Cats Rescued by Young Hero

Last week, young 12-year-old Adam Irving became the town hero on his way home from school after rescuing four kittens (1) in the basement of an old house in Worthing, East Sussex.

(2) towards home, he heard a strange rustling noise coming from the empty house. Despite feeling a little scared, he thought he would take a look. (3) closer to the building, he could see two yellow and black eyes staring out at him through a crack in the basement door and he immediately realised it was a kitten. (4) several failed attempts to reach it, and hearing the distressed sound it was making, he made the decision (5) the fire brigade. Upon arrival, the fire brigade knocked the basement door down and to everyone's surprise found not just one kitten but four, and their mother who appeared (6) injured. The mother and kittens were immediately placed in the care of an animal shelter where they were nursed back to health before being reunited with their owner.

The fire brigade were the first (7) the young lad for doing the right thing in (8) them, adding that if it hadn't been for his determination (9) the cats in their hour of need, they probably wouldn't have made it. All the neighbours are so proud of Adam, especially Francesca Martin, the cat's owner, who had spent days (10) for her pregnant cat and had been anxious for its safety.
