free company bus to bring staff to work from city centre – more relaxing for staff, less pollution
- working from home – fewer cars on road – full details coming soon
- meeting next Friday to discuss changes

Q&A session 2

Questioner 1

You work in Finance and often work to tight deadlines. You need an office where you can concentrate. You have a friend who works in an open-plan office and who often complains about it.

Questioner 2

You work in Sales and spend a lot of time on the phone. You like the idea of working in an open-plan office but are worried you may disturb your colleagues.

Choose 2–3 points from the box or think of your own. Make questions to ask the Presenter.

noisy, difficult to concentrate, not enough storage space, possible problems with private information, problems with changing lighting to individual needs,

Share as many ideas as you can in the meeting and remember to comment on other people's ideas, too. Here are a few suggestions to get you started:

- Organise sports events for staff, clients and suppliers.
- Ask our writers to create a sixty-second commercial for the agency.
- Create a history of the company video with the person who started the agency.

BUSINESS WORKSHOP 5 > 6A

Student D

You work in an office, but in your spare time you paint pictures. You support the Saturday market project for the following reasons:

- It will give people a way to earn extra money from hobbies.
- It will give people an opportunity to buy things locally instead of buying them online.
- It will help young people learn about running businesses.

You don't like the other projects for these reasons:

- Local currency: It may make it easy for people to avoid paying tax.
- Time bank: Some people's time is more valuable than others – doctors are more important than builders, for example.

BUSINESS WORKSHOP 4 > 4B

Human Resources Manager

You are the Human Resources Manager. You want to introduce these work patterns if possible. The thing you want most is an intensive working day.

- 1 The working hours – You want to introduce an intensive working day with employees starting between 7 a.m. and 8.30 a.m. and finishing by 3 p.m. every day.
- 2 Flexible hours – Employees can start any time between 7 a.m. and 8.30 a.m. and finish any time between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. on any day Monday to Friday. They can decide their own start and finish time but must work 37 hours a week.
- 3 The lunch break – There is a 30-minute lunch break with this intensive system. Staff can also take a short coffee break during the morning.
- 4 Working from home – You don't think this is necessary with the new intensive timetable you want to start using.

N = Narrator A1 = Alex A2 = Alessio A3 = Amira

N: In a global economy, many companies do business overseas. This means that workers often travel to see their colleagues or clients abroad. There are many reasons why people travel for work.

A1: I go abroad to complete projects which are set by my company. Those projects can include setting up certain systems, laptops, docking stations, etc.

A2: I need to travel for work because sometimes the projects I do are based somewhere outside London, where I live, so I've been travelling to France, to Italy, to Spain, to Romania.

A3: I need to travel because we work with big brands and multinationals, and they want to understand different people in the different markets and countries, so we travel across the world.

N: An important part of business travel is organising transportation. When people travel internationally, they often fly, though in some cases taking the train is an option.

A1: I travel for work once or twice a month, on a regular basis. I tend to fly short haul and I use two different airlines.

N: Alex makes the most of his travel time and keeps busy during the flight.

A1: When I'm flying for business I tend to get my laptop out and do some work during the flight, and half an hour before my plane lands I remove my laptop, put it back in my bag, and get ready for the landing.

N: On business trips, you may need to stay overnight. It's important to book accommodation that is suitable for your trip and has everything you need, so you can keep working during your stay.

A2: The accommodation where I like to stay when I travel for work is ... is hotels, usually, but they need to be very close to the place where I need to go to work. What I expect at my location is wi-fi because I need to work most of the time when I'm back in my room. And, of course, parking, because usually I need to hire cars or a vehicle from the airport to the workplace.

N: When travelling for work, you may not know much about the local area and how to get around. Find out about transportation before you go. And when you get there, ask for help if you need it, or ask for directions.

A3: When I have to go from a business meeting to another meeting, I either use public transportation, because it's a really good way to mix with the locals, or I use a ridesharing app. I always worry about getting lost but it's part of the adventure. I carry an online map on my phone and, if I do get lost, I just ask people and they're really helpful.

N: Even if you've planned ahead, things can still go wrong. Your flight could be delayed or there might be a mistake with your hotel reservation. It's rare, however, to find a problem that cannot be solved.

A3: I remember once, I was at the airport lounge waiting for my flight, and I got really confused with timings; and then I get to the gate and it's written in huge red letters 'gate closed', and I start panicking. Thankfully, the staff were really helpful and they helped me through. And they rushed me to the plane through a back door, and I made my flight.

N: Like anybody who's done the same thing several times, regular business travellers have advice they can offer to others.

A2: My top travel tip when travelling for work is to be very efficient in organisation. Because this gives you time also to enjoy the place where you are going, after you've done your business.

1.3.1

J = Jasmine D = Driver G = Graham

J: Is it always this busy?

D: Not always. It depends. So, what are you doing in Dublin?

J: I am starting a new job on Monday. I'm a trainee at TGC. They're an HR consultancy firm. They advise companies on different aspects of their business – recruitment, company strategy, that kind of thing. They've invited all the new recruits to a welcome dinner. And it's happening ... right about now.

G: Jasmine just sent me a text – she's stuck in traffic but she'll be here soon. In the meantime, welcome to TGC. Cheers!

1.3.2

O = Orta A = Azra S = Shaun J = Jasmine

O: Where do you come from?

A: I'm from Turkey. But ... I've lived in Dublin for years.

O: Ah. You're basically a native now. What do you think about this restaurant?

A: It's ... a nice place.

S: Ah, the traveller is here!

J: Sorry I'm late. The traffic was a nightmare.

S: Friday night traffic. Always terrible. It can be like a car park out there sometimes. It can take me hours to get home.

J: Really? So you live outside the city?

S: Not as bad as Los Angeles, though. I was at a conference there last year. The traffic was so bad I arrived late and missed my presentation. The boss was not happy. But that's nothing compared to my flight from Dublin to Bangkok a few years back. Did I ever tell you that story? They lost all my luggage. I tell you, I'm never flying with that airline again.

1.3.3

T = Thiago J = Jasmine Al = Alex Az = Azra

T: Hi. I'm Thiago.

J: Jasmine. Nice to meet you.

T: You too. How long was your trip?

J: About an hour.

T: Shaun says you're American. Where are you from?

J: That's right. I'm from Boston. I went to university there. Do you know it?

T: No, I've never been, but I'd like to.

J: Thiago, that's a Brazilian name, isn't it?

T: It is. My father's from Brazil, but I'm Italian. So ... do you know Orta?

J: Yeah, I met her at the interview. She's really nice. Hey ... What do you know about working at TGC?

T: Not much.

Al: So, I heard you come from Turkey.

Whereabouts?

Az: Well, I was born in Istanbul, but my parents moved to London when I was five. We go back quite often to see family. Do you know Turkey?

Al: A little. I went there on holiday about three years ago. Which do you prefer, London or Istanbul?

Az: Hmmm. That's difficult! I love them both.

Al: No more difficult questions, I promise. We're supposed to be relaxing.

Az: No problem.

Let me give you some advice when making small talk. Number one: choose your topic carefully and don't be too negative. Don't talk about personal finances, politics or religion, or more personal topics. Be prepared to listen and remember to show interest in the other person and their opinions. Showing interest is simple. If you're sitting down, move your body forward a little, use eye contact and of course smile as you speak. Watch the other person's body language and if they start to look bored, change the subject. Most importantly, don't dominate the conversation.

Follow the AAA model that Azra used earlier in the video. AAA is a simple formula. Answer the speaker's question, add new information and then ask him or her another question. The conversation will run smoothly if you follow this model. Try it and see.

2.1.1

P = Presenter V = Vaiva Kalnikaite

P: When a new company launches, or an established company opens, a new branch, there's a decision to be made about where to locate the business.

It's an important decision to get right, and there are a number of factors which could influence it. These might include access to skilled staff, good transport links and reasonable rents for factory or office space.

Dr Vaiva Kalnikaite launched her company, Dovetailed, in 2010. It's a technology design studio and innovation lab.

V: We tend to work on projects that have human interaction so often it will be projects where we design software or, for example, an app, or it could also be a physical object – for example, we designed a 3D printer for printing food.

P: When Vaiva set up her company, she decided to locate it in Cambridge – a city famous for its university.

V: I was an intern in Cambridge with Microsoft and I really liked Cambridge because it's a very international city, it's a very vibrant city, it's full of really interesting companies from very small start-ups to well-established companies, and that's a really good reason to set up a business in that kind of environment.

P: Dovetailed is now a member of several business networks, which has clear benefits for the company.

V: Being part of these networks, we have access to local investment groups and we've been successful in getting some funding for some of our products.

P: Many companies based in Cambridge are attracted by the chance to connect with the university.

V: We were really interested in working with the university, so we talked to various departments to see if we can collaborate on something.

P: Today Dovetailed is part of a business programme at Cambridge University's Judge Business School and receives advice and support from the school.

V: We also work with, for example, engineering department and we have summer interns who come and work at Dovetailed. It's been really helpful to have an association to Cambridge University because it's given us, as a brand, global recognition.

P: For Dovetailed, locating the company in Cambridge has helped to attract talented staff, who want to work in a lively town.

V: Cambridge is a really nice place to live in, people can cycle everywhere, walk everywhere. My journey to work is three minutes by bike. There's lots of social things happening, lots of interesting cafés opening and it's very close to London.

P: Dovetailed has clients in London, so good transport links are important.

V: It's very important for us to be able to travel to London very quickly. It takes about 50 minutes by train or we can drive to London on a motorway. Again, it takes just over an hour.

P: So how does Vaiva feel about her decision to locate Dovetailed in Cambridge?

V: I'm very happy to have chosen Cambridge as a location to set up my business. I think it's an amazing place to live and work, and it's given us a lot of opportunity to grow.

2.3.1

S = Shaun A = Alex

S: Here it is. Your first assignment. Ready?

A: Yes, I ...

S: Don't worry, you'll be fine. Alright. Here's the situation. We're meeting Nick from Zapna. They're a clothes manufacturing firm with a distribution centre in Poland. Their Assistant Manager is going on maternity leave and they need to find someone to cover. Now, Nick's a nice guy, but he talks too much and he can be unclear about what he wants. I can get impatient with him sometimes. Come on. Let's do this.

2.3.2

N = Nick S = Shaun A = Alex

N: So Marta's post will be vacant soon. And as her post is vacant, we need someone to fill it. We'll need someone for about a year, as that's how long she's away. She's on maternity leave. Did I tell you that? I should also add that we did talk about taking someone on for longer, maybe eighteen months, so they could ...

S: Cover the handover period. Yeah. Great. Understood.

N: That's right. But ... is a six-month handover really needed? It's expensive. And ...
A: Sorry to interrupt ... but I think a handover period is important. But how about two months instead of six?
N: That could work. Or three months, maybe. Shaun?
S: I agree with Alex. So, that's a fourteen-month contract. Can you just confirm that for us, Nick?
N: Yes, I suppose I ... fifteen months. Just to be on the safe side.
S: Great. Fifteen months. Now, about the benefits package you're offering ...
N: Well ... And as you know, I'm really busy at the moment. Also, I'm not a logistics expert, so I don't always know which technical questions to ask. The last time I interviewed ...
S: Let me just clarify once more. Alex is your dedicated HR Consultant. Anything you need, he can help you. No need to worry.
N: I really appreciate it. It's wonderful to have you with us, Alex. We've always had an excellent service from your firm. Are you enjoying your time there so far?
S: I'm dying for a coffee. Coffee break? Back here in fifteen minutes.
A: Great.
S: See? On and on. Drives me crazy.
A: I could ask the questions when we go back in.
S: Sure. Be my guest.

2.3.3

A = Alex N = Nick S = Shaun

A: So, Nick, what you're saying is you want someone with logistics experience?
N: Correct, but they also need a diploma in management.
A: Great. And can I just check, you're looking for someone with a good language level?
N: Exactly, fluent in English and Polish.
A: Does that mean you want to hire someone locally?
N: No, not necessarily, but they must be prepared to move.
A: And what would make this appeal to applicants?

N: Well, we're offering an excellent package.
S: Yes, you said that, but could you be more specific?
N: I mean there's a good bonus scheme and a subsidised staff canteen.
S: And there's an international airport not far from Poznań, right?
N: That's right, Poznań has its own airport.
S: And is there a relocation package?
N: What do you mean by a relocation package exactly?
S: Well, you know, help with moving costs ...
A: I think what Shaun means is, the best person may not live locally. Are you happy to cover the cost for the right candidate to move to Poznań?
N: Possibly. What I mean is, it's a sensitive topic. We need to keep costs down.
S: Yes, of course. We understand.
A: And you're looking to interview a maximum of six people. Is that right?
N: Six is perfect.
A: So, I think that covers everything. We'll get to work and send you a list of candidates as soon as possible.
N: Great, thanks, Shaun.
S: Nick.
N: Thanks, Alex.
A: Nick.
S: Good work, Alex. Well done.
A: Thanks.

2.3.4

In professional situations, we sometimes meet people, like Nick, who are unclear about what they want. Checking and asking for clarification is a good way to guide the other person so you can understand exactly what they want. But how do you do this in English? Saying 'What do you mean?' may not be enough to clarify the information you need. Instead, ask 'What do you mean by ...?', or 'Could you be more specific?' Alex also rephrases questions to help Nick be more specific. And this works nicely. You can start by saying 'What I mean is ...'. Closed questions will then encourage the other person to confirm their needs. Closed questions will force the other person to answer 'Yes' or 'No', or give a simple direct answer. Finally, repeating the other person's words and adding the expression 'Is that right?' is useful to ask if you are still unsure. And if you are the speaker, notice the body language of the listener. Often, the listener's facial expression will tell you if he or she has understood. So, if necessary, offer to clarify. Use expressions like 'What I mean is ...' or 'Let me clarify'. Remember, conversation is two-way. It's not always your responsibility to understand!

CS = Colin Shenton M = Man W = Woman

P = Presenter I = Interviewer C = Customer

CS: We like to describe it as home.

M: You can help yourself to snacks along the way.

W: You really concentrate how much work you can fit in.

CS: Everything in Ziferblat is free, except for the time that you spend.

P: Ziferblat is a café and social space with an unusual business model. You check in and out at a hotel-style desk, stay as long as you want, use the wi-fi and eat and drink as much as you like. Your bill is calculated at 6p a minute, including VAT. The largest branch of this international retail chain is here in Manchester, in northern England.

CS: Ziferblat is a Russian word, it means 'clock face', uh it's the same in German, and it's simply because our pricing mechanism is completely unique. We charge six pence a minute. Start your stopwatch on your iPhone if you like, and work out to the penny what your bill's gonna be.

I: You must get some people who try to abuse the system, 'I've only got 20p in my pocket, I can dash in, wolf down coffee and cake and leave,' does that happen?

CS: It happens and it's absolutely fine. I'm not even sure I'd call it abuse, what we offer is no minimum, no minimum charge, so if somebody feels they want to come in and eat as much as humanly possible – that's absolutely fine.

I: You feel under time pressure because you know that each minute counts.

C: I don't personally worry too much about that, although I, I think it's mounted up a bit this morning.

W: You do think about it after a couple of hours here, but I think it's really good because you concentrate how much work you can fit in.

M: Such a nice creative atmosphere, and the wi-fi is really good, so for uploading things, that's perfect.

CS: I think our smallest spend was three minutes, which is 18p – somebody wanted to go to the loo. Our longest stay was 11 hours, which was a guy based on his laptop who's writing a book. We ask that people respect the space, but this has been a really positive experience in human nature.

P: The business makes a profit. This branch serves 12,000 customers each month.

I: You've got one of these in London, but you've got several in the north – in Manchester and Liverpool – and you're rolling out more. Why is it you're able to expand up here?

CS: One principle reason, which is rent. We could do it in London if we were charging 20 or 25 pence a minute, but that adds up pretty fast, £15 an hour starts to sound expensive.

3.3.1

A = Azra T = Thiago

A: Thiago. Is everything OK?

T: It's just this report I'm doing. For Shaun. It's such a lot of extra work. And I'm nearly a week late with it. If I don't finish the report soon, Shaun is going to kill me!

A: Why don't you ask him for an extension?

T: Shaun? Are you joking? Last time I missed a deadline, he nearly put me on the next flight home to Milan! It's Shaun. You haven't seen me ...

A: Shaun ...

3.3.2

S = Shaun T = Thiago

S: Ah, Thiago! There you are! Just the person I was looking for! Have you got a moment? Any progress with that report?

T: Er ... well ...

T: I'm just really busy with two other projects, and ...

S: Thiago, it's no good making excuses. Time management is part of the job.

T: I know, I know.

S: You're holding everyone up. The report is a week late, and I need it for tomorrow's meeting with the directors. So, what's the delay?

T: Figures. I, er, still need some figures from Accounts, you ...

S: Why didn't you ask me to get the figures?

T: Any time over the past seven days? Right, that's enough. I'm bringing in Jasmine.

T: Shaun, I just need a bit more time.

S: You've had time. I'm calling Jasmine now. And I want that report on my desk by 2 p.m. tomorrow.

No excuses.

T: Jasmine's going to go crazy when she finds out that we have to do overtime tonight. I guess I'm Mr Popular around here ...

S: Was I hard on him? A little. But he has to learn. He can't keep missing deadlines. Anyway, Jasmine should be able to help him out.

3.3.3

T = Thiago S = Shaun

T: Shaun. Do you have a minute?

S: For you, Thiago? I've got two. Now. How are you doing with that report?

T: I'm still having some problems, I'm afraid.

S: Right. You realise I have a meeting with the directors tomorrow afternoon? I wanted it done by then.

T: I'm really sorry. I'm so busy with other projects at the moment. And Accounts didn't get back to me with the figures I need ...

S: OK. Let me deal with Accounts. And I'll see if I can get one of the other trainees to share some of your workload. Just for a few days. Does that help?

T: Yes, it helps a lot.

S: Now, what else can we do to get this report finished? What if I bring in Jasmine to help you out?

T: No, no, I can manage.

S: Look, we don't have much time. Let's speed things up. How about asking Jasmine to help you with some of the figures?

T: Yes. OK.

S: Good. I'll give you three more days. But no more. Don't let me down. Of course, this doesn't help me with the directors' meeting tomorrow.

T: Why don't I just write an executive summary of the main points? You can give them that.

S: Alright, yes. Good idea.

I like Thiago's attitude. He definitely has potential. We just need to work out how to improve his time management. Easier said than done, maybe.

T: Result! I can't believe it. I got the extension I needed. Problem solved! Well, until the next one comes along ...

3.3.4

When you're trying to solve problems at work, you have two basic options – focus on the problem or focus on the solution.

Now, focusing on the problem can be very effective when it's a simple technical problem. But workflow problems are usually people problems, and they're more complex. In Video A, Shaun made a big mistake. He dealt with a people problem as if it was a technical problem. He focused on what went wrong. He blamed Thiago for not completing the report, so it's no surprise there was an argument.

And when Shaun asked Thiago and Jasmine to do overtime, it was not the best solution. In Video B, Shaun was much better. He focused on the solution from the start. Instead of asking what went wrong, he asked questions that focused on help: 'What can we do to get this report finished?' and 'What if I bring in Jasmine to help you out?' As a result, we saw Shaun and Thiago working together to complete the report. Shaun also offered to help Thiago get the figures he needed from the Accounts department. And Thiago offered to write a short summary for Shaun to give to the Board of Directors. It was a win-win situation.

P = Presenter S = Sharni L1 = Lauren L2 = Laurie

P: The way we work is changing fast and one clear example of this is our work patterns. This includes the hours people work, the type of contract employees have, and even the number of different jobs they work in. The traditional work pattern was based on permanent employees doing full-time jobs and fixed working hours. The typical office worker in the UK and North America worked from Monday to Friday and had a working day of nine o'clock to five o'clock. Indeed, people talk about 'nine-to-five jobs' to describe traditional office work. However, that is changing. Today's global economy needs more flexible work patterns, not nine-to-five jobs. We talked to some people about their working lives.

S: I'm Sharni, and I'm an Accountant. I work full-time flexible hours, so that means some days I start early and finish early, and some days I start later and finish later. And I'll take breaks depending on what I need to deliver for the day. Some days I work in the office and some days I work at home. I have my office set up at home, so I have everything I need to work as if I was in the office. I like working flexible hours – it gives me the ability to manage my career but also be there for my children. This type of working isn't for everybody. Some people will work better with a fixed schedule and set hours. The advantages for my employer for me to be a flexitime worker means that I'm a much happier employee. I can still maintain all aspects of my personal life and still pursue my career.

P: Some people don't have permanent jobs with one employer but work for employment agencies that find them temporary jobs in different companies.

L1: My name is Lauren. I'm a temporary worker and that basically means that I work for an agency that sends me on different assignments in different companies. I started temping during university, and I am still temping whilst I'm looking for a permanent role. The contracts that I'm assigned on last from around a couple of days to a few months, and this can include a range of different roles, such as clerical as well as reception work. The advantages of being a temp worker are ... it gives you insight into loads of different industries and it allows me to see what kind of permanent roles I'll be interested in. There are some disadvantages to working as a temporary worker and these include lack of job security, and it makes it difficult for career progression. Being adaptable is a very important skill in the job market, and ... erm, temp work definitely allows me to build upon that skill.

P: Freelance work for more than one company at the same time is also more common today.

L2: My name's Laurie. I'm a gig worker. And ... gig working means when you do lots of different types of jobs to earn a living. I work in the television industry, and a typical week for me might involve ... I might write a script, I might direct a film or I might do some camera work. Depending on how many projects I have, I may work 20 hours one week and 40 hours another week. One advantage of being a gig worker is that it allows a lot of variety in my working life. Another advantage is that it allows me to do things, in my free time, that I wouldn't ordinarily be able to do if I had a full-time job. One of the disadvantages to gig working is that there's not that much income security, so you don't always know where your next pay cheque is coming from.

P: It's clear that today there are many more work patterns than in the past. It's also clear that our working lives will continue to change in the future, and we will have to adapt to that.

O = Orla S = Shaun

O: Good meeting with Léana?

S: Great, thanks. She's already spoken to some of the other directors about my idea.

O: What do you call it again? Reverse coaching?

S: Yes. A lot of companies are doing it. I don't know if you've noticed ... but a few of the directors sometimes have problems with office technology. The thing is, we have all these people in junior positions working for us, who practically live their whole lives online. Social media, apps, you name it. So, the idea is they spend some time with the directors who need a bit of help using business apps, social media and so on. It's basically one-on-one coaching.

O: Perfect. What do they think?

S: Well, I'm meeting them later this afternoon. I guess we'll find out!

4.3.2

S = Shaun E = Ethan M = Michael ('Mike')

T = Thiago J = Jasmine

S: Ideally, you'd meet with the directors, say, once a week. What do you think? Sounds good? Great. So ...

E: Shaun? Erm, sorry to interrupt, but I thought we were here to discuss this.

S: We are. We're discussing how to do it right. So, Thiago. You're our tech guru. Do you want to work with Léana?

M: So ... we're doing this? You've already made the decision?

S: Well ... yes. Léana has approved it. Come on, it'll be fun! You get to work with the people running the company. It's great for your career!

T: Sorry, Shaun, but how do we find time for this? We're all really busy.

S: It's an hour a week. That's all.

J: Um, Shaun. We're not trained coaches. I'm not sure I'd be comfortable working with people like Léana and Graham.

E: Look, Shaun, let's not rush into anything. We don't have to take an immediate decision on this. Can we go away and think about it?

S: Think about what? These people pay your salaries. They need your help. It's that simple.

T: Will we get paid extra? I'm just asking ...

S: I'm disappointed, guys. Really disappointed. I have a great idea ... and this is how you react! Anyway, I've told Léana about it. It's going ahead. So, you can either like it or learn to like it. Right. Who's going to work with Graham?

4.3.3

S = Shaun T = Thiago J = Jasmine

M = Michael ('Mike') E = Ethan

S: Now, we already have the go-ahead from Léana. But I'd like to get your input before we finalise anything. So, what does everybody think? Thiago, you're our tech guru, what are your thoughts on this?

T: Will we have time for it?

S: OK, it's a fair point. We'll figure out a way to fit it into your schedules. Any other thoughts?

J: We're not trained coaches. Are we qualified to be doing this?

S: Hmm, I take your point. How about we arrange some kind of training for you? Just the basics. It shouldn't be too hard. Mike, you haven't said anything so far. I'd like to hear what you think.

M: Why don't we call it 'tech assistance' instead of coaching? It sounds more informal. More comfortable.

S: Mm, you may have a point. Jasmine, what do you think of Mike's idea?

J: I like it. 'Tech assistance' sounds fun.

S: It will be! Does anyone have anything else they'd like to add before we move on?

E: If we're going to be coaching the directors, maybe they could coach us, too? They could teach us a lot about the business.

J: That's a great idea. We're helping them, they're helping us.

S: OK. I'll mention it to Léana. Right, well, thanks for your input, everybody. Now we just have to decide which directors you're working with. Graham, anybody?

In business, it's important to make good decisions. But when those decisions affect other people, it's really important to make sure you involve them before going ahead.

In Video A, Shaun discovered that having a great idea is not enough. You need to persuade your team that it's a great idea, too. Often, the best way to do this is to ask for their input and let them see for themselves how good your idea really is. Of course, involving others in your decisions can take a little longer. You took time to develop your idea. So your team needs time to think about it, too. And sometimes people don't have much input to give. But by showing them you value what they say, as Shaun did in Video B, you may find they can make your idea even better! In fact, we saw that Michael and Ethan were able to do this. More importantly, your idea will become the team's idea. And because it's now the team's idea, everyone on the team will want to make it work.

I'm here in Mumbai where queues like this outside banks have become a common sight. And that's the story across the country. Last week, the Indian government announced that 500- and 1,000-rupee notes would be completely abolished. So I want to find out how far I can get without a single penny in my wallet.

A lot of people who have suffered from this cash crunch are small businesses who have to buy their goods up front.

Now, businesses like this stall, something that you find on every street corner in a city like Mumbai.

Paan is a stuffed betel leaf chewed by millions of Indians.

Thank you.

Great. So, he accepts credit cards, so I don't have to give cash. I've got away with it here. Mobile wallets, where you can load money onto an app, have been around for years and have been gaining in popularity, too. But since the currency announcement has come in, some payment gateways have been seeing a rise of up to 400 percent in customers.

OK, that's great. So he's accepting money via mobile wallets, but vegetables are an everyday item normally paid in cash. So are customers ready to go cashless?

By taking this step, the government is hoping to get more people and businesses into the financial system. And this will also help increase tax revenues.

Cash? So there you have it. I managed to do most of the things without cash. But then I need cash for something that millions of Indians do every day – getting around town. And without everyone willing to turn to technology even in these difficult times, the Indian government's hopes of becoming a hundred percent cashless economy could still be far off.

S = Shaun O = Orla

S: Orla. On your way to the project meeting?

O: Yes.

S: It's the first time this team's worked together, isn't it? No pressure ...

O: Well, we're really just working out team roles today. The client pitch is not for another six weeks. The question is, do I just tell them what I'd like them to do or let them figure it out themselves? Part of me wants to let them decide. Part of me just wants to tell them ...

S: Well, there are some strong personalities in that team, so I wouldn't give them too much freedom. I'd just tell them if I were you.

O: I'll let you know how it goes ...

5.3.2

O = Orla J = Jasmine A1 = Azra A2 = Alex
T = Thiago S = Shaun

O: That's the project covered. Now, team roles. Alex, I'd like you to be pitch leader. You've got the most project management experience. Now, Azra, I thought lead presenter for you this time. We've talked about you wanting to develop your presentation skills. Jasmine, I'm going to ask you to be the learning designer.

J: Oh, erm ...

O: Problem?

J: Well, no, it's just quite a lot of responsibility.

O: You're a Learning and Development Specialist, and you're a responsible person. You'll be fine. Finally, Thiago. Tech support. You're so good with technology.

A1: Actually, Orla, I'm really not comfortable presenting. Especially in front of a new client.

A2: I agree. Azra should be the pitch leader on this one, and I can take care of the presentation. And maybe Thiago could help me out. He needs something bigger than tech support.

T: Yeah, why do I always get tech support?

A1: And ... well ... maybe Jasmine also feels like I do. About her role.

J: I am worried. It's a big responsibility.

A2: Perhaps Thiago can help me present and do the slides.

T: Wait a minute. I'm doing the presentation and the slides?

O: Everyone! Please! Your first time together as a team and you're arguing about everything! Let's just think about this.

S: Sounded lively in there.

O: I don't think this is going to be easy.

5.3.3

O = Orla A1 = Azra A2 = Alex T = Thiago

O: OK, you all know each other quite well. So let's decide the team roles among ourselves. Is that OK with everyone? Alex. Azra. I was thinking you could head up the project together as pitch leader and lead presenter. How would you feel about that?

A1: Me as pitch leader?

O: If you don't mind.

A1: Actually, Orla, sorry, but I'd rather not be the lead presenter if that's OK with you. I'm really not comfortable with that role.

O: But ... don't you want to develop your presentation skills?

A1: I do! But one step at a time. I'm quite good at communicating one on one – but presenting to a new client? I'm not sure I'm the best person.

A2: Perhaps Azra and I could swap roles.

O: Well, I did want you as pitch leader, Alex, but if you're both happy to exchange roles, then that's fine with me. Right, Jasmine, I'd like you to be the learning designer. Relax! You have the expertise, and I'll be here to help you out if you need it. Just look at it as a challenge. Now, Thiago, you're our tech expert, so how would you like to do the PowerPoint for us again?

T: I don't mind. But I'd prefer not to do that again if I have a choice.

A2: Actually, Orla, I think Thiago might do a good job as co-presenter with me. Didn't you win a public speaking competition at university or something?

T: I won two of them.

O: Nice idea, Alex, but who's going to do the PowerPoint? No offence, but it's not really your strong point, is it?

A2: Maybe Thiago and I could work together on both? Thiago's a lot better with technology than I am, but I can help him with some of the other stuff.

O: OK. Great. I think we've got the team roles covered. So, just to summarise ...

5.3.4

It's a key question when building a team: do you simply tell people what you want them to do, or do you let them decide? After all, they know what they're best at, and what skills they still need to develop. In Video A, we saw Orla taking the first approach. And immediately we saw a negative reaction from the team. When Orla gave Alex and Thiago roles she knew they were good at, she didn't consider if they might like to develop new skills. And with Azra and Jasmine, Orla went too far in the other direction. She gave them challenges they didn't feel prepared for.

But both of these problems were solved in Video B. This is because they negotiated their own team roles. Jasmine kept the role Orla suggested, but the others changed or shared roles. In this way, there was room for them to improve their skill set without challenging them too much.

When you're building a team, you want people to do things they're good at, and also excited about. You can trust each team member to know what these things are. And if you show that you trust them to be involved in the decisions about their roles, it gives them confidence, and builds their trust in you. This is the ideal scenario.

6.1.1

P = Presenter R = Roy White B = Brent Jennings
T = Team member Dr R = Dr Rick de Decker

P: Whether we play team sports in our free time, work on joint projects or are part of a team at work, most of us have to cooperate with others on a regular basis. But there is one context in which teamwork is especially important ... and that's when danger is involved. At more than 1,000 metres high, Table Mountain towers over Cape Town in South Africa. Easy access from the city makes it very popular with tourists and hikers. But with over eighty rescues a year, it is more dangerous than people realise.

R: Table Mountain is not a simple mountain, it's not an easy mountain.

P: This is why the Table Mountain Rescue team is always ready. If someone has an accident on the mountain, it's the team's job to get them down. This hiker was on his way down from the mountain with a friend when he fell and hurt his leg. He can't walk, so the rescue team has to get him to safety. With the sun going down, the team has to work in the dark. They need to be very careful and very patient or they will put everyone at risk.

B: The main problem is that you don't ever get two people carrying a stretcher. You'll have maybe nine, ten people carrying a stretcher at any one point; and that whole group has got to make its way down safely.

P: By working together, the team has reached the bottom safely. The members of the Table Mountain rescue team have faced many difficult situations together, but it takes more than practice and experience to work well as a team.

B: You can't just expect rescue experience alone to give you what you need in a rescue team.

P: Lots of personal skills are necessary for a good team worker. But being a good communicator – knowing what to say, when to say it, and how to say it clearly – is one of the most important. And connected to that, of course, is the ability to listen to others.

T: Woah, woah, woah, slowly guys!

P: You also need to be reliable, so the rest of the team can trust you.

Dr R: If you get that level of trust with somebody who is on the ledge above you, then you've got a really good team going. But that takes some doing, it takes quite a lot of training to get to that level.

P: Even in experienced teams, people may disagree, so good team members need to know how to deal with arguments, stay calm and help everyone reach agreement – in other words, they need to be good at conflict management. If team members show each other respect, a solution can usually be found. When the work is finished, the team can relax, talk about what went well and get ready for the next rescue.

6.3.1

T = Thiago J = Jasmine

T: Coffee? Hell-o!

J: What? Oh, thanks. Sorry, I'm just thinking about this Miami thing.

T: You're going to Miami?

J: Hopefully, yeah. I put in a proposal for a talk at the Global HR Leadership Conference. Orla said I should give it a try. And ... I don't believe it. That's an email from them. The conference organisers. Ah ... this could be so great for my résumé. 'No'. They said 'no'.

6.3.2

T = Thiago J = Jasmine A = Azra

T: I'm sorry, Jasmine. That's too bad. But ... look on the bright side.

J: What bright side?

T: Erm ...

J: Exactly.

T: Come on, it's no big deal. It's just a conference, after all.

J: Thiago, it's the biggest HR conference in the world! And I should be speaking at it. Now I've got to tell Orla they rejected me.

T: Orla will understand. Come on. Cheer up! Look ... some of us are going for a drink after work. Why don't you come along?

J: You know what? I don't really feel like hitting the pub right now.

T: Harry's Bar. At six. You know ... if you change your mind. And, hey, Orla thinks you're great. We all do. Don't worry so much.

A: Jasmine! Thiago told me your news. You must be so disappointed!

J: Well. Life goes on.

A: Oh, poor you! I know exactly how you feel! Listen, if you need someone to talk to about it, just let me know, OK?

J: Thanks, Azra.

6.3.3

A = Alex J = Jasmine

A: Miami?

J: Thiago. He told you.

A: No secrets in this place. I'm sorry it didn't work out for you. I hope you're not too disappointed.

J: Thanks. Maybe Thiago was right. It's no big deal.

A: It sounds like you put a lot of work into it.

J: Yeah, well ...

A: And I know how important it was to you. So I can understand how you feel. Did the organisers tell you why they didn't accept you? They can be very selective.

J: They said I had an interesting topic, but it didn't really fit this year's theme.

A: So. You had the right topic. You just picked the wrong year. It happens.

J: Looks like it. I didn't really think about the conference theme. Stupid of me.

A: You can always try again. You'll know next time. If it makes you feel any better, I had to apply to engineering school three times before I finally got in. My advice? Put it behind you and move on.

J: I guess I just wanted to impress Orla.

A: Orla likes you. Everyone does. But you haven't been here long. Don't try to run before you can walk. The question to ask yourself is: What can I learn from this?

J: Yeah, I see that now.

A: Look at it this way: you missed out on a trip to Miami, but now you'll be free to help me with the Ferguson pitch.

J: The Ferguson pitch?

A: Yeah. Shaun thinks you're ready to start presenting to clients face to face. So you'll be my co-presenter to start with. What do you think?

J: More fun than talking to a roomful of strangers in Miami?

A: Yeah. Shaun thinks you're ready to start presenting to clients face to face. So you'll be my co-presenter to start with. What do you think?

J: More fun than talking to a roomful of strangers in Miami?

A: Yeah. Shaun thinks you're ready to start presenting to clients face to face. So you'll be my co-presenter to start with. What do you think?

J: More fun than talking to a roomful of strangers in Miami?

A: Yeah. Shaun thinks you're ready to start presenting to clients face to face. So you'll be my co-presenter to start with. What do you think?

J: More fun than talking to a roomful of strangers in Miami?

A: Yeah. Shaun thinks you're ready to start presenting to clients face to face. So you'll be my co-presenter to start with. What do you think?

J: More fun than talking to a roomful of strangers in Miami?

A: Yeah. Shaun thinks you're ready to start presenting to clients face to face. So you'll be my co-presenter to start with. What do you think?

emotion, and it was annoying for Jasmine. In Video B, Alex got the balance right. He said he understood how Jasmine felt, but he didn't pretend to know exactly what she was feeling. He looked for positive things while accepting her disappointment. Most importantly, he was able to empathise – which means to share the experience of another person – and this can make the other person feel better.

P = Presenter S = Simon Lyons

P: Any company offering goods for sale is under constant pressure to improve existing products and to bring new products to market. But any product, whether it's a mobile phone, a new medicine or a washing machine, must go through a period of research and development – R&D – to make improvements to the design, ensure that it's safe, and that consumers will want to buy it. Simon Lyons runs a small design company, Version 22, in Loughborough, a town north of London. In 2016, the company launched a clever product called Nimble. S: Nimble is a one-finger safety cutter. You put it on your finger tip; it's got a tiny blade at the tip, and you can use it to cut open boxes and parcels that come through the post, food packaging, product packaging.

P: Simon first had the idea when he was studying at university and entered a competition. S: The brief was to look at these videos of elderly and disabled people describing problems they had at home, and to pick one of those problems and to design a solution. The one problem that kept coming up the most was people with arthritis in their hands, really struggling to open food packaging in the kitchen. P: After he had the idea, Simon began the research and development process.

S: Starting the R&D process is quite simple – just a pen and paper. So, really rough sketches, coming up with as many different ideas as possible. I then try and make a very, very low-cost prototype. This was the first ever prototype I made of Nimble, which was made out of a finger of a kitchen glove cut off, some plastic from an A4 folder, and the tip of a knife blade.

P: Simon's design won the competition. The prize money allowed him to produce more advanced prototypes.

S: I started doing 3D-printed prototypes of lots of different designs before I got to a final design that I was happy with. One of the main design challenges I had with Nimble was designing it so it could be worn and used by as many people as possible, so having it as a one-size-fits-all design.

P: And how did Simon decide on the colour? S: Yellow's a brilliant colour for people with visual impairments; and as Nimble's especially useful for people who are blind or partially sighted, yellow was the obvious choice there.

P: Once Simon was confident with the design, Nimble was ready for user-testing.

S: It was important to user-test Nimble to get as many perspectives on the product's usefulness, design and function as possible. I found users to test Nimble by attending a few trade shows, and this way I got about 150 people signed up. I sent out early prototypes of the product to these people, and they used them for about a month and gave me their feedback. Thankfully, the feedback we got from our testers was positive, which meant that we didn't have to make many changes to the design at all.

P: With the R&D stage successfully completed, Nimble was ready to be launched.

S: Nimble's been commercially available for about one and a half years, and it's been selling really well. We've shipped around 30,000 units to about 80 countries around the world so far.

P: So, what's the next product from Version 22? S: So, the next product we've got coming out is something quite different. It's called Mobu, and it's a tiny little cable clip which will stop your earphones tangling in your pocket, and it works together with another product to keep your cables organised around your desk and around the house.

T = Thiago A = Azra

T: Whose training session are you in? I'm with Shaun.

A: Orla. I'm looking forward to hearing about this new expenses system.

T: Me, too. The current one is so complicated. And I hate having to keep my receipts when I'm travelling. It should be an app – something easy to use.

A: Exactly. Anyway, enjoy the training.

T: I just hope it's not too boring.

7.3.2

S = Shaun T = Thiago C = Caroline

S: What would your ideal expenses system look like?

T: An app?

S: You're in luck. Say hello to Expenses 220.

A new app – really easy to use. No more Excel spreadsheets. No more paper receipts. Let me take you through the process. So, to create an expense report, you enter the expense item and date, choose the currency and enter the amount, take a photo of any receipts ...

T: Are you following any of this?

S: Additional comments in the comment box, and then save it. So, you can go back to your claim as many times as you like ... all you need to do is use the drop-down menu ...

C: Sorry, Shaun. None of this is clear to me.

T: Yeah, I didn't follow everything either.

S: Come on, guys, it's not that difficult! OK ... one more time. Use the drop-down menu to make changes – but make sure your settings are put to the relevant currency. Got it? Of course you have. Now, moving on to ...

7.3.3

O = Orla A = Azra T = Thiago

O: OK, so you start by selecting 'Create an expense report'. Do you see that? Then, enter the expense item – like this: 'hotel bill'. After that, enter the date. Don't enter it manually, just select the 'calendar', because it's the easiest thing to do. Any questions so far? The next step is to choose the type of expense – select this from the menu. You must do this because Accounts need the information for reporting reasons. So, in this case you're going to choose 'Business meal with client'. Right. Once you've done that, choose your currency, and enter the amount. The default setting is euros, so be careful if you need another currency. Then, save your claim and you're almost finished. The last step is to take a photo of your receipt and it'll be saved automatically with your electronic claim. When you have completed all the steps, press 'Submit', and you're done! Any questions?

A: When should we send in our claims?

O: By the end of the month. Oh, and also, the app will remember your data, and that will really save you time! Does everybody understand? Now, it's not perfect and there might be teething problems, but I think ...

A: How did it go?

T: Don't ask. You?

A: Great. So I'm guessing you need a lesson from me on how this thing works?

T: I'll buy you a cappuccino! With chocolate!

A: It's a deal.

7.3.4

To explain a procedure clearly, follow these four steps.

Step 1: Speak clearly and make sure you sound interested, even if you're not, or you've already explained the same procedure a hundred times.

Step 2: Divide the stages of the procedure into small parts or pieces of information. It's a lot easier for someone to understand small pieces of information than the whole procedure all at once.

Step 3: Use words like 'first', 'second' and 'next' to order your explanation, just like Orla did. These will help the listener remember the different steps.

Step 4: Use examples where necessary and always invite the other person to ask questions, to check they have understood or need more detail. There you go – a very simple and effective procedure.

8.1.1

P = Presenter M = Matías Alcalde

J = Juan Pablo Alvarez

P: Punta de Lobos in Chile is one of the best places to surf in South America. In the summer months, 5,000 visitors arrive every day at this popular surf and tourist destination. In recent years, developers have made plans for large construction projects along the cliffs. However, many in the community were not happy about this. The Punta de Lobos Foundation is an organisation created by local people to fight these plans. We spoke to Matías Alcalde, the Foundation's director about why they are against the building projects.

M: Uh, a lot of private projects, uh, real-estate projects – big ones – were wanted to be developed here, like where we're standing here, there will be uh, houses hanging on the cliffs, uh, four buildings, seven stories high like a surf resort, or not even a surf resort, but huge density of construction and people coming in here. We have a real threatening situation for such a special place like ... like this one.

P: The Punta de Lobos Foundation works with other conservation groups, such as Save the Waves. Together, they want to stop private construction on the coast and to keep the cliffs open to the public. They also want to solve other problems caused by the large number of visitors.

M: It was a mess here, if you put a thousand or fifteen hundred cars here, uh, you ... you can take an hour, hour and a half to just go a mile out back to the highway. And the second thing is that there were no bathrooms here.

P: The foundation is looking for solutions to these problems. They've already improved the traffic situation and installed eco-bathrooms for visitors. They've also put a fence along the cliff to protect it from visitors' feet. Some local businesses see conservation as important, too. This small hotel is by the beach at Punta de Lobos. Designed to have as little impact as possible on the area, it was built with local and recycled materials. I spoke to Juan Pablo Alvarez, the hotel manager.

J: It's only in the archi-, architecture, we don't want it to be uh, like a big hotel five-star resort, we have 12 rooms, we could have, like, 40, 50, but we wanted to offer something different, something special. This is a very sensitive and special place and spot for us, so we wanted to ... to protect it.

P: Matías Alcalde sees Punta de Lobos as an important conservation project for the rest of Chile. It is not only about protecting one favourite surfing location in the country.

M: We're very eager that Punta de Lobos is successful, because it's the example in order to scale this project throughout Chile, uh, there's a need on conservation in Chile, we are a developing country, we're just getting started and we can learn from so many mistakes that, through Punta de Lobos, we can set the example for future developments along the coast.

S = Shaun T = Thiago D = Della

S: You're holding everyone up. The report is a week late, and I need it for tomorrow's meeting with the directors. So, what's the delay?

T: Figures. I, er, still need some figures from Accounts, you ...

S: Why didn't you ask me to get the figures? Any time over the past seven days? Right, that's enough. I'm bringing in Jasmine.

T: I'm sorry, Jasmine. That's too bad. But ... look on the bright side.

Della:

D: Yes?

T: You sent me a load of emails.

D: The reminder about your expenses claim, yes. I think I only sent two. The first, and a follow-up.

T: No, you sent at least three.

D: Ah. Yes. Three. Well, I was worried.
T: Well, it's quite stressful receiving all these emails. If I didn't respond, there's a reason.
D: Well, I'm sorry you feel that way, Thiago. This is our normal procedure. So ...

8.3.2

O = Orla T = Thiago

O: Come in! Nervous? Don't worry. Let me explain the process. We'll start with the positive feedback, then we'll move on to some areas for improvement. Is that OK with you? So ... you've been with us for six months. How do you feel it's gone so far?

T: I think I'm doing well. I don't think there have been any problems, but I'd be interested to hear what you think.

O: Well, in general, we're pleased with your progress.

T: OK. I'm glad to hear that.

O: You're enthusiastic and you work hard. You're great with technology – that's always a benefit. You're warm and in general you have good interpersonal skills. We saw how you tried to help Jasmine after the Miami conference issue – you were very supportive.

T: That's good to know, thanks.

O: And, of course, you have an excellent sense of humour. However, I have to point out some areas for development. It's important to give what we call 'corrective' feedback. To support you in your professional development.

T: Everyone can improve, right?

O: Exactly.

8.3.3

O = Orla T = Thiago

O: So, there are a couple of areas for improvement ... like your time-management skills. Shaun mentioned that you were late finishing a report for him. And you've missed other deadlines. How do you feel about this aspect of your work?

T: I guess I am sometimes late.

O: You've been late a few times with your expenses claims, too. We think you could improve your admin skills more generally.

T: Yeah, OK, admin's not my strong point.

O: Well, OK, but the reason we're concerned is that it creates problems for other people. The company could miss a deadline with a client. So we really need you to respect all your deadlines from now on. And please remember to submit your expenses claims on time. Now we have the new app, there are no excuses.

T: Sure. Will do.

O: Now ... about your relations with some of the older members of staff ... Della in particular.

T: I get on well with Della.

O: Well, she thinks you're sometimes a little disrespectful.

T: Really? Are you sure she means me?

O: I think it's your tone of voice. So, it's not what you say, it's how you say it. You can sound a bit impolite, even aggressive at times. What do you think? Would that be a fair assessment?

T: Well, I try to respect everyone ...

O: We're worried because the way you communicate could have a negative impact on the team and also on relations with our clients.

T: I never meant to upset anyone.

O: I can see that. But I would like you to pay more attention to this in the future.

T: Yes, yes, of course.

O: And we really love your enthusiasm. So, more of that, please. Do you have any questions about the feedback?

T: No, I don't think so. I appreciate your comments, thanks.

O: OK. So, in summary, we have agreed your goals.

8.3.4

In our professional lives, we all have to receive corrective feedback from time to time and some of us might also have to give corrective feedback. So here's some advice.

First of all, how to give corrective feedback. Here, you can follow a simple model. Prepare the person before giving the feedback and then ask for their agreement. Say something like, 'We need to discuss some areas for improvement. Is that OK with you?' As you give the feedback, give clarification or examples where possible. Then end by inviting the person to assess their own performance. Phrases such as 'Would that be a fair assessment?' encourage the person to remain positive about the feedback.

Secondly, receiving corrective feedback. One of the most difficult things is to stay positive and diplomatic if someone is giving you feedback.

'Your feedback is very useful, thanks.' is a good expression to use. Or when you want to apologise for negative behaviour, say, 'Yes, I accept that is sometimes a problem for me.'

Finally, I would always suggest you thank the person for their feedback. That way you end on a positive note.

1.01

A: Welcome, Alicia. Thanks so much for taking the time to talk with us on World of Work today.
B: It's my pleasure, Marek. Thanks so much for inviting me on the show. It's exciting!
A: I'd like to start by asking this: What does an Events Manager do?
B: I manage events ...
A: Oh, right – OK, so the job title says it all: Events Manager.
B: Right. So what that means is that I help people plan events: parties, conferences, corporate hospitality events – that kind of thing.
A: What about weddings?
B: No – not at all. Weddings are harder than business lunches and are usually done by people who only plan weddings.
A: OK, so who are your clients?
B: I'd say about ninety percent of my work involves businesses – planning events for corporate clients. I sometimes do parties for individual people, but not very often.
A: OK. So when you plan an event, what do you do? Where do you start?
B: First, I have to find out what the client wants. That means finding out what type of event it is, and also when they want to have it. Because usually, an event is for some reason, like a grand opening, or welcoming new employees or something – so the timing is usually important.
A: OK, I see. And what about money?
B: Yes, of course. We have to talk about budget at the first meeting, because I have to think about the cost for every decision I make. I try to find the best location for each event. I can't choose the most expensive hotel in town for an event for someone with a small budget. For a cheap event, we choose the least expensive venue possible. So we have to choose a venue – a location – carefully.
A: Sure. And for you, are some venues better than others?

B: Definitely. Planning an event outdoors is always the biggest challenge.
A: Because ...
B: Because of the weather. You can't control that!
A: Sure, of course. So after you've talked about schedule, budget and venue, what then?
B: They usually want me to think of something special – you know, to come up with an original idea.
A: Like ...
B: Well, I did a tenth anniversary party for a software company, and we did a circus theme.
A: A circus theme?
B: Yeah – we had clowns, a guy who did magic – and the location was actually a big tent – like a circus tent – in a park. We had about five hundred people there – five hundred guests. It was amazing. Everyone had a great time.
A: Was the circus event more difficult than your usual events?
B: No, not really. We usually have some kind of entertainment, but we also have to arrange food, tables and chairs ...
A: Wow.
B: I usually have to organise a sound system for the speeches and music ...
A: So there are a lot of details.
B: It's all details!
A: Well, that's a good introduction to my next question.
B: OK.
A: What skills are necessary for an Events Manager?
B: Well, we've already talked about attention to detail.
A: What else?
B: Organisation – the ability to organise is super important.
A: Organising what?
B: Everything: Schedules, budgets, food orders, teams of people ... Getting the right staff for an event is really important – you need the right people.
A: Ah, yes, people. Do you need people skills?

B: For sure. You really need to get on with people – you need to manage people well, because the job is all about people – about making people happy. My top priority is client satisfaction.
A: And for you, are any of the skills more important – or less important?
B: Honestly, I don't think so. You need all of them. If you love people but you can't organise, then you can't do this job. If you pay attention to detail but can't manage a budget – forget it!
A: OK, well, that makes sense. This is really useful for our listeners, thanks Alicia. Please stay with us. We're going to take a short break. When we come back, we'll be asking Alicia about ...

1.02 L = Laura J = Jakob

L: How are you doing, Jakob?
J: OK so far, thanks. I'm looking forward to meeting everyone.
L: Great. So, first, I'll explain the schedule for the day.
J: Sure.
L: So, we'll start with the induction briefing, where you learn about the company. And then you can meet the team. The health and safety training with the other interns is at 10.45. That gives us plenty of time.
J: How many other interns are there?
L: Five. They're mostly from abroad, so it's a really international group this year.
J: Right, OK.
L: And this afternoon you can set up your email account. Our IT technician, Sue, has created a username for you, and temporary login details are on your desk. Sue's really helpful. Just call her if you have any problems.

1.03 S = Sue J = Jakob

S: IT help desk. Sue speaking.
J: Hello, Sue. This is Jakob Davis. I'm ...
S: ... one of the new interns. Hi, Jakob. How can I help you?
J: I'm having problems with the IT.
S: Ah, what kind of problems?
J: I can't connect to the intranet. I don't know how to log on.
S: It should be quite simple. You need to use your login details.
J: I tried my username and password, but ...
S: Can you try logging on again?
J: Er, just a minute ... no, it's not working.
S: OK, no problem. Can I just check your username?
J: Intern82.
S: Are you sure? 82 or 32?
J: Er, it looks like 82.
S: Sorry, it's my writing, it's difficult to read. Try 'intern32'.
J: Ah, that works, thanks. The other thing ... I need to get a company email address. How do I set up my email account?
S: I'll set that up for you. Can you just remind me of your family name?
J: Davis.
S: D-A-V-I-S?
J: That's right. And Jakob is J-A-K-O-B.
S: J-A-K-O-B, thanks. So your email address will be Jakob dot Davis at htm.com. Give me a few minutes and I'll call you back. What's your extension number?
J: Er ... sorry, Sue, I'm having trouble finding my extension number. I was going to ask my colleague for help, but she's just gone into a meeting and ...
S: That's OK. I can help you with that. Just a minute, er, – here we are, Jakob Davis – extension 5182.
J: 5-1-8-2 – got it.
S: I'll call you back in a few minutes to confirm your email address.

2.01

A: Is there enough space in this room for the meeting?
B: Yes, but I think there are too many chairs.
A: You're right! I'll move some next door.
B: And it's too hot in here, isn't it? Let's open the windows.

A: Oh no! There's too much noise from outside. I'll put the air conditioning on.
B: OK! I see there are not enough glasses. I'll get some more from the kitchen.
A: Is there enough time to make some photocopies?
B: Yes! We have lots of time. It's still too early for people to arrive.

2.02 J = Josh S = Samia

J: Hey, it's Josh, how are you?
S: Fine, thanks, Josh. How are you?
J: Good, thanks. Listen, did you get the agenda for this afternoon?
S: Yes. You didn't get it?
J: No.
S: I'll send it to you. And the minutes from the last meeting. Got them?
J: Thanks. Oh, no, Don's chairing again; that means it'll go on and on.
S: Yes, probably. So you're going to present the results of your market survey?
J: Which item is that? Oh, yes, four. It's quite interesting actually.
S: Really? And did you prepare anything for Item 3?
J: The financial report? No, that was an action point from the last meeting for Mike. Anyway, what's Item 5 all about? Micro-kitchen? What's that?
S: Dierdre wants to set up an office kitchen. I think it's quite a good idea.
J: I see you're organising the office party again this year, Samia!
S: Yes, that's me, Item 6 – it's the only item I'm interested in.
J: No surprises. What are you planning?
S: Ah, you'll have to wait and see.
J: Item 8 – Close – that's my favourite item ... Do you think we'll leave on time, though, with Don in the chair?

2.03 Don = Don J = Josh E = Ellen S = Samia

H = Harry De = Deirdre

Don: Everyone ready?
J: Samia will be a little late. She's on another call.
Don: OK, but I'd like to start on time; it's a full agenda today. Can you tell her what we said, Josh?
J: Sure.
Don: Right, so let's start. Nice to see everyone and welcome back to Ellen.
E: Thanks, it's lovely to see everyone.
Don: So, one reason for meeting is to introduce you all to Harry. He started on Monday and he'll be helping us with our finances.
All: Hello, Harry. / How are you doing? / Nice to meet you.
Don: Does everyone have a copy of the agenda? Does anyone ...
S: Hi, everyone. Sorry I'm late.
Don: Samia, hello. Take a seat. The main aim today is to catch up before the holidays. Does anyone want to add anything to the agenda?
All: Not really. / No. / I'm fine.
Don: We have AOB if anything comes up. Harry, can I ask you to be time-keeper?
H: OK.
Don: And could I have a volunteer to take the minutes? Josh, Ellen?
E: OK, sure. I can do that.
Don: Thanks for agreeing. I know it's a busy time. So, let's look at Item 1, Matters Arising from the last ...
E: Sorry, can we just go back to Item 2? What was the decision? I didn't quite understand it ...
Don: So, moving on to Item 5: this is Deirdre's point, I think. Harry, how are we doing for time?
H: We're on time for the moment.
Don: Great. Deirdre, over to you.
De: Thanks. I'd like to talk about the micro-kitchen we agreed on at the last meeting.
J: Did we?
De: Ah, yes.
S: ... And you even agreed to help set it up.
J: Did I? Oh, OK, sorry.
De: Right. The reason I want to discuss this is to agree on a budget. I found some possible suppliers, but of course we need to get some quotes.

H: What did you include in the budget?
De: It seems contractors for micro-kitchens supply everything. I think a maximum of 500 pounds a month is reasonable. What do you all think?

A: We need something for dinner.
B: OK, I'll get some chicken on my way home this evening.
A: Where shall we get the presents for the family?
B: I just want to buy everything in one place. You know I hate going around different shops all day.
3
A: You know it'll be Noah's birthday soon. He's five on Thursday.
B: That's right! Let's get him some children's stories for his birthday.
A: Are you all right? You look a bit tired.
B: Yeah, I've got a terrible headache. I need to get something for it.
5
A: I should get something to wear for that job interview but I haven't got much money.
B: Try Zara or H&M. Their prices are reasonable.
A: Where did you say we're going again?
B: Bluewater. It says on the website that there are 330 stores and 40 cafés under one roof.
7
A: I love that fresh bread you bought in that new place. Let's go there again.
B: Yes, and they have a really nice selection of cakes as well.

Extract 1

A: Hello, Tony. Did you have a nice holiday?
B: Yes, we had a great time, thanks Sonia.
A: Where did you go? I can't remember if you told me.
B: Istanbul.

A: Ah, yes, that's right.
B: You see my wife went to a conference there last week. And I decided to go with her. Well, I didn't go to the conference. I spent the day visiting the city when Barbara was at work. Then we had dinner together in the evenings. She was working Monday to Friday but she wasn't working at the weekend. We went to the Grand Bazaar on Saturday.
A: Oh, the Grand Bazaar, I heard it's fabulous.
B: Yes, it is. Did you know it's one of the largest and oldest covered markets in the world?
A: Really?
B: Yeah, there are, I don't know, thousands of shops. I mean, we were browsing for hours but we weren't looking for anything specific and we didn't see half of it.
A: Did you buy anything in the end?
B: Yeah, a Turkish carpet. You know, the carpet seller served us tea when we sat down, and then we negotiated the price.
A: Sounds interesting. Did you get a bargain?
B: No, I don't think so, but we really liked the carpet and the experience was fun.

Extract 2

C: Hey! Did I tell you I went to that new shopping mall yesterday?
D: No, what's it like?
C: It's cool. One clothes store had magic mirrors.
D: Magic mirrors? What are those?
C: It's basically augmented reality. So I could try on different styles and colours without putting on clothes. It uses special computer software.
D: Like a video game.
C: Yeah! You know how I really don't enjoy shopping for clothes. The stores are always busy and there are long queues for the changing rooms. Then you spend hours trying on clothes. Then more long queues to pay the cashier. But with a magic mirror I can try different clothes and colours in less time, which makes shopping a bit easier.

D: So, what did you get?
C: Well, there were a couple of nice suits, but I didn't know which style or colour I liked best, so I didn't buy anything. But I have the store's app on my phone.
D: What's that for?
C: Well, when I left the store, they sent me a list of the clothes I tried on to my phone, and I can order online when I decide. Have a look and help me choose.
D: Ah, oh is that the time? What was I thinking? I was talking to Martin earlier and I agreed to help him with something. I'll see you later.
Extract 3
F: Hello, Rafa! Sorry! Did I interrupt you? Were you eating?
E: No, no, I was having a coffee.
F: So, how are you?
E: Very well, and you? How's it going in Shanghai?
F: Not bad, not bad.
E: How's your Chinese?
F: Don't ask! I didn't speak much Chinese when I arrived here a month ago and I don't speak any more today. It's fine in the office because everyone speaks English. But shopping is more of a problem.
E: What about ordering in restaurants?
F: Oh, that's easy. Lots of restaurants here in China have picture menus. They're great!
E: So you can see exactly what you're ordering?
F: That's right! Anyway, the other day I heard about these new automated convenience stores.
E: Automated? You mean with robots? Artificial intelligence?
F: No, not exactly, just self-service with no human staff. I was walking to the metro yesterday when I saw one. When I went in, I chose my food, paid and didn't interact with a single person.
E: How does it work?
F: First you give the company all your personal details. Then you can use your phone to enter the shop with a QR code and you scan the bar codes on products and pay with your phone, too. You also scan another QR code to leave the store.
E: Wow! But don't some people leave without paying?

F: I don't think so. There are security cameras and an alarm system. They're watching you and they have your personal details!
E: Ah! I see. So, it sounds like a good option for you.
F: Well, yes and no. There's not much fresh food, it's mostly snacks and instant noodles. I was looking for something healthy. And my soft drink was warm but I couldn't return it or complain to anyone. I'm not sure I like the future of shopping.

T: So, how was work when I was away last week?
S: We were very busy without you. We got another big order from Piotr.
T: Again? Did he pay us for the last order?
S: No, not the full amount. I wrote him an email about it when I received the new order. He rang me immediately and said he'll pay us this week.
T: That sounds good. And did you meet the new Marketing Manager when she started last week?
S: No, I didn't see her. She definitely didn't come to the office. In fact, I think she starts this week.
T: Yes, you're right! I thought it was last week.

3.05 C = Carl I = Inés

C: Right, morning, everyone. Thanks for coming in. OK, let's get started. This is Inés from customer research ...
I: Hello, everyone.

C: Inés has joined us today to help me present the results of last month's customer service survey. As you know, improving customer service is one of our main objectives this year. Now, as you can see, this was a three-stage survey. So, first of all, I'd like to start off by talking about stage one, the customer satisfaction ratings. Secondly, I'll go on to talk about the in-store interviews. And then I'll hand you over to Inés to talk about stage three, the focus group results. Finally, there'll be time for questions at the end. OK? So, let's jump right in. Have a look at this. This is the customer feedback station we now have in all our megastores. Customers simply press the button that shows how satisfied they were with our service. Was it great, good, not good or bad? Then we process their feedback. Here's a full breakdown of the figures by region and store.

3.06

OK, now let's move on to the in-store interviews. First of all, why did we do them? Well, when we sent our researchers into the stores, they noticed that a lot of people weren't using the customer feedback stations at all. So, obviously, these people do not show up in our customer satisfaction figures. Fortunately, plenty of people were leaving positive feedback. But why were they positive? And how many other people were they telling about us? Again, we had no data for this. So we organised a team of interviewers to stop customers as they were coming out of the store, and this is what we found. First, the good news. Every customer who rated our service as 'great' told us they regularly recommend us to others – on average, five other people, which is very encouraging. But, now, the bad news. For every customer who rated our service as 'bad', and explained the reasons, eleven other unhappy customers were not leaving any feedback. They were just going home unhappy. And, frankly, that's a disaster! OK, let's look at the interview data in more detail.

3.07 C = Carl I = Inés

C: So, just to recap on the main points so far. The in-store interviews now give us much more accurate figures for customer satisfaction. But they still don't tell us what we can do to improve our service. OK, that brings me to the end of my part of the presentation this morning. Inés, over to you.
I: Thanks, Carl. Well, now, let me try to answer Carl's question. As you know, last month we set up fifteen focus groups in different cities around the country. And one thing we did was ask them to text us ten adjectives to describe the ideal mobile phone Sales Adviser. Here's a diagram of the results. Now, to help them choose a mobile phone, we were expecting people to want a 'knowledgeable' and 'informative' Sales Adviser. But, as you can see, mostly what they wanted was someone 'helpful' and 'friendly'. And that's where some of our sales teams are failing. So, just to sum up: Too many of our customers are currently leaving our stores unhappy with the service they received. This is not because our Sales Advisers don't have complete product knowledge. They do. It's because they simply don't have the people skills they need to give helpful and friendly service. And that's why I'm recommending that we now make people skills training a priority. OK, let's wrap it up there. Any questions? Yes, Hugo ...

I thought it was a good idea to go part-time at the hospital when my daughter was born, but it's hard work. It sounds nice to say I only work three days a week, but nurses work long hours and a nine-hour shift usually turns into 11 or 12 hours. That's more than most people who work in full-time jobs. And it isn't always possible to take my breaks if there is a lot of work to do.

I'm studying for my degree in tourism management and I work for an agency in my free time. Doing temporary jobs is a good way to earn money at weekends and in the holidays. It's the time when hotels need extra staff. If there's a big event or conference on in the city, I miss classes for a few days. But next week I'm starting as an intern with a big hotel chain so I'm leaving the agency work. I know the hotel is a good employer and I hope they'll offer me a permanent contract after my internship.

I'm a self-employed driver and I get my work from a taxi service app on my phone. I don't have a fixed schedule and I decide my own working hours. I can work as much or as little as I want and I'm paid for each job I do. But after a ten-hour shift, drivers have to take a six-hour break, by law. But my working day is typically five or six hours. I don't want to work more than that, you see, I retired last year, and this is just some extra money on top of my pension.

A: Have you ever bought a good business book?

B: No, I've never bought one but I've read a few from the library and I've seen some business experts on YouTube, like Daniel Kahneman. He's written a lot about how we make decisions and how we don't think as clearly as we believe we do.

A: Ah, yes! What was the title of that famous book of his?

B: Thinking, Fast and Slow. You know, he's a psychologist but he's won a Nobel Prize for Economics.

A: Really? That's interesting. I've never seen him talk. You know, I've started that book several times, but I've never finished it.

4.03 L = Lou I = Ian

L: Hello, Ian?

I: Speaking

L: Hi, Ian, it's Lou.

I: Hi, Lou. What's up?

L: Listen, sorry to bother you. I'm calling about our meeting on Wednesday the 17th.

I: Uh-huh.

L: I'm afraid Sally can't make it.

I: Ah.

L: Yes, it's my fault. I forgot she's in Vienna all week. Do you mind if we fix another time to meet?

I: Sure. Let me just check my schedule.

L: Thanks. I appreciate it.

I: Do you want to postpone the meeting till the following week?

L: Actually, no. That's Berlin Expo week.

I: Oh, right, of course.

L: So, I was wondering if we could bring it forward. How about the week beginning the 8th?

I: Wait a minute, that's next week, isn't it?

L: Yeah, sorry. I know it's a bit short notice. That's why I'm calling.

I: Well, er, let's see. I'm free on Wednesday morning. That's the 10th. Any good?

L: Erm, could we make it the afternoon?

I: Mm, no good, I'm afraid. I've got a staff training session.

L: Well, ... How about Thursday the 11th?

I: After lunch?

L: I'm busy all day Thursday. Friday might be OK ... How does the afternoon suit you?

I: Friday the 12th? No, Friday's out for me, I'm afraid. Oh, dear, I'm really sorry about this.

L: No problem. Look, let me see if I can move the training session and call you back.

I: Good idea.

L: OK, leave it with me. Talk to you later.

I: Thanks, Ian, bye.

L: Bye, now.

4.04 I = Ian J = James

I: Hello, James. It's Ian.

J: Oh, hi, Ian. What can I do for you?

I: It's about our training session next Wednesday.

J: Ah, yes, ...

I: Change of plan. We need to change the training to another day. I'm afraid. I've got an important meeting with Lou and Sally from head office and it's the only time we're all free.

J: Oh. Well, it's a bit last minute, but, OK, what day were you thinking?

I: Well, why don't we just move the training to the morning? I think that's the easiest.

J: Wednesday morning? Ah, I think I've scheduled the staff performance reviews for then ... Sorry, I forgot to tell you ... yeah. Performance reviews: Wednesday morning.

I: Well, move those to Friday!

J: Friday. All right. Which is better for you: morning or afternoon?

I: Erm, morning's better. Oh, wait a minute. I've got a meeting with the IT team on Friday morning. OK, that can wait. Let's postpone it till the afternoon!

J: Postpone ... IT meeting ... OK, so that's training on Wednesday the 10th in the morning.

I: Uh-huh.

J: Performance reviews on the Friday morning, the 12th.

I: Fine.

J: IT meeting in the afternoon. And that leaves you free on Wednesday afternoon for your meeting with the people from head office.

I: Brilliant! I knew there was a reason I made you my assistant. Thanks a lot, James.

4.05

L = Lou I = Ian

L: Good afternoon, Lou Klein speaking.

I: Hi, Lou. It's Ian again.

L: Hi, there. Any luck changing your schedule?

I: Yes. We're all set for the 10th.

L: Fantastic. So, just to confirm - we're meeting in your office on Wednesday the 10th at, erm, how about 3 p.m.?

I: Sounds good.

L: That gives you time to set up for the presentation before we arrive. Oh, and I invited Tom Banks to join us. He works for Sally in research. So, there'll be four of us in all.

I: Fine. Hm, with four of us I'd better ask James to book a meeting room. And how about something to eat afterwards? There's a nice restaurant just near the office. I could book us a table if you like.

L: Perfect. Thanks a lot for being so flexible, Ian.

I: No problem. See you on Wednesday.

I4 = Interviewee 4 I5 = Interviewee 5

I5 = Interviewee 6

E: Hello, listeners, and welcome to It all adds up!, the programme that talks about money. I'm your host, Ella Leeson. Today we're going to start with more tips for saving money. Dan Parks went into the street to talk to people and get ideas for saving money on living expenses. Dan?

D: Thanks, Ella. I went to London's Oxford Street earlier this week and asked people how they spend less and save more. Here's what they said.

I1: Make your own food, so you don't spend money on lunch. If you take your lunch to work, you will save hundreds a year.

I2: I don't have a car now - I sold it! You will save thousands - and become healthier - if you cycle to work instead of driving.

I3: Stop using your credit card. Pay it off. Only spend money you already have - don't borrow it.

I4: Save money every month for emergencies. Then, when you have a problem with your house, or you need a new car, the money will be ready.

I5: Don't buy a new car. If you buy a car that's just one year old instead of a new one, you will save a lot of money.

I6: Go to the cinema on a discount day. My local cinema is cheaper on Mondays. There are special prices online.

D: Smart people out there in Oxford Street, Ella.

E: You're right. Lots of great ideas for spending less and saving more.

D: Right - a little bit here, a little bit there. It all adds up!

E: It all adds up! So, Dan, what can consumers expect in the next few months?

D: Well, the first thing we're looking at is a possible small increase in interest rates.

E: But that's not official yet, is it?

D: No, the government hasn't confirmed it, but it looks very likely.

E: What will that mean for consumers?

D: If interest rates increase, borrowing will go down. People borrow more when loans are cheaper.

E: So if people are thinking of borrowing ...?

D: They should do it now, before interest rates go up.

E: OK. Anything else?

D: Housing costs will go up - people who own a home will pay a little more each month.

E: So, not great news.

D: No, but it is good news for people with savings. If banks raise the interest rate on savings, savers will earn more. That means it's a great time to start saving, or to increase saving.

E: It all adds up!

D: It all adds up, Ella!

E: Anything else?

D: Just one more thing before I go. International exchange rates. We're watching China closely, because its economy is really strong at the moment. Electronics imports here will be more expensive if China's currency becomes stronger.

E: OK, so if you're thinking of getting a new TV ...

D: ... now may be the time. We'll probably start to see prices go up in a couple of months.

E: Thanks, Dan. Some great tips!

D: Thank you, Ella.

E: That's it on money saving for this show, but now we're going to move on to ...

5.02 L = Liz M1 = Male 1 F1 = Female 1

M2 = Male 2 F2 = Female 2

L: Good morning! Could I just ask you to raise your hand if you have children in their late teens or early twenties? You're probably the ones with the largest debts. Hm, quite a lot of you. And that's not really surprising because, like me, you're the right age. Most of us in this room belong to what we call Generation X - the generation born somewhere between the mid-nineteen-sixties and the late seventies. Of course, the younger ones among us, born between the early eighties and the mid-nineties, are Generation Y, also known as the Millennials. You still have teenage kids to look forward to! And it's teenagers and young adults that I'm here to talk about today. Born between the mid-nineties and the early twenty-tens, we call them Generation Z. They are already about a quarter of the total population and they will soon be our biggest customers. Now, when I say Generation Z, what words and phrases can you think of to describe them? Anybody? Yeah ...?

M1: Live for today!

L: Uh-huh.

F1: Always online.

L: Right.

M2: Don't want to work!

F2: No idea about money!

L: Oh, dear. We're getting a bit negative, aren't we? Well, I think some of the research I'm going to share with you this morning may just surprise you.

5.03
Now, just a moment ago some of you suggested that Generation Z 'lives for today', 'doesn't want to work' and 'has no idea about money'. So let's see if that's true. Have a look at this chart, which shows the results of our survey of the financial habits of people aged sixteen to twenty-one. As you can see, roughly three-quarters of them are already earning their own money through some kind of full- or part-time employment. To put that in context, that's almost the same as the figure for Generation Y. So that shows Generation Z is certainly not afraid of work! You can also see that nearly two-thirds of them have their own savings account. In fact, around one in five has had one since the age of ten. But perhaps the most surprising thing is that over one in ten of them are already saving for retirement! A retirement which may be over fifty years away! Another interesting thing is that just under three out of every ten are strongly against any kind of debt – especially, college debt. Let's not forget that college debt is currently over one and a half trillion dollars in this country and has been a major financial problem for Generations X and Y. The key takeaway here is that Generation Z likes to save, but doesn't like to borrow. Obviously, that's good news for those of you running savings accounts. But maybe not such good news for those of you working in the loans department!

5.04

So, how do we market personal banking services to Generation Z? Well, you were right about one thing. Generation Zers are 'always online'. On average, they are currently spending over ten and a half hours a day working or playing with digital content. To give you an idea of just how much that is, multiply it by the total number of Generation Zers in the USA, and it comes to around a billion hours of online activity every day! That's enough time to watch every movie ever made – one thousand times! But here's the really surprising thing. Our studies show that more than half of Generation Z say they actually prefer face-to-face communication. That's over forty million people who want to talk to us in person! So, in summary, if we want to attract this new generation of customers, we need to make sure we connect with them on a personal level. And, in terms of selling banking services, this clearly means that we need to be doing a lot more than just social media marketing.

6.01 A = Anatol M = Michael E = Erin

A: Right, I'll get straight to the point. New graduate applications are almost 30 percent down this year. And, as a result, we're not recruiting the number of management trainees we need. Now, we have a good reputation. We pay well. And we offer excellent benefits. So what's happening?
M: It's a new generation, Anatol. Graduates today just don't want to work for big organisations like us anymore. Besides, most twenty-one-year-olds simply aren't interested in insurance as a career.
E: To be honest, it's also a question of the work culture. College-leavers these days prefer the workplace to be informal and ... well, fun!
A: Fun? We're an insurance company, Erin. What do you want? Music on the TV and pinball machines in reception?

6.02 A = Anatol M = Michael E = Erin

A: OK, so, let's get some ideas written up on the flipchart. 'How ... do ... we ... attract ... new ... graduates?' How about attending more careers fairs?
M: No, that's a complete waste of time. Students can find out all they need to know about us online.
A: More talks at universities, then?
E: No, there's no point. Michael's right. Job-hunting's all online these days. Now, a video promotion on YouTube – that might be more effective.
M: We tried that before and it didn't work.
A: We're not doing very well, are we? Erm, let's look at what more we can offer as an employer. Erin, any ideas?
E: Well, most of the people I interview tell me they expect training.
M: Yeah, but we're already doing that.
E: Real training, Michael. Like sponsored diplomas, MBAs.
M: You want us to pay for trainees to do MBAs? We don't have the budget for that!
A: OK, look, there's far too much negativity in this meeting. I suggest we go away and think about this a bit more and meet again in a couple of days.

6.03 A = Anatol E = Erin M = Michael

A: So, Erin. Let's start with you.
E: OK, well, we all agree that our biggest problem is getting new graduates to think about insurance as a career. So I suggest we introduce twelve-month internships. Believe it or not, it's actually harder to get a paid internship these days than to get a job! I think we'll find it easier to recruit students before they graduate rather than after.
A: Mm. I really like that idea. And twelve months is long enough for them to learn something about our business.
E: Exactly. And while we're on the subject of learning the business, why don't we provide personal coaching as well? Teach them the professional skills they don't learn at university.
A: Good idea. Of course, there is the problem of cost. What can we do about that?
E: Couldn't we just spend more on student internships and less on graduate recruitment?
A: You know, that might not be such a bad idea. Now, Michael, you're looking at how we market ourselves to graduates. What have you got so far?
M: Yes, well, the first thing is: we need to go mobile with our advertising. Most students prefer to use their mobiles to look for work. So, this is the perfect way to reach them as soon as we have job opportunities.
E: What a good idea! And doing that means we could also make job offers a lot faster – direct to the applicant's phone. Did you know that at the moment, a quarter of the people we offer work to have already taken another job by the time we contact them?
A: Really? But that's terrible ...
E: OK, as we know, another difficulty we have is our size. So the question is: how do we make our large company feel like a small one? And I think the answer is to put our trainees into smaller project teams.

A: Actually, I think that's a great idea. And if we do that, perhaps we can also create a bit of friendly competition between teams. Might make things more ... fun. As you say, Erin, that seems to be important nowadays.
M: Mm, it's a nice idea, Erin. I'm just wondering about the amount of reorganisation it'll need. How can we manage that?
A: Mm, good point. Let's see what the board thinks.

7.01 S = Sam A = Andrea

S: ... So, on behalf of the team, I'd like to thank Andrea for such an informative presentation. Thank you very much, Andrea, it was really interesting – I learnt a lot.
A: No problem.
S: Now, we've got about fifteen minutes for questions, but before we go into the question and answer session, I just want to mention a few ground rules. Firstly, could you just give your name and division before you speak, so that we know who you are? Can you keep your questions brief, so everyone has the chance to speak? Also, please help your colleagues by speaking slowly and clearly ... and loudly enough. And lastly, don't forget to use the mute button when you're not speaking, to stop any background noise.
All: Yeah, no worries. / Sure, yeah, no problem. / Yeah.

7.02 S = Sam D = Donna P = Paul K = Karl L = Lena

S: Right, is everyone ready? Donna, have you switched on your webcam? I can't see you. Your screen is blank.
D: Sorry, my camera doesn't work properly. I'll switch it off anyway because it slows down my internet connection.
S: Oh, OK. That's fine.
P: Hello ... can, can I ask ... easily, and ... so that's a problem if ...
S: Paul, Paul? Paul, you keep cutting out.
P: Sorry, what ... say ... Sam? ... hear you ... well.
S: You keep cutting out, Paul.
P: OK, ju ... moment. Is that ... better now? ... I ... can hear, hear ... you.

S: We still can't hear you properly. The connection is bad. Would you mind hanging up and I'll call you back. Hi, Paul, are you there?
P: Yes. Can everyone hear me now?
All: Yes. / Loud and clear.
K: Karl here, HR. Sam, did everyone receive my notes from earlier?
L: Karl, I'm afraid we can't hear you very well, either. You're very quiet. Could you move closer to the microphone?
K: OK ... Is that better?
S: Not really. If you can just check your volume settings, please?
K: Sure. Any better?
S: Yes, but now there's a bit of an echo. Can you move your mobile phone away from your computer?
K: There we go, how about that?
S: Much better, thanks. I got your notes, by the way, so thanks for those. If we ... Sorry, is someone in a café? I can hear a lot of background noise.
L: Sorry, it's me: R&D. I'm not in the office today.
S: No worries. Would you mind using the mute button? I can almost smell the coffee.
L: Yeah, of course. Sorry, everyone.
S: That's better, thanks. Now, just one last request before we start. I know it's getting close to lunchtime for some of you. So if anyone is hungry, please feel free to eat your lunch as we speak, but just remember to use that mute button!

7.03

Good morning everyone, and thank you for coming. Firstly today, I'm going to answer the question you're all asking – why did we decide to make changes to the product packaging? Now, there are three main reasons for this. One, we have received a lot of negative customer feedback about the packaging this year. Customers say it looks very old-fashioned and many have suggested they'd like it to be more colourful. Two, as a result of the issues customers identified, we've seen falling sales over the last twelve months. And finally – three – we feel we should be using more eco-friendly packaging. So, what are we going to do? Well, we've already decided to change the colour and to make use of recycled materials for the packaging. And we plan to do all this in just three months. But, before we look at the details of the schedule, let's look more closely at the colours we're thinking of. Obviously we're keeping the yellow, but we are making it much brighter and we are thinking of adding one or two other colours, such as green or orange, which you can see here on this slide. So, when exactly is all this going to happen? The first month, we're going to decide on the colours and the designers will produce the final design. We'll also choose the new material. In the second month, we will set up and start production. There'll be a press release, and we'll let everyone know about the launch date. And finally, in three months, we will launch our rebranded product line.

Today I'm going to talk about redesigning our best-selling product, the walking frame for people who need support when walking. Some people might ask: why change it if it's selling well? Well, everything can be improved so, firstly, I'll talk about the reasons for doing this. New developments in technology have made it possible to make a product which is much lighter and stronger than before. Secondly, new competitors are coming into the market and will begin to take some of our market share if we don't do as well as them. Now, let's look at the most important parts of this new design. As I said before, the new design means that it is much lighter and stronger. This makes it much easier for older people or weaker people to move about. They don't have to pick up a heavy object. Also, there's a new non-slip material on the bottom of the frame, which makes it much harder to push over than others on the market.

Finally, I want to look more closely at the sales forecast for next year. As you can see from this graph, we expect sales to increase rapidly once the new product is on sale. In the first quarter we are expecting sales of around £1.5 million, doubling to nearly 3 million by the end of the second quarter. The next-quarter sales may slow down a bit as they always do in summer, but we expect them to reach £4 million by the end of the year.

8.01 M = Matt K = Kyra

M: The time now is ten to eight and I'm sure many of our listeners sitting in traffic jams on their way to work will be interested in what my guest today has to say. Kyra Sharma, university lecturer and consultant in public transport, is here with me to talk about her new book, Travel Chaos. Kyra, welcome.

K: Thank you, Matt.

M: Kyra, you say in your book that people shouldn't drive in cities. So, why is the car the worst way to get around?

K: Well, a car feels convenient for the person driving, but it's not the most efficient use of space. In busy urban areas there isn't enough space for everyone to drive around. Cars cause massive congestion on city streets, which causes serious air pollution as well as noise problems.

M: You talk in your book about the impact of technology and the transport solutions it offers. For example, electric vehicles, driverless cars, car sharing and software apps to help us get around.

K: Yes, there's a lot of fantastic technology now: electric cars help us to reduce air pollution, satellite navigation helps us to find quicker routes, and software apps allow us to share cars with people doing similar journeys. It's great that technology is giving us more efficient ways to travel and power our vehicles, but these things aren't enough. Our city streets are too crowded for the number of cars we have these days. There is not enough space. We have to reduce traffic on the roads – driverless technology, satellite navigation and electric cars don't solve that problem.

M: Doesn't car sharing reduce car use?

K: If it's real ridesharing with several people sharing a car, not one person hiring a car, then yes, but it's much better to 'rideshare' on buses and trains.

M: So, what is the solution? How should governments plan urban mobility?

K: Well, they should simply spend more on public transport. I mean mass transit systems including urban trains, underground or metro, buses and trams. It's the most efficient way to get around in a big city. As I explain in the book, there are excellent examples in developed countries in Asia: for example, in Hong Kong, Korea and Singapore. Most European cities are now using cleaner energy in public transport, and finding ways to reduce the number of cars on the roads. For example, London has a congestion charge and other cities could use a similar method to reduce the number of cars in the centre. Major cities are now promoting walking as part of a healthier lifestyle, and cycling by having more cycle lanes and public bike-hire schemes. Our cities are growing very fast and we need solutions that improve the quality of life for the people living and working in them.

M: Kyra, thank you for coming to talk to us today. So, that was Kyra Sharma talking about her new book, Travel Chaos. Coming up next the latest travel news ...

8.02 E = Elena S = Steve T = Ted K = Kiera B = Ben

E: So it looks like we're running out of time and I do want to give you a chance to ask a few questions. If I can answer your questions, I will, but please understand I may have to get back to you on certain points. I hope that's OK. So, does anyone have a question? Yes, Steve.

S: Thanks. I had a question about the open space issue.

E: Sure. What did you want to say?

S: Personally, I don't mind working in an open-plan office, I've done it before. But I know it's not for everyone. Most of our communication with clients is by email, so noise really isn't a problem anymore. My question is about meetings.

E: What do you mean, exactly?

S: Well, I just want to know if there will be rooms provided to hold meetings?

E: I believe so. So, the question is about meeting rooms. Ted, can I pass this one to you?

T: Sure. In the new building there'll be five closed meeting rooms on each floor, as well as some open space for more informal one-to-one meetings. You can reserve the closed meeting rooms using an online booking system. It should work very well. I hope that answers your question, Steve?

S: Yes, it does, thanks.

E: Kiera, do you have a question?

K: Yeah. Can I ask about the timing? When does the move take place?

E: It's a good question, thanks. I didn't mention that, you're right. The final stage of the move is scheduled for the end of May. I'm not sure about the exact dates; it will depend on the team. But you'll be told a long time before you have to move. Does that answer your question?

K: Not quite. You said we'd have to move into temporary office space first.

E: That's right. Most of you will go straight to the new site, but some people will move temporarily to the Oxford Road office while they finish the building work. OK?

K: Yeah, thanks.

E: I have a question, Elena. Can I ... ?

E: Yes, Ben, of course.

B: How do we get to and from the Oxford Road branch? It's quite a long way from here.

E: Thanks for your question. Yes, the company will put on a shuttle bus service between the two sites which should make it easier. I understand it takes around twenty minutes. Does that help?

B: Sure. And do you know who's actually moving over there?

E: So, Ben asked who's moving to Oxford Road, right?

B: Yes.

E: As I understand it, it's only the payroll and finance departments. Anyone who is moving has already been told about this.

B: So I guess I'm not on the list. That's good. I really didn't want to move twice!

8.03 E = Elena J = Jen T = Ted

E: OK. Are there any more questions? It looks like we've got time for one more.

J: Yes, I have a question.

E: OK, Jen, go ahead.

J: To be honest, Elena, I'm really not happy about this move and I'm definitely not happy about moving from my own office into an open-plan office. Unlike Steve, I can see lots of problems with that. Who decides who sits where, for example?

E: Sorry, you're asking how we allocate space. Is that right?

J: Yeah, because I don't see that working very well. I think the best places will all be reserved, anyway.

E: Well ... I'm not sure I can answer that, but thanks for the question. Ted, can I ask you to respond to this one?

T: Of course. So to answer your question, Jen, we're not talking about hot-desking ...

J: Oh, right, because that's what I'd heard.

T: No, not at all. Everyone will have their own desk. And these will be allocated fairly; no one will be allowed to reserve the 'best desk'. We're also introducing a clean-desk policy. So this means we need to keep the space as tidy as possible, but everyone will have storage space for their files; we hope that will help.

J: So, not only do I have to share my office with ten other people, but now I can't even choose my own desk. What if I don't like where I've been placed? Who can I speak to about that?

E: I'm sorry, I'm not sure what you mean.

J: Well, basically, I want to know who I can complain to ...

BW1.01

A: Hi, Junko.

B: Hello, Sam.

A: We need to go over a couple of the details of your visit next month before we finalise the arrangements.

B: Sure, OK.

A: You want to arrive in Sydney on the second of June, right?

B: Yes, that's right. I'm flying from Osaka to Sydney on the second.

A: OK, good. And for the hotel, how many rooms do you need? Are you coming on your own?

B: Yes, that's right – it's just me this time. So I need a single room.

A: No problem. There's a great hotel downtown – it's next to our offices in the city centre. We'll book one room for two nights.

B: Great. Thanks.

A: Now, after we've had our meeting in Sydney and seen some of the venues here, we can visit one other city. We need to choose either Melbourne or Brisbane.

B: OK, well ... what's the difference?

A: Well, Melbourne is bigger than Brisbane ...

B: OK ...

A: But for us, Brisbane is slightly better.

B: Why is that?

A: The venues we use in Brisbane are better than the ones we use in Melbourne. We use the two most popular live music venues – medium-sized live music venues. We have a great community there. Don't misunderstand me – our venues in Melbourne are good, but in Brisbane, they're the best.

B: OK, I see. So ... are Brisbane audiences smaller?

A: Ah, well, that's a great question. Brisbane audiences may be a bit smaller, but they really love music. Honestly, for me, Brisbane is probably the best place to start.

B: That sounds fine, Sam. Let's go to Brisbane.

A: OK, great. Now, in Brisbane, you have a couple of choices of places to stay. I can recommend a hotel in the city centre very near one of our music venues, but it's a bit expensive. If you want a cheaper place – maybe a bit quieter – we can arrange a bed and breakfast. There's one we like in Spring Hill.

B: Oh, let's see – actually, maybe the quieter option? The B&B?

A: OK, that's fine. And finally, when are you returning to Japan?

B: Well, I want to depart on June fifth, but I'm not going back to Japan. I'm going to Singapore.

A: Oh, great. OK. I'll make a note of that.

B: Sure. Is there anything else?

A: I don't think so. We're really looking forward to seeing you!

B: Yes, me too.

1 Sam, there's a serious technical problem at Sydney airport. Our flight is going to land at Canberra, not Sydney! The problem may continue until tomorrow!

2 Hi Junko. I got your message. Yes, I saw it on the news. It's a computer problem. Don't worry! We can make new arrangements for Canberra. I'll send you another message soon!

BW2.01 E = Ewa M = Mark

Extract 1

E: Now, I've done an online search and spoken to some estate agents and I've made a selection of three places we can see on our trip to Berlin this week.

M: OK! Great! Good work!

E: So, take a look at the photo of this first office. It's empty at the moment so you have to imagine it with furniture. We'd need to buy office desks, chairs, and everything.

M: Yes, those old wooden floors, doors and window frames look lovely. Where is it?

E: It's in Prenzlauer Berg. It's a fashionable neighbourhood in northeast Berlin. It's in a beautiful old building and various creative and media start-ups are already using the building.

M: How big is it?

E: The space is 120 square metres, and that includes two meeting rooms, a kitchen and two toilets. Oh, and the agent says there's a nice park in front of the building; we could sit and relax in the lunch break. And lots of cafés, bars and restaurants are within walking distance.

M: What about transport links?

E: The location is close to public transport. Actually it's never really a problem in Berlin. All these offices I'm showing you are well connected and easy to reach from the main train station and airports.

M: Sounds good. And the rent?

E: That's 2,600 euros a month. There's a deposit to pay of 7,800 – that's three months' rent. Then there's a six-month minimum period to rent the place, with a three-month cancellation period.

M: Um! It's quite expensive. Maybe we don't need so much space. We could probably find something somewhere in the UK for that price ...

Extract 2

E: Well, wait a minute ... I've looked at properties in other parts of Berlin, too – what do you think of this one?

M: I love it. Nice big windows, the office looks very bright in the photo. And this one has furniture!

E: The place is a co-working space in an old factory building in Kreuzberg. That's a trendy neighbourhood in the south of the city.

M: How big is it?

E: In total it's 400 square metres on two floors. Freelancers pay to rent workstations and there's space for around 40 people. Lots of independent creative workers are based there.

M: Workstations?

E: It means desks. And there is a room we can book for free for private conferences and meetings. We also get high-speed internet, use of the printer and also a shared kitchen with free coffee and water.

M: And it would be easy to talk to people we might want to work with.

E: That's right!

M: What can you tell me about the neighbourhood?

E: Very multicultural with exciting arts events. Lots of graffiti on the walls and bohemian cafés, that sort of thing.

M: Sounds like a nice place to live, too. I could walk or cycle to work every day. And the rent?

E: It costs just 300 euros per workstation, per month.

J: So, as there are four of us, we could have a shared work space for just 1,200 euros a month, and we could rent more workstations as the team grows.

E: Yes, it's an option with lots of choices. There's no deposit to pay, a two-month minimum period to rent a workstation and just one month cancellation.

Extract 3

E: So ... That brings me to the third option. Here's the photo. It's an 'office room'. Basically, that means a company is offering a separate room on the tenth floor of their company offices. It's in the heart of the city, the Mitte district – that means 'in the middle' and it's where all the main tourist sights are – the Brandenburg Gate, the Potsdamer Platz and lots of big companies.

M: Sounds like a prestigious location for the company address.

E: Yes! This one is in a big modern office building with lifts and views over Alexanderplatz. The office room is 25 square metres, so it's probably big enough for five or six people.

M: But there isn't a separate meeting room?

E: No, but I thought of that. They also have a 15-square-metre office room for rent on the same floor, so we could rent two rooms and use one as a meeting room. The rent includes furniture, internet, cleaning service and use of the company's shared kitchen and bathrooms.

M: So, how much is the rent?

E: For the big office room it's 1,200 euros a month and there's a 1,200-euro deposit to pay. There's a three-month minimum period only to rent the place and just one month cancellation.

M: So, the same price as the co-working office. And if we rent the two rooms?

E: That's another six hundred a month. So, for two rooms we're talking about 1,800 a month rent and 1,800 deposit.

M: Could we just rent the small office and the four of us work in there for a few months instead?

E: No way Mark! Don't be crazy!

BW2.02 E = Ewa M = Mark

E: OK, so let's make a list of the pros and cons of each office and see if we have a clear winner.

M: OK, I'll start with the Mitte office. It's in a great location, prestigious address but the company there is in finance, so we have nothing in common with them. It'd be better to be in a place with other new creative companies I think.

E: True! Being around other start-ups makes more sense for us. I wouldn't rent a flat in that area either. It's too expensive. Though that's not a major problem because the public transport network is so good. I love the idea of working in the city centre.

M: What about the Prenzlauer Berg office? Great old building! It would certainly give us room to grow. Having a big office would be expensive now, but we could save money in the future if we didn't have to move again soon.

E: True! I liked the office, but it was a bit darker than I expected. That concerns me. I like a bright space to work in.

M: I guess we could buy some bright lights. There's no lift though and it's three flights of stairs up – not all our clients might like that.

E: And the co-working space in Kreuzberg? There were certainly a lot of fun people there and I loved the terrace. Great to have some outside space.

M: Yes, but I wonder how much work we'd get done. It would be easy to get distracted and spend all day chatting in that office!

E: And I'm worried about the lack of privacy.

I mean, our projects are confidential. I don't think clients would feel happy about us being in a co-working space. And trying to book that one meeting room when we need it could be difficult.

M: Still, it is the cheapest option, and we'd make friends quickly in Berlin. We should decide soon. Rents are rising fast in the city. But do you really think Berlin is the place for us? I'm still not sure about this move abroad and I'm not sure what Paul, Yelena and the rest of the team are going to say about it ...

E: I'm sure they'll love the idea! Berlin is really multicultural. It has a real buzz about it.

M: I'm not sure. I think I'd miss London, you know. Oh ... time to go or we'll miss our flight.

BW3.01

Extract 1

A: Just one last question. What kind of stores do you want to see in this area?

B: Well, I don't really go to stores much. I do most of my shopping online. But I think this area needs some more nightlife. There are places to go in the evening after work but some of them are really expensive and the others get really busy. We're a young group in my office and we like to socialise around here after work sometimes, but when you leave the office in the evening, it's hard to find somewhere to go in the local area.

Extract 2

A: I just want to ask you one final thing. What type of store does this neighbourhood need, in your opinion?

B: Well, I don't live around here, I work in an office over there but I like to go shopping in my lunch hour. You know, last week, I wanted to buy some personal care products, like shampoo and deodorant, but couldn't find anything I liked. I prefer to buy products that are 100 percent natural. It's something that I don't mind paying extra for if the quality is good. There are a few stores around here but there isn't much variety.

Extract 3

A: Thank you for your time. Can I ask you one final question? Is there any particular kind of store missing from this area?

B: Erm, well, I'm a big fan of small fashion boutiques and good-quality second-hand clothes. I go all over the city to find stores that I like. I prefer not to shop in big chain stores and shopping malls because I don't want to see the same shirt I'm wearing on someone else. I like to browse for original clothes, things that you can't buy anywhere else. And I like to mix and match styles, I don't want to just wear the fashions and colours that are popular right now.

BW4.01 C = Clara Olsen A = Alvaro Martínez

C: So, at this point I'd like to talk about the work culture of Holsted Pharmaceuticals. There are four main areas I want to mention.

First of all, I want to talk about the working hours at Holsted. The usual working week is 37 hours from Monday to Friday. That's typical of Denmark in general. You aren't expected to work long hours. As for the working day, the timetable at Holsted is quite flexible for most employees. Staff can decide their start times, finish times and lunch breaks depending on their individual needs.

We understand when employees need to collect children from school or have to leave early for personal reasons, like a dentist's appointment. It's completely acceptable to do that. Whenever possible we give employees the opportunity to adapt their working hours to their family's needs. Our company work culture is very relaxed but effective.

Secondly, I want to talk about how we organise work and the relationship between managers and staff. There is a tradition that employees have a lot of individual responsibility for how they organise their own time and work. It is not generally the manager who decides how employees do their work. It is very important that staff meet deadlines and do their job well, but exactly how employees organise their time or projects is their responsibility.

And a third important point to mention is that all employees in Holsted are encouraged to tell us their ideas and opinions. This is very important because a level of staff participation and openness helps us to make better decisions.

And finally, I should say a word about meetings. It's very important at Holsted to arrive on time to meetings. It shows you are professional and organised.

A: Sorry, sorry I'm late. I've just come from another meeting. So, what have I missed?

BW4.02 C = Clara Olsen M = Marina Beltrán A = Alvaro Martínez

C: So, Marina, can you tell us more about the research your department has done?

M: Yes, well, you can see from this bar graph: the working day is very long here in the Madrid office. On an average day only half of our employees leave work by six o'clock. At seven o'clock twenty percent of the staff are still here in the office and ten percent are still at their desks at eight in the evening.

C: That's incredible! When do they spend time with their families? What time do they have dinner?

M: Yes, these working hours are obviously a disaster for family life.

A: Well, it is fairly normal to do this in Spanish companies. And people have dinner late. We have a 'split' working day where we start at 8.30 and go for lunch about two o'clock. We have two hours for lunch so you get back to work at four.

It's a good time to be sociable with co-workers, or go home for lunch if you don't have to travel far, or have business lunches. A long lunch break means finishing work late. It's always been part of our work culture.

M: I agree with Alvaro. It is traditional but I think many employees would prefer a shorter lunch break and the opportunity to go home an hour earlier.

A: I don't think so. It's the way we do things. People like to have a good lunch, not have a sandwich at their desks like they do in other countries.

M: Perhaps, but a lot of our employees are probably tired because of the long working hours and they won't get so much work done late in the day. Long hours can also be a cause of accidents at work and sick leave.

C: Has that been a problem here?

M: I don't know about our company, but international studies show people do more work within shorter hours. I mean, just look at Germany.

C: Yes, that's true. Who has ever done their best work when they're very tired?

BW5.01

Welcome, everyone. We're really happy to see so many people here, so much interest in making our town a better place. The purpose of today's meeting is to discuss practical ideas and real solutions. We've had discussions with quite a few of you already, and there are five main ideas we'd like to discuss today. So I'll introduce the ideas, and then after that, we'll have about ten minutes to discuss each of them.

So, here we go. The first idea is to get more tourists here. We would hire an advertising agency and advertise nationally or internationally about our great town. Tourists would come and spend money here.

Two. Create a local currency. Towns and cities all over the world have done this. It doesn't replace our national currency – it's money you can spend in local businesses. This encourages people to shop here in town.

Three. A time bank. In a time bank, anyone can offer their skills – a doctor, a car mechanic, a cleaner. If you work for someone for two hours, then you get credit for it, and you can ask someone to work for you for two hours.

Four. An online exchange – probably on social media – for second-hand goods. There are a few marketplaces that people use online, but we could have our own, just for people in this area, and people could trade things for other things.

Five. Start a Saturday market for local goods in the town centre. This could be vegetables, things you make at home, possibly second-hand items. We could do this every Saturday, or maybe once a month. So, those are the main ideas to discuss today. Now we'll take about ten minutes for each idea, and after that we'll vote and choose three that we think are the ones that are the best ...

BW5.02

OK, so now we've counted the vote, and we've decided to consider the following three options more seriously. First, we'll look at creating a local currency. Second, we'll see about setting up a time bank. Finally, we'll consider the idea of a Saturday market in town. Thanks a lot, everyone. We'll contact you all by email before the next meeting.

BW5.03 E = Ellen D = David

E: So, what do you think of the proposed projects?

D: They're interesting ideas.

E: Yeah. Will you vote?

D: Sure, yeah. But I haven't decided yet – I think they could all be useful. The local currency idea is definitely interesting. It would be good for local business.

E: Do you think? It seems kind of a strange idea to me – kind of weird – and I know other people who think it's strange, too. But maybe we're just old-fashioned.

D: You may have a point there!

E: I like the sound of the Saturday market. That's just a good, honest idea that everyone can understand. People will see it as a social event.

D: Yeah, maybe. But I think it's a bit boring compared to the other two. I mean – it's easy to sell old stuff, right? Why not just sell it online? Don't you think the time bank could be good? I mean, you're an accountant. If you join a time bank, people will definitely want your services.

E: Maybe that's what scares me! I have a job – I'm too busy for extra work.

D: I'm with you. I'm the same. I'm not sure I want to trade any of my skills. Sometimes it's easier just to pay people.

E: Yeah, definitely.

D: I think if we create a local currency, local businesses will definitely get a boost.

E: Maybe – but I'm not so sure.

D: Well, I think that one's going to get my vote.

BW6.01

I studied maths at university, but I didn't really think about what kind of job I could get. Everyone thinks if you study maths, then accounting is a natural job to do afterwards. So that's why I'm doing this now. But you know what? It isn't the numbers that I love – it's solving problems. When you study maths at university, you realise that actually, it's a very creative subject – almost like some kind of art, or poetry. And for me, accounting just isn't very creative. So I'm not that happy in my work, but I just don't know what I should do – what job I want to get. But something needs to change.

BW6.02

I love the work I do – I love design. But in my last job, I was part of a team. Now, in this company, I'm the designer – I work alone. One good thing is that I can concentrate – because everyone is busy doing their own job – no one bothers me ... or talks to me. Natalia can't afford another designer. But to have good, creative ideas, I really need to talk with someone – share my ideas – see what other people think about my work. That's what was great about my last job. I'm not sure what we can do, though. The company isn't going to hire a new employee now.

BW6.03

It isn't easy running a small company. I'm very lucky to have João and Leila working for me. They work hard and they care a lot – but I know they aren't completely happy. The truth is, I'm not completely happy, either. I started this company because I wanted to make and sell amazing chairs, not because I wanted to be a full-time manager. Every day there are problems to solve with suppliers, emails to write, phone calls to make. I need help, but I can't afford to hire a new employee.

BW6.04

I had some great news today – we've made a big sale to a hotel group – two hundred and twenty chairs in the next year. That's wonderful, because it will give me enough money to hire someone part-time to help me manage the business. I really need someone to get things organised – someone who can deal creatively with the suppliers and schedules and all that.

BW7.01 S = Sofia O = Oscar

S: That factory tour was really interesting, Oscar. Thanks.

O: You're welcome. I think we've got a great team here. And our customers are some of the biggest international companies. They must have quality.

S: I can see that you're giving them that. But what's your production time?

O: From our three production lines, we can do 3,000 pairs in twelve weeks. That's a high-quality shoe with nice details.

S: You mean twelve from order?

O: Yes, usually. Maybe a bit longer.

S: OK. Well, I think we can probably make some savings there – speed up production time and cut down on costs – you know, find ways to lower them – spend less in general.

O: Well, maybe. What do you suggest?

S: I think there are some new machines you might be interested in. More automation could increase your rate of production by maybe twenty or thirty percent.

O: I was afraid you were going to say that.

S: What?

O: More automation. We take pride in working with our hands. We really value our workers' skill. I'm not sure we're ready to make any big changes there.

S: OK, well, that gives us something to talk about!

BW7.02 S = Sofia M = Mario O = Oscar

S: Before we decide on your shoe designs, we need to know how you're going to make them.

M: Sure.

S: So if you're going for a more handmade style, production will be slower, and there will be less automation. I'm not sure I'd recommend it at this point. It may not be very cost-effective. I think more automation is the best thing to do. Oscar, do you agree with what I am saying?

O: Well, OK ... But these machines aren't cheap. If we don't improve the factory, we could probably take on a few more workers. And that will only cost us money if we really need to increase production.

S: Sure. I think we're probably talking about the highest quality footwear in that case. And to make it work financially, I'm pretty sure you're going to need to be able to deliver more shoes more quickly.

O: OK, I understand that. Mario – what are you thinking?

M: The designs I'm working on are definitely very high quality – with some really nice details that are finished by hand.

S: They sound great, Mario, but I think breaking into the market – you know, starting to sell a new product – may be harder with a really high-quality shoe ...

M: Yeah, I understand that. But it's like this: Zapatos Trujillo S.A. have made other people's shoes for forty years, and we're good at it. Now we'd like to make some shoes that we are all really proud of – something we can take to the big trade shows, the big fashion footwear shows – you know, Paris, Berlin – and really show people what we can do. Those are the shoes we want to make.

S: OK, that's clear. So let's see how we can make it happen.

BW7.03 S = Sofia J = John

S: Hi, John.

J: Sofia, hello. How's everything going in Mexico?

S: Good, mostly. Zapatos Trujillo S.A. are doing a lot of things right already, so I feel good about the company ...

J: But something's bothering you.

S: Well, I really think automation is the answer here. If they want to increase their annual production, they really need to buy some machines.

J: But they want to keep making handmade shoes.

S: Right.

J: Well, from our own experience, we can offer plenty of success stories about automation, right? I mean, most shoe makers who finally try it agree afterwards that it's helped their business. So maybe you need to tell them about some of the other companies we've worked with.

S: Yeah, that's a good idea. I haven't tried that, but I will.

J: And give them some options. You can show them exactly what automation can do for their profit, but the final decision has to be theirs. In some cases, it really isn't about the money, and that's OK.

S: Yeah, you're right. OK, well, I'll get back to working out some of these numbers. Always good to talk to you!

J: Good luck Sofia. I'm around if you want to talk again.

BW8.01 P = Patricia D = Davy J = Joe

P: Now that we've measured our energy use and waste, we can use that to help us plan the GO project and decide what our priorities are.

D: Yes, it's very important to have this data. Obviously, I can see lighting is a big cost at the moment but the LED lights in the new building will help reduce costs there.

P: And the new motion sensors they're installing.

D: Motion sensors?

P: Yes, these can detect movement in certain areas and switch the lights on and off without anyone having to touch them. Places like the toilets, corridors, storerooms, the stairs and in the car park. But the new building will have them everywhere.

D: Good idea. That's the lighting cost reduced. What else can we do?

P: Well, as you can see from the pie chart in my report, the computer servers are costing us quite a lot of money. First of all there's the cost of the electricity to run the machines and second, there's the cost of cooling and ventilation to keep the server room at the right temperature. Are there any possible savings there?

D: What about 'cloud computing'? I mean, do we need servers in the office now? It's possible to use a cloud computing service.

P: Do we know what the options are? What are the security risks? And the costs of the service?

D: I understand there are fewer risks with cloud computing than having our own servers. I'll talk to the IT department, Patricia. We'll look into the options and the costs and tell you what we find out.

P: Thank you. Now what about waste, especially paper use? I know that paper itself is not very expensive for the company compared to other costs, but everyone is printing too much. The current printers are old, always break down and some employees complain they have to print documents three or four times because the print quality is so terrible.

J: They are terrible! When you think about the paper and toner we waste because of this, then it is clear they are not cost-effective. I think we need new multifunctional machines that print, photocopy and scan.

P: I agree! There'll be costs to upgrade, obviously, but we will save money, too. Joe, would you find out more about those for us? Get some prices and see how we could do this?

J: OK, Pat, I'll do that.

P: Right, so Davy, you'll find out more about cloud computing. Joe, you'll work on the printers and I want to look at a new recycling scheme to find out how we can recycle more of our waste. I mean, two kilos of waste per person per day is not good. I know we won't make big savings, but it is important for our image and our reputation as a green company to help protect the environment. Sorry. Hello! Really? OK, I'll come down. Sorry, we'll have to end there. There's a problem at reception.

D: OK, sure

J: No problem. See you later.
