LONDON celebrates

As most large and cosmopolitan cities, London has several celebrations. A survey has shown that the most popular celebrations are Chinese New Year and the Notting Hill Carnival. There were 120,000 answers from locals and 8,000 from tourists. This came as a shock to many British, who thought that the most important celebration was the Queen's birthday.

What makes Chinese New Year Celebration so popular? It is the largest celebration outside China. Last year, there were about 250,000 people in Central London joining the celebration: singing, dancing, eating and drinking.

Notting Hill Carnival is definitely louder. It is celebrated every year at the end of August. The typical British summer weather – frequent rain and clouds – cannot ruin the parties in the streets. Everybody enjoys songs, dances, and typical Caribbean dishes. Notting Hill Carnival has become the biggest street festival in Europe. More than a million tourists and locals walk or take the underground to join the festive weekend.
