How the course works

English for Everyone is designed for people who want to teach themselves the English language. Like all language courses, it covers the core skills: grammar, vocabulary, pronunciation, listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Unlike in other courses, the skills are taught and practiced as visually as possible, using images and graphics to help you understand and remember. The best way to learn is to work through the book in order, making full use of the audio available on the website and app. Turn to the practice book at the end of each unit to reinforce your learning with additional exercises.

PRACTICE BOOK

COURSE BOOK

Unit number The book is divided into units. The unit number helps you keep track of your progress.

Learning points Every unit begins with a summary of the key learning points.

Modules Each unit is broken down into modules, which should be done in order. You can take a break from learning after completing any module.

Language learning
Modules with colored backgrounds teach new vocabulary and grammar. Study these carefully before moving on to the exercises.

32 Conditional tenses

You can use the third conditional to describe an unreal past, or events that did not happen. This is useful for talking about regrets you have about the past.

32.1 KEY LANGUAGE THE THIRD CONDITIONAL

SECOND CONDITIONAL	THIRD CONDITIONAL
The second conditional is used to describe unreal situations in the present.	Use the third conditional to describe unreal situations in the past.
If I lived in New York, I would go running in Central Park.	If we had left earlier, we would have caught the train.

32.2 HOW TO FORM THE THIRD CONDITIONAL

THIRD: PAST PERFECT
we had left earlier.

WOULD: WOULD / WOULD NOT
we would have caught the train.

THIRD: PAST PERFECT
The "if" clause in the third conditional is used to describe an unreal situation in the past.

WOULD: WOULD / WOULD NOT
The conditional clause in the third conditional is used to describe an unreal situation in the past.

32.3 ANOTHER WAY TO SAY THE THIRD CONDITIONAL

The past perfect continuous can also follow "if" in the third conditional.

If you'd been wearing a coat, you would have stayed warm.

We would've caught the train if we'd left on time.

32.4 FILL IN THE GAPS BY PUTTING THE VERBS IN THE CORRECT TENSES TO MAKE SENTENCES IN THE THIRD CONDITIONAL

If he had asked (ask) me to marry him, I would have said (would / say) yes.

If I chose (choose) the trip, we would go (would / go) to Spain.

If we arrive (arrive) earlier, we would not miss (would / not miss) the show.

I could (could / help) them if they call (call) me earlier.

If we stop (stop) eating earlier, we wouldn't (wouldn't / not) be sick.

She would pass (would / pass) her exam if she works (work) a bit harder.

If you shut (shut) the door, we wouldn't (wouldn't / not) be cold.

32.5 KEY LANGUAGE FORMAL INVERSION

You can make the third conditional more formal by inverting the subject and "had" and dropping "if".

If you had attended the meeting, you would have met the manager.

Had you attended the meeting, you would have met the manager.

32.6 LISTEN TO THE AUDIO AND MARK THE THINGS THAT ACTUALLY HAPPENED

Audio support Most modules have supporting audio recordings of native English speakers to help you improve your speaking and listening skills.

Exercises Modules with white backgrounds contain exercises that help you practice your new skills to reinforce learning.

Verbs have various forms in the present tense, including continuous and perfect. You need to understand these differences when making question tags.

 New language Present tenses

 Vocabulary Meeting new people

 New skill Using question tags

1.1 KEY LANGUAGE PRESENT SIMPLE AND PRESENT CONTINUOUS

PRESENT SIMPLE

The present simple refers to something that happens in general or as part of a daily routine.

PRESENT CONTINUOUS

The present continuous refers to something that is happening right now and will continue for a limited amount of time.

I usually cycle to work, but today I'm walking instead.

1.2 REWRITE THE NOTE, CORRECTING THE HIGHLIGHTED ERRORS

Hi José,

Today is being my first day in my new job, so I leave the house early. I'm being a bit nervous, but I'm also being very excited! Anyway, I already run late, and I'm needing to leave to catch the bus. Don't be forgetting to pick up some milk on your way home from work tonight!

See you later!

Hi José,

Today is my first day...

1.3 KEY LANGUAGE PRESENT PERFECT AND PRESENT PERFECT CONTINUOUS

PRESENT PERFECT

Use the present perfect to talk about the recent past or general experiences in a lifetime up until now.

PRESENT PERFECT CONTINUOUS

Use the present perfect continuous to talk about an action that started in the past, but is continuing until now or has present results.

I've just started a new job. I've been meeting new people all week.

1.4 FILL IN THE GAPS BY PUTTING THE VERBS IN THE PRESENT PERFECT OR THE PRESENT PERFECT CONTINUOUS

I have been waiting (wait) for a bus all morning, but I still haven't seen (not see) one!

- ① I _____ (read) for hours. My eyes _____ (start) hurting.
- ② Has the mail _____ (arrive) yet? I _____ (expect) a letter all week.
- ③ My leg _____ (hurt) all day, but I _____ (not see) a doctor yet.
- ④ Have you _____ (see) my keys? I _____ (look) for them for ages.
- ⑤ Have you _____ (hear) about Carl? He _____ (decide) to move.
- ⑥ I _____ (finish)! I _____ (write) this essay for ages.
- ⑦ Have you ever _____ (visit) France? We _____ (look) at brochures.
- ⑧ I _____ (try) to reach Tao all day, but he _____ (not answer) yet.

1.5 KEY LANGUAGE QUESTION TAGS

If the main clause of the sentence is positive, the question tag is negative, and vice versa. In most cases, the question tag uses the verb "do."

Question tags are small questions added to the end of a statement in informal conversation.

You like meeting new people, don't you?

You don't like meeting new people, do you?

If the main verb is "be," "be" is also used in the question tag.

The negative question form of "I am" is "aren't I."

I am working tomorrow, aren't I?

George isn't working today, is he?

If the main clause of the sentence contains an auxiliary verb or a modal verb, the question tag uses this verb.

You have met the new boss, haven't you?

We shouldn't interrupt him, should we?

1.6 MATCH THE STATEMENTS TO THE CORRECT QUESTION TAGS

Nina's always late for work, are they?

1 They aren't very welcoming, does he?

2 He should try harder to be friendly, has she?

3 She hasn't made many friends here, isn't she?

4 He doesn't like going to new places, wouldn't they?

5 They're so happy to be here,

aren't they?

6 They would be here if they could, shouldn't he?

1.7 KEY LANGUAGE INTONATION WITH QUESTION TAGS

If the intonation goes up at the end of the question tag, it is a question requiring an answer.

You'd like to move offices, wouldn't you?

[I am asking whether or not you would like to move offices.]

If the intonation goes down at the end of a question tag, the speaker is just inviting the listener to agree.

You've already met Evelyn, haven't you?

[I already know you've met Evelyn.]

1.8 LISTEN TO THE SENTENCES AND MARK WHETHER OR NOT AN ANSWER IS REQUIRED

You came here last year, didn't you?

Answer required ☒ Answer not required ☐

① You moved to the other side of town, didn't you?

Answer required ☐ Answer not required ☐

② They haven't treated you very well, have they?

Answer required ☐ Answer not required ☐

⑤ You don't have any money for a taxi, do you?

Answer required ☐ Answer not required ☐

⑥ Maria doesn't seem to like Sue, does she?

Answer required ☐ Answer not required ☐

1.9 ADD QUESTION TAGS TO THE SENTENCES AND SAY THEM WITH BOTH TYPES OF INTONATION

Clara doesn't still work for the same company, does she ?

①

People don't have their own office space here, _____ ?

②

You have been introduced to Mr. Thomas, _____ ?

③

You'd like to come to dinner with us all tonight, _____ ?

LIFE, LOVE, AND LARA

Lara Estelle celebrates her 70th birthday today

It's difficult to imagine now, but in her younger days Lara "The Shades" Estelle was always in the news. How did she create such a sensation? Opinions are divided. Some people say that she was a brilliant musician with an iconic fashion sense. Others believe she was the cause of one of the country's most dramatic sporting upsets.

My parents' views on Lara Estelle are poles apart and, therefore, typical of many of their generation. My mother still loves Lara's music and used to have the same platinum white hair and dark sunglasses as her idol. My father, however, remembers 1980 and his favorite soccer team losing in the final game of the season. He still firmly believes that Lara caused Dun City to lose. But how could a singer cause such drama?

The quality of her music is a matter of opinion, but in 1979 Lara was a top-selling artist. She met her first husband Steven Jones,

Dun City's star player, backstage at one of her concerts. Within weeks they were engaged. Lara told Steven that, to prove his love for her, their wedding must be on the same day as the league final that season. He agreed, and there is still a popular belief among City fans that their team lost because Jones did not play. The couple divorced a year later and City never won any trophies again. To this day, my father dislikes Lara's music.

Steven and Lara were married in a glamorous ceremony in 1979.

Mariam Davies
WILDLIFE PHOTOGRAPHER

ABOUT ME

I was born in a small town in northern France and went to college in Scotland to study architecture. While at college, I joined the photography club. We used to go on field trips to amazing places and I met my husband, the landscape photographer Julian Davies, while photographing dolphins from a boat. During my last year in college, a wildlife magazine published a number of my photos of birds. This was a major turning point for me and, after we graduated, Julian and I became freelance photographers. We were based in Europe while our twin boys were growing up, but since they both graduated last year, we have started exploring and photographing further afield. We spent some time in Africa this year, and want to take photographs in Japan and Korea next year.

Performance Review: Jorge Perez

Jorge is very hard-working and his confidence has grown considerably since he joined the company last summer. My year off turned into a career

When I was a teenager, I decided to take a gap year before going to university. I had already done loads of research online and decided to go to a Greek island to pick olives. I had calculated that I could earn enough money to travel cheaply to Asia. Although the people were wonderful, by the end of the olive harvest I felt I was a bit cut off on such a small island, so I bought a plane ticket and set off to Malaysia.

While I was in Malaysia, I decided to become an English teacher. I knew right away that teaching was what I wanted to do for the rest of my life. A short while later, I graduated with a degree in teaching. After just 10 years, I opened my very first English-language school.

08 Narrative tenses

When telling a story, even if you're just talking about something that happened recently, you need to use a variety of tenses so that the story can be understood easily.

- New language The past perfect continuous
- Vocabulary Travel adjectives and idioms
- New skill Talking about a variety of past actions

8.1 KEY LANGUAGE NARRATIVE TENSES

You can use different past tenses to show when past actions or states overlap, or to say which took place first.

PAST SIMPLE

The past simple describes actions or states that happened in a specific finished time period.

Last summer, we flew to London.
There's so much to do there!

A specific finished time period ("last summer") is specified, so the past simple is used.

PAST CONTINUOUS

The past continuous describes an action that began before, and possibly continued after, another past action.

While we were walking around the city, we took some photos in front of Big Ben.

You often use the past simple and the past continuous together to say that one action interrupted a longer one.

PAST PERFECT

The past perfect describes an action or state that happened before something else in the past.

This action happened before something else in the past (the trip abroad), so the past perfect is used.

Fortunately, we had looked up all the best places to go beforehand.

8.2 FILL IN THE GAPS BY PUTTING THE VERBS IN THE PAST SIMPLE OR PAST CONTINUOUS

We were flying (fly) over France when we saw (see) the Alps for the first time.

- 2 Someone _____ (talk) during the tour until we _____ (tell) them to be quiet.
- 3 I _____ (stop) twice to take photos while I _____ (drive) through the country.
- 4 We _____ (decide) to order some champagne while we _____ (eat) lunch.
- 5 We were lost and our feet _____ (ache) before we finally _____ (find) a map shop.

8.3 COMPLETE THE SENTENCES USING THE PAST PERFECT, SPEAKING OUT LOUD

Our friend told us the city tour was great, so we went on it.

We went on the city tour because our friend had told us it was great.

- 1 We walked all around the city and my feet really ached by the end of the day.

- 3 We crossed over the wrong bridge and got completely lost.

We got completely lost because _____

- 4 Our tour guide recommended a great show, so we went to see it.

Tonight, 9pm

This week, the Travel Underground series visits Turkey and tells the remarkable story of Derinkuyu in Cappadocia. Back in 1963, a resident had been knocking a wall down in his house, but stopped when something caught his eye. He decided to keep on digging, and it was soon obvious that he had discovered something incredible. This documentary charts the fascinating history of Derinkuyu, the deepest underground city in Turkey. Far below the surface, Derinkuyu had been a place of safety for many peoples for hundreds of years.

Stronger suggestion.

PROPERTY

HOUSE PRICES ON THE RISE

A normal goal for many young people is to fly the nest and move into a house of their own. In many tourist areas, however, this is becoming a very unlikely goal for young local people. In resorts around the world, tourists are buying properties either as short-term investments or to live in part-time. As people from the cities (or wealthy countries) compete to buy the properties, it is only a matter of time until the prices rise. These prices are unlikely to be affordable for young local people. This makes it more difficult for them to remain in their own towns if they want to live independently.

In the long run, there is a cost to society and communities. Marisa Cali lives in a picturesque village on a Greek island. "Many of the houses in the village are now empty most of the year. There are fewer people around. It's not like it used to be, but I guess it's the shape of things to come for many island villages."

Some local governments are insisting that a percentage of all new homes built in such areas must be affordable for locals. Other governments are charging higher fees for overseas buyers. So far, these policies have had little impact on the situation.

A long lost brother

A few years ago, my grandfather told me about a brother who he hadn't seen in a very long time. They lost touch over 50 years ago while they were both serving in the army overseas. I decided that I would try to find my great-uncle, the brother who my grandfather used to talk about so fondly.

I was in the library when I met a man called Robert who was also researching his family history. His grandfather also had a brother he hadn't seen for 50 years. The more we talked, the more similarities we had. Our grandfathers had both become teachers after they left the army. We realized after talking for an hour that our grandfathers were brothers. Astonishingly, they lived less than 20 miles apart from each other, and even used to live on the very same street! Last week my grandfather and my great-uncle met again for the first time in half a century.

FAMILY LIFE

A different approach

The surprise benefits of shared parental leave
by Samantha Pope

The new "shared parental leave" law is great for my family. As a lawyer I earn twice as much as my husband, Jon, who is a teacher. This meant that we were going to pay a high price for me taking a career break at this time. I returned to work quite soon after our baby, Zach, was born, and Jon has taken parental leave from his work to be at home.

Of course, I still share lots of time with Zach. Because Jon is a heavy sleeper, I wake up to do nighttime duties. This does make me a bit tired, but a strong coffee in the morning and a quick walk to work (unless there's heavy rain) normally wakes me up. In the morning, Jon and Zach usually walk with me through the park. We were surprised to discover that this 40-minute walk is actually almost as quick as me driving the car in heavy traffic at rush hour.

I was worried that my friends and family would have a low opinion of me going back to work as soon as I did, but in the end everyone agreed with us.

New skill Changing sentence emphasis

19.1 KEY LANGUAGE THE PASSIVE VOICE

In a passive sentence, the emphasis is taken away from the agent (the person or thing doing the action), and put on the action itself (or the person or object receiving it).

Online or face-to-face?

You can take a multitude of courses online nowadays: everything from online yoga through to a Master's degree in business management. But what are the pros and cons of online learning and how does it compare with the face-to-face experience? Of course one major advantage of learning online is that it is often more flexible. You can read and write whenever and wherever you like. Another bonus is that these courses are often cheaper or even free. However, because you are not in the same place as your peers, or even online at the same time, you may miss out on the camaraderie and peer support. Sometimes online learning can be a lonely experience. So, what is the solution? Well, maybe you can have the best of both worlds. With blended learning, you can have some face-to-face lessons while other course content is delivered online.

20 Things that might happen

There are many ways to talk about hypothetical future situations. You can use different structures to indicate whether you think a hypothesis is likely or unlikely.

New language "What if," "suppose," "in case"

Aa Vocabulary Exams and assessment

New skill Talking about hypothetical situations

20.1 KEY LANGUAGE LIKELY TO HAPPEN

If a future outcome is likely to happen, you can use "what if," "suppose," and "in case" followed by the present tense to express it.

"What if" means "what would happen if a hypothetical situation occurred?"

Present tense shows the speaker believes this is likely to happen.

What if I fail my exams?
I won't be able to go to college.

20.2 FURTHER EXAMPLES LIKELY TO HAPPEN

"Suppose" refers to the consequences of a hypothetical situation.

Suppose they assess our coursework.
We will have to keep a portfolio.

We should start organizing our project work in case they want to see it.

"In case" refers to being prepared for the hypothetical situation.

20.3 MATCH THE SITUATIONS TO THE LIKELY CONSEQUENCES

What if we don't pass our exams?

Maybe you could apply for funding.

① I'm going to take a water bottle in case the exam room is hot.

② Suppose you cannot afford to study.

Maybe we'll have to take them again.

③ I am studying really hard tonight

Maybe they will have spares.

④ What if I forget to bring a calculator?

in case we have a test tomorrow.

20.4 KEY

If a future outcome is possible, but not likely to happen, you can also use "what if," "suppose" followed by the past tense to express it. You can also use "just in case" to express the present tense.

20.4 KEY LANGUAGE UNLIKELY TO HAPPEN

If a future outcome is possible, but unlikely to happen, you can also use "what if" and "suppose" followed by the past tense to express it. You can also use "just in case" with the present tense.

The past tense shows the speaker thinks this is unlikely to happen.

Just imagine! What if we all passed our exams with perfect scores?

20.5 FURTHER EXAMPLES UNLIKELY TO HAPPEN

"Suppose" and "supposing" are interchangeable in this context.

Suppose I got caught cheating. My parents would be furious.

You should apply for a job just in case you fail your exams.

"Just" is added to "in case" to talk about preparation for a situation that is less likely.

The verb remains in the present tense after "just in case."

Memorizing is not learning!

Why are you trying to remember dozens of facts, figures, and quotations? The only reason is so that you can use them in the 12 terrifyingly stressful 3-hour exams that will be the only "proof" of how much you have learned over the academic year. Suppose it didn't have to be this way? What if you had continuous assessment throughout the year that showed what you can do with the knowledge, rather than how much you can cram into your memory? This can happen if you write to the head of your academic departments and urge them to consider 21st-century modes of assessment. Make time and write today.

Dear Mrs. Evans,

I'm writing to apply for the Social Media Marketing Assistant post advertised in Social Journal. Please find attached a copy of my résumé for your consideration.

I have recently completed a degree in Digital Marketing, which has prepared me well for this position and has made me very enthusiastic about working in this area. As well as providing a strong theoretical grounding, it required a great deal of practical research and initiative. One of the courses, Social Media Marketing in the 21st Century, was particularly relevant to this position. As part of a project for this course, I developed and managed a social media campaign for a soft drinks company.

I have a keen interest in following developments in digital marketing, and am very creative as well as having a good eye for detail and accuracy.

I would be able to take the position immediately. Thank you for taking the time to consider my application, and I look forward to hearing from you in the near future.

Yours sincerely,

A Williams

Here you can find out more about the YouToPrint company history, where we are now, and our exciting plans for the future. We began designing and printing documents and cards for businesses 20 years ago.

Last year, we streamlined our processes by putting the client in charge of design, while we focused on providing the quality materials and printing. While this meant that we had to let go of a few of our staff, we made a number of economies which we could then pass on to our clients in the form of cheaper prices.

We will shortly be revealing our SmartUBiz cards. You only need to tap these cards on a smartphone to be taken directly to a website. Those websites can be changed by the client at any time, so the business card is always up to date.

27 Reflexive pronouns

Reflexive pronouns show that the subject of a verb is the same as its object. They can also be used in other situations to add emphasis.

Not a single person let themselves down today.

27.2 HOW TO FORM

This sentence makes sense without a reflexive pronoun.

Adding the reflexive pronoun at the end of the clause emphasizes that the action was not delegated.

The company director gave the talk himself.

[The company director gave the talk, rather than getting someone else to do it.]

Adding the reflexive pronoun directly after the subject emphasizes its importance.

The company director himself gave the talk.

HOW TO RUN EFFECTIVE MEETINGS

Top tips from our experts

1 Make sure the meeting you propose having is necessary. Could a notice or email be used to hand out information more effectively? Remember many people can't stand attending unnecessary meetings. If you only have meetings when necessary, then participants will prepare properly and take them more seriously.

2 Remember to set objectives for meetings. This serves a number of purposes. First, everyone knows why the meeting is being held and so will see it as potentially useful. Second, if a participant starts bringing up unrelated topics, you can refer back to the objective.

3 Make sure everyone knows the meeting's objectives by sharing an agenda at least a few days before the meeting. Some people prefer to assign a pre-meeting task to ensure that the agenda is read.

4 Begin talking on time to show respect to those attendees who arrived on time. Don't stop to talk to latecomers. Deal with them later.

CONSERVATION WEEKLY

Save the Javan rhino

In 2010, the last surviving Javan rhino in Vietnam was killed for its horn. How can we make sure that the same does not happen to the few remaining rhinos on Java? What can we do differently?

Firstly, if the rhinos' habitat had been better protected, the rhinos would have had a much greater chance of survival.

Not only does their natural tropical rainforest habitat provide a place for the rhinos to live and find food but it also acts as a place to hide from hunters and poachers.

We also need to stop the market in rhino horns. Prices are so high that poachers take huge risks to get them. Had we persuaded more people not to use rhino horn in traditional medicines, we might have saved that last Javan rhino in Vietnam. We must do all we can to stop the illegal trade in rhino horn.

76 ENVIRONMENT UPDATE

WHY ARE YOU A CAMPAIGNER?

My grandfather was a sailor and explored the world by sea. He'd tell me stories of his adventures. He never asked me to go sailing with him, though I would have loved to. Once, in the 1930s, he saw fishermen killing a Caribbean monk seal. He wanted to stop the fishermen, and always felt bad that he did not do anything. After about 20 years, he read that the very last Caribbean monk seal had been killed. He always regretted not doing anything to protect these seals. Many years later when I was in Greece, I saw a leaflet about the endangered Mediterranean monk seal. I knew I had to help or else I'd feel guilty forever. Unfortunately my grandfather never knew I became a campaigner. He'd be very proud.

THE ENVIRONMENT

MONGOOSE MADNESS

Mongoose wreak havoc on Mauritius.

One surprising environmental problem caused by humans is the introduction of non-native species of animals to solve local problems.

The new species is supposed to eat the animal that is causing a problem for humans. The difficulties arise when there are no predators for this newly introduced species or when it decides to feed on plants and animals that we do want. For example, the Small Indian Mongoose was introduced to Mauritius and should have dealt with an ever-growing rat population. The mongooses killed the rats, but then they also killed many local animals which then became extinct on the island.

THE PROBLEM WITH POLLUTION

Pollution levels rising across the globe.

The growing human population is producing more and more waste, ranging from sewage and smog to radioactive fuel. Dealing with all this waste is a huge problem. Much of it is just dumped, pumped into the atmosphere, or even poured into rivers and oceans. The resulting pollution is damaging nature.

One of the main issues is the kind of waste humans are now producing. Until the mid-20th century, most of the waste was buried and it just slowly decayed. Nowadays, however, modern plastics make up a large portion of what we throw away. These plastics are almost indestructible by any natural process, so they just pile up, creating huge heaps of waste.

Urbanization (the population shift from rural areas to towns and cities) has been happening for centuries. However, the rate and extent of population shift has reached astonishing levels. Some Asian cities, such as Osaka, Jakarta, Mumbai, Seoul, and Beijing, already have populations of more than 20 million people.

What are the environmental consequences of urbanization on such a massive scale? One major effect of urbanization is the creation of "urban heat islands." Rural areas can remain cooler _____ the sun evaporating the moisture from the vegetation and the soil. However, in the cities there is much less soil and vegetation. _____, the sun beating on the buildings and roads _____ to an increase in temperatures. Hi Carl,

Your Australian vacation photos look great. I'm just writing to keep you up to date with events while you're away.

I've been looking after Dad and I went to see him last week. I'm afraid he looked quite a sorry sight. He said that he'd received an email asking for his bank details. He sent them and then someone stole money out of his account! At first sight, the email really looked like one from his bank, but it turned out to be fake.

Well, I saw red and called the police and the bank immediately, and luckily they agreed to refund his money. I've told him to call me if another email like that arrives! Other than that, everything is fine here.

Keep having fun!

With a lateral thinking puzzle, you are given an unusual situation and a little information. Your task is to discover the explanation. Can you work this one out?

A young boy, Pete, lives on the 12th floor of an apartment building. Every morning he takes the elevator down to the lobby. In the evening, he gets into the elevator, and, if there's someone else there, he goes up to his floor directly. Otherwise, he goes to the 10th floor and walks up two flights of stairs to his apartment. He does this even though he hates walking. Why?

The solution to this puzzle is that the young boy is too short to reach the buttons for those floors numbered above 10.

I'm a Scorpio and I check my stars every day. I've got an app on my smartphone and it's one of the first things I read in the mornings. If the horoscope says I shouldn't do something, I won't. For example, if it says "Don't travel," then there's no chance of me getting on a plane that day. I know that, logically, it's very unlikely that anything will happen, but I don't want to take the risk. I'm a typical Scorpio because I'm quite passionate about things, but I'm also a little obsessive. I guess that's why I have to check my stars every day!

Richard Davis (22), Sagittarius (Nov 24–Dec 22)

I'm Sagittarius, I think, but I never think about horoscopes. I think that it's all nonsense. I mean, when you read the things that they say will happen to you on a certain day, there's a fair chance that they will happen to most people on most days. Things like "You'll get some news" or "You'll talk to a stranger." I also think that, if you believe in these things, then it is inevitable that the predictions will suit what happens because you will make them fit. I mean, if you wear red because your stars tell you to, and everything is OK, then you can say that the horoscope was right. Apparently, I'm supposed to be intellectual and superficial. I'm not sure how I can be both!

Hi Eleri, I hope you're having a great time in Chile! I've had an unusual week here. I got an email saying that I'd won a competition for two free bungee jumps. It was a bit of a bolt from the blue because I'd completely forgotten that I'd even entered the competition!

I was on cloud nine, so I told my sister. I thought she would be overjoyed like me, but she was so moody! You know what she's like, always wanting to get all the attention and trying to steal my thunder. Well, I asked her if she'd do it with me. I thought it would be really funny because she hates heights.

The jump was all planned for Thursday, but as I was driving to her house, she sent me a text message saying that she had the flu and so would have to take a rain check. I thought this was a bit odd because she was as right as rain the night before.

Anyway, I had already decided that I was doing this jump come rain or shine, so I went without her. I jumped off the canal bridge. It was absolutely awesome! So now I'm just going to throw caution to the wind and do a sky dive next year. I already can't wait!

Town in chaos as burglar strikes again

POSTED TUESDAY, 7:00AM

In the latest incident in what is arguably the most unusual series of crimes in the area, the Daylight Burglar has apparently struck again. It looks like this time he has targeted cheese from victims' refrigerators. It has only been a few days since the last series of burglaries, but it seems that the Daylight Burglar's spree is not over yet. If anything, these new crimes suggest that he has no plans to stop soon.

The Daylight Burglar tends to take fairly unusual items of little value. Last week, single socks were taken from approximately 20 homes. Before that, it was teapots.

It could be said that this burglar is harmless, but that is not how the victims feel. Often, they are left traumatized by the fact that someone has broken into their homes. "It's very scary. To some extent we no longer feel safe at home. We all assume it's a local person, probably a someone we all know," said burglary victim Sasha Johnson.

It would appear that each week the burglar targets one unusual item to steal from people's homes. We believe that the police have no clue who the burglar is, but the evidence indicates that it is someone who likes tea and cheese.

You can add emphasis, or even a sense of drama, to a statement through grammar and pronunciation. Inversion is one effective way to do this.

- New language Inversion after adverbials
- Aa Vocabulary Media and celebrity
- New skill Adding emphasis to statements

44.1 KEY LANGUAGE INVERSION AFTER NEGATIVE ADVERBIALS

In more formal or literary texts, inversion (when the normal order of words is reversed) is used for emphasis after negative adverbial phrases like "not only," "not since," and "only when."

In this simple sentence, the subject comes before the verb.

She is a famous singer. She is also a very good actor.

Not only is she a famous singer, but she's also a very good actor.

After the negative adverbial, the subject and the verb swap places.

44.2 FURTHER EXAMPLES INVERSION AFTER NEGATIVE ADVERBIALS

Negative adverbials are generally followed by auxiliary verb + subject.

Not since I was a teenager have I enjoyed a performance so much.

Not until the performance was over did he look up at the audience.

Where there is no auxiliary verb, "do" is used.

Only if it stops raining will the race go ahead this afternoon.

Only when he emerged from the car did the fans start cheering.

44.5 KEY LANGUAGE INVERSION AFTER TIME ADVERBIALS

You can also emphasize when something happened by using inversion after time adverbials like "no sooner" and "never before."

In this simple sentence, the subject comes before the verb.

Tina had just released an album when she starred in her first movie.

No sooner had Tina released an album than she starred in her first movie.

The subject ("Tina") and the auxiliary verb ("had") swap places.

44.6 FURTHER EXAMPLES INVERSION AFTER TIME ADVERBIALS

New skill Shifting focus

45.1 KEY LANGUAGE FOCUSING WITH "WHAT" CLAUSES

You can add "what" with the verb "be" to a simple statement to make it more emphatic. This structure is often used with verbs expressing emotions, such as "love," "hate," "like," and "want."

Would you like to go to a movie?

No, thanks. What I really want is to go to bed early.

Add "what" to the start of the sentence.

The information that you want to focus on is put outside the "what" clause.

This has more emphasis than "I really want to go to bed early."

This has more emphasis than "No, I met your friend Michael."

Add "that" before the main verb.

No, it was your friend Michael that I met.

Add "it is" or "it was" before the noun phrase.

47 Relative clauses

Relative clauses are sections of a sentence that provide more information about a noun in the main statement. They can be defining or non-defining.

- New language Relative clauses
- Aa Vocabulary Crime and criminals
- New skill Specifying and elaborating

47.1 KEY LANGUAGE DEFINING RELATIVE CLAUSES

Relative clauses are made up of a subject, a verb, and usually an object. They usually start with a relative pronoun, which can be the subject or the object of the relative clause. Defining relative clauses specify which person or thing you're talking about in the main clause.

Here the relative pronoun "who" is the subject of the relative clause.

Here the relative pronoun "which" is the object of the relative clause.

47.2 MARK WHETHER THE RELATIVE PRONOUN IS THE SUBJECT OR THE OBJECT OF THE RELATIVE CLAUSE

Subject ☐ Object ☐

47.3 KEY LANGUAGE RELATIVE PRONOUNS

English uses different relative pronouns to talk about people and things.

47.4 HOW TO FORM DEFINING RELATIVE CLAUSES

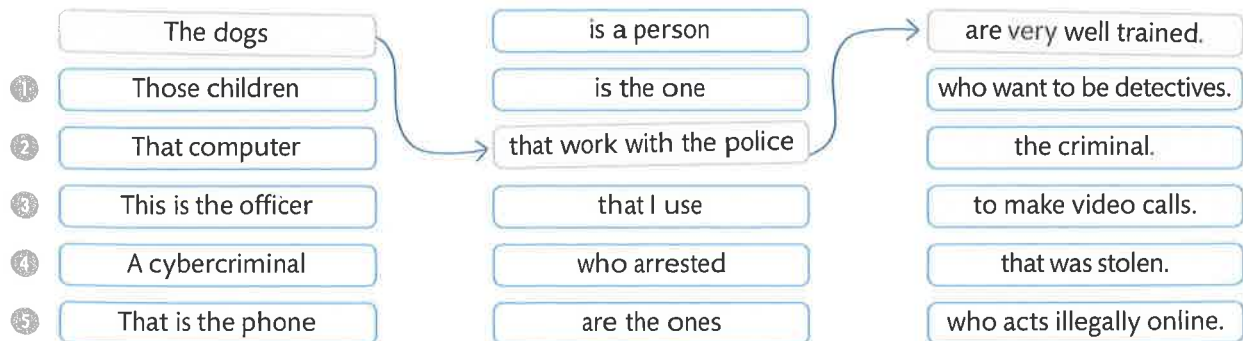

If the relative pronoun is the subject of the relative clause, it must appear in the sentence.

If the relative pronoun is the object of the relative clause, it can be left out. You can use "whom" when a person is the object, but this is very formal.

47.5 MATCH UP THE PARTS OF THE SENTENCES

47.6 KEY LANGUAGE NON-DEFINING RELATIVE CLAUSES

Non-defining relative clauses say more about a noun in the main clause. The main clause would still make sense without it.

When they are in the middle of a sentence, they are separated from the main clause by two commas.

47.7 FURTHER EXAMPLES NON-DEFINING RELATIVE CLAUSES

The suspect, whom we had been following, was arrested.

"Whom" is only used in very formal situations.

All the burglars were arrested, which was a great relief.

The relative pronoun can refer to the entire previous clause.

JURY FINDS HOCKLY GUILTY

Burglar sentenced to 18 months for theft

Burglar Gavin Hockly was jailed for 18 months yesterday. The jury, who had taken two days to reach a decision, finally found Hockly guilty last week. He was accused of stealing a computers from a small technology firm. Hockly, had pleaded not guilty, but the jury did not believe his evidence.

Police originally arrested Hockly when they checked security video footage of the street in front of the burgled premises. He was seen walking around the area each of the six days leading up to the burglary. Hockly said that he was visiting a friend in the area, but when the police asked for more details, he could not remember the full name of his friend or where he lived.

The stolen computers were taken by car to a garage where they were later discovered by police. Despite saying that he could not drive, the jury was shown videos found on social media of Hockly driving a car.

The most important evidence against Hockly was that his fingerprints were found on the stolen computers. Hockly said that someone had asked him to help carry the computers from the back of a van into the garage. The jury clearly did not believe his account of events.

GET OUT OF MY LANE!

Two-speed walking lanes are becoming increasingly common in shopping malls.

More and more shopping malls around the world are planning to introduce two-speed walking lanes for shoppers, consisting of a fast lane and a slow lane. The fast lanes are for shoppers who are in a hurry, but anyone who wants to browse slowly or use their phone as they walk has to use the slow lane.

Shopping malls in cities such as Chongqing, Antwerp, and Liverpool have already introduced this system. The idea is that faster people will be able to overtake slower shoppers. Researchers have found that younger shoppers in particular are really frustrated by people walking slowly. Mall owners worry that this frustration might encourage people to stay away and shop online instead.

However, the plans are not without their downsides. Some people argue that officials will not be able to enforce the new rules effectively. And in Chongqing, it has been reported that many shoppers were too busy looking at their phones to notice that they were straying into the wrong lane!

Who are the two different walking lanes for?

One is for fast walkers and one is for those who want to walk slowly.

① Where have these lanes already been introduced?

② Who are particularly frustrated by slower shoppers?

③ Why are shopping malls concerned about these frustrated shoppers?

④ What difficulty might officials face with the two-speed lanes system?

More often than not, it's the small cultural differences that shock students the most when they stay with British families. Some students, for example, are surprised that houses have curtains, rather than shutters. Other students say they are shocked by the amount of potatoes that British people eat. One student once said to me, "Tonight, it could be mashed, it might be fried or it may even be boiled but, whatever it is, it will be potatoes!"

The British love of pets can also surprise students, and the fact that pets can sleep inside the house or even in bedrooms can be shocking for some. In many cultures, animals must stay outside.

Sometimes I feel very sad for those people in my country who are unable to provide for themselves. Everything is about money, not about caring. How do you think your country treats vulnerable people in society?

Mi (Hanoi): The Vietnamese have many public and private hospitals to help the sick. We respect the elderly and do whatever we can to take care of them. Often, public transportation isn't easily accessible for the disabled, but usually people will offer help.

Pepe (Milan): Italians are very proud of how they care for the elderly. It would be very wrong for me to leave my mother or father in a difficult situation. They looked after me as I was growing up, and now it's my responsibility to look after them.

Simon (Oxford): As the young have to spend more and more time working to earn money for their own family's needs, it becomes harder to have time to spend with parents. But we still respect the elderly and often help pay for their care.

THIS WEEK'S NEW OPENINGS

Find out what to see (and what to avoid) this week.

The new film starring Fay Little will surely be another box office hit for director Lee Jones. Thriller Marine Blue is released on Thursday and brings back characters Max and Alice. The plot was original and surprising, although some elements may prove highly controversial. Marine Blue was heavily subsidised, but the money was incredibly well spent as the visual effects and soundtrack are stunning. A must see!

The new play Death Reviewed is supposed to be a tragedy. It is just tragic. Terrible acting, painfully slow dialogue, and a completely predictable plot make it a disaster. The play did leave me deeply moved, but only because the ticket prices were so astronomically high! Bitterly disappointed.

BookCon review notes

Black Glasses is Martin Owens' fourth book in this series. Like the third book, this one is all about the brilliant detective Amanda Brook. Unlike the other ones in the series though, this time her personal life starts falling apart. Excellent plot as usual.

I have read some boring books in my time, but Sara Umborne's Pink Tree is the duller one ever. Sadly, I can't tell you much about the book as I gave up after 20 pages.

Little Water Princess is a fabulous book for little children, or even older ones! There are few words, but the illustrations are beautiful. Lots of the pictures pop up, but ones are 2D. A lovely gift idea.

There are endless books about cooking pasta, but How to Cook Pasta by Daniela Capril is the best one on the market today.

63.5 KEY LANGUAGE SUBSTITUTING WITH "DO"

You can also replace verbs and their complements with substitute words to avoid repetition. "Do" and "did" are often used to replace present and past simple tense verbs, for example.

Different forms of "do" replace "think."

I think this homework is really difficult.

Will she be signing copies of her book?

As well as ellipsis and substitution, you can also shorten (or "reduce") infinitives to prevent repetition. This will help you to sound more natural when speaking.

 New language Reduced infinitives
Aa Vocabulary Music and performance
 New skill Avoiding repetition

64.1 KEY LANGUAGE REDUCED INFINITIVES

You can use "to" on its own rather than repeat the entire infinitive verb. You can only do this if the meaning remains clear.

If the previous sentence or clause contains the verb "be," then you must use to "be" in the next clause or sentence.

64.2 CROSS OUT ALL OF THE WORDS THAT YOU CAN LEAVE OUT

I want to get the best tickets for the show, but can't afford to ~~get them~~.

- ① I tried to contact Max about the concert tickets, but wasn't able to contact him.
- ② My brother often forgets our dad's birthday, but this year he's promised not to forget.
- ③ Georgia was enjoying the performance. At least, she seemed to be enjoying it.
- ④ Ian is going to the new nightclub, but I don't really want to go to there.
- ⑤ The festival tickets cost a lot more than they used to cost.
- ⑥ I want to come with you, but I won't be able to come with you.

64.3 KEY LANGUAGE DROPPING THE ENTIRE INFINITIVE CLAUSE

You can leave out the entire infinitive clause, or just keep "to" after some verbs, such as: "agree," "ask," "forget," "promise," "start," and "try."

Chris is going to come to the show. He {promised [to come]} {promised to [come]}.

You can also leave out the entire infinitive or use "to" after some nouns, such as: "chance," "plans," "promise," "idea," and "opportunity."

I haven't seen this band before. I'd love the {chance [to see them]}
{chance to [see them]}.

It is also possible to do this after certain adjectives, such as: "delighted," "afraid," "willing," and "determined."

I want to perform on stage, but I'm {afraid [to perform on stage]}
{afraid to [perform on stage]}.

64.5 KEY LANGUAGE VERBS WITH COMPLEMENTS

You cannot leave out the entire infinitive after verbs that need complements (phrases that complete their meaning), such as: "advise," "afford," "be able," "choose," "decide," "expect," "hate," "hope," "love," "need," and "prefer." After these, you must keep the "to."

We want to see a band tonight, but we really can't afford to.

64.8 KEY LANGUAGE "WANT" AND "WOULD LIKE"

You normally keep the "to" rather than drop the entire infinitive after "want" or "would like."

He asked if I wanted to go, and I said I would like to.

In "if" clauses, however, you can often use "to" on its own or drop the whole infinitive after "want" or "would like."

You can come with us if you want / want to.

You must keep the "to" if the clause is negative.

ART SCENE

Dean Hill Art School Exhibition

The opening of the Dean Hill Art Exhibition highlighted the mix of influences on these creative final-year students. The paintings in the first room were clearly inspired by classical artists and the more modern neoclassical movement.

From this more traditional first room, you are led to a small anteroom to wait for the next "performance." You are then taken to a dark room with lots of ropes hanging from the ceiling. Without giving too much away for future visitors to the show, you will see a young boy dressed in blue and red and you will laugh and probably be reminded of a certain superhero.

The next room was another complete change. This time an angry antisocial woman made us all feel very uncomfortable with the idea of progress in a modern world. It was a typical postmodern performance.

A hugely varied exhibition by talented, proactive artists. Well worth a visit.

67 Complex agreement

One of the basic principles of English is that subjects and verbs must agree. Some subjects, however, can behave as singular or plural nouns depending on their context.

-  New language Complex agreement
- Aa Vocabulary Collective nouns
-  New skill Using the correct agreement

67.1 KEY LANGUAGE COLLECTIVE NOUNS

Collective nouns have a singular form, but refer to a number of people or objects as a group. In US English they generally take a singular verb. In UK English they can often be used with either singular or plural verbs.

If the subject describes a singular body then the verb form must be singular.

The team is getting a new manager next year.

[The team as a whole is getting a new manager.]

The team are feeling excited about the news.

[Each individual member of the team is feeling excited.]

If the subject describes a collection of individuals, then the verb form can be plural in UK English.

67.2 FILL IN THE GAPS USING THE COLLECTIVE NOUNS IN THE PANEL

③ The _____ is having an emergency meeting in New York.

④ The soccer _____ is arriving later this evening.

⑤ The entire _____ was delighted by the guest performer last night.

~~family~~ team orchestra government department audience

67.3 KEY LANGUAGE UNCOUNTABLE NOUNS WITH SINGULAR AGREEMENT

Names or titles of books and other works of art that end in a plural noun are treated as singular in terms of agreement.

Though "tales" is plural, The Canterbury Tales is a singular work of literature.

The Canterbury Tales* was first published in the 1400s.

Other uncountable nouns appear to be plural because they end in an "-s," but have singular agreement. These include many place names and academic subjects.

Mathematics is becoming a more popular subject.

67.4 FURTHER EXAMPLES UNCOUNTABLE NOUNS WITH SINGULAR AGREEMENT

Little Women* is a novel by Louisa May Alcott.

Athletics was an important part of the ancient Olympic Games.

The Netherlands is known for its tulip industry.

Politics has long been a topic for academic debate.

67.6 KEY LANGUAGE AGREEMENT AFTER "EITHER... OR" AND "NEITHER...NOR"

When you use "either... or" or "neither...nor" to join two nouns, the verb agrees with the second noun. However, if the last noun is singular and the first is plural, you can use either a singular verb or a plural verb.

Either a tablet or a laptop is needed for the course.

RATS TRAINED TO DETECT DISEASE

An incredible breakthrough

People from all over the world fear and dislike rats, believing them to be dirty, diseased, and generally dangerous. But a little-known fact is that rats are so intelligent that they can be trained to do many things for humans that we cannot do ourselves. TB is _____ if it is detected in its early stages. If left undetected, it can be _____. Second, rats only take 30 minutes to test nearly 100 samples. This is so _____ more efficient than human laboratory _____, which can take up to four days to do the same number. "The" is the most commonly used word in the English language. It can be used in many different situations, as can the indefinite article "a," and the zero article.

-  New language Generic "the"
- Aa Vocabulary Exploration and invention
-  New skill Using advanced articles

69.1 KEY LANGUAGE GENERIC "THE"

You can use "the" with a single countable noun to talk about a class of things in general. Inventions, musical instruments, and species of animal are often referred to in this way.

The telescope changed the way we see the night sky.

Referring to an invention, not an individual telescope.

The violin is often the key instrument in an orchestra.

Referring to a type of musical instrument, not an individual instrument.

The cheetah can run faster than any other land animal.

Referring to a species of animal,
not an individual animal.

69.2 CROSS OUT THE INCORRECT WORDS IN EACH SENTENCE

Look over there! There's a / ~~an~~ / ~~the~~ lion and her cub.

Apparently, a / an / the French horn is the most difficult instrument to play.

69.3 ANOTHER WAY TO TALK ABOUT A CLASS OF THINGS

Telescopes changed the way we see the night sky.

Referring to the invention, not a particular group of telescopes.

Violins are often the key instruments in an orchestra.

Referring to the type of musical instrument, not a particular group of violins.

Cheetahs can run faster than any other land animal.

❹ Sloth is a slow animal, but the Galápagos tortoise is even slower.

❺ Steve Wozniak designed and built a 1976 Apple I computer.

❻ This concert is incredible. I love the sound of trumpet.

69.5 KEY LANGUAGE DEFINITE AND INDEFINITE ARTICLES WITH NAMES

You normally use the zero article with the name of a person.

This is my uncle, Neil Armstrong.

You can use the definite article before a person's name to differentiate them from another person with the same name.

He's not the Neil Armstrong, is he?

[He isn't the famous person with that name, is he?]

In this case, "the" is pronounced "thee."

You can use the indefinite article when the focus is on a particular name, rather than the person.

I'm afraid there isn't a "Joseph Bloggs" on the list.

[The particular name given is not on the list.]

Just over eight years later in July 1969, _____ Neil Armstrong, "Buzz" Aldrin, and Michael Collins traveled to space in _____ Apollo 11 space craft. On July 20, 1969, Armstrong stepped onto _____ Moon's dusty surface. What he actually said next is _____ interesting story in itself. - What are the environmental consequences of urbanization on such a massive scale? One major effect of urbanization is the creation of "urban heat islands." Rural areas can remain cooler due to the sun evaporating the moisture from the vegetation and the soil. However, in the cities there is much less soil and vegetation. Consequently, the sun beating on the buildings and roads leads to an increase in temperatures. Additional heat from vehicles, factories, and cooling units also increases temperatures. This heat then causes changes in local weather patterns.
- Not only is there increased air pollution, but also higher levels of rainfall, resulting in flooding within the cities themselves and also downstream. Another consequence of urbanization is the increased consumption of food, energy, and durable goods. This has a far-reaching impact on levels of natural resources.

Rats have a sense of smell that is so well developed that they can detect traces of TB in test samples given by humans. They signify when they smell TB by rubbing their legs together and are then given a treat through a syringe. There are a number of reasons why this is such an important breakthrough. First, the rats are able to spot the disease in its early stages, which is so much better than testing later because then treatment can be started right away on any patients who have tested positive. TB is treatable if it is detected in its early stages. If left undetected, it can be deadly. Second, rats only take 30 minutes to test nearly 100 samples. This is so much more efficient than human laboratory testing, which can take up to four days to do the same number. Finally, using rats is so much cheaper than buying expensive devices and paying a lot of money per test. This is important because TB is still a global concern. The situation in Mozambique was so bad that TB was declared a national emergency in 2006. By 2014, 60,000 people were said, by the ministry of health, to be infected.
